I think everyone will agree that Senator Neuberger's death is a loss to Oregon. He was in mid-stream of what promised to be a most useful career. Responsibility had sobered him. Experience had ripened him. He was standing at the doorway of what appeared to be a long and useful and honorable career of public service.

It can be truthfully said that the people of Oregon mourn his untimely death. In his first term in the U.S. senate, he had grown in stature. The public estimate of his ability and integrity is indicated clearly by the fact that at the hour of his untimely death, only a few days before the filing deadline for the May 20 primary election, no one had filed to oppose him.

But—
"The moving finger writes, and having writ moves on, nor all our piety and wit can lure it back to cancel half a line." So the question that faces us now is who will replace him for the remainder of the term for which he was elected.

It seems to me the ideal choice would be Mrs. Maureen Neuberger, Senator Neuberger's widow. Under Oregon law, an appointee to fill a vacancy must be of the same political party as the former incumbent.

By a curious coincidence, this law was introduced in the Oregon legislature by Senator Neuberger when he was a member of the state senate. Governor Hatfield was a member of the house of representatives of the Oregon legislature when the bill was introduced, and voted for it. He has mentioned in the past the teamwork between Senator and Mrs. Neuberger, referring to it as "representation of Oregon in the congress by the most able team in Washington."

That leaves the way clear for him to appoint Mrs. Neuberger to fill out her husband's unexpired term, which has less than a year to run.

The fact that they have worked as a team makes her a logical choice for the interim appointment. Mrs. Neuberger is thoroughly familiar with all the duties of the office. With all the personnel. With all of the current problems. She has been a partner in the job. She can carry on from where her husband left off. It would take anyone else the remainder of the unexpired term to learn the ropes and get the job in hand.

That makes her a natural choice for the interim appointment. It would, of course, give her a considerable advantage in the campaign for election to a new term. But it would also give Oregon voters a good opportunity to study her and her opponent during the upcoming campaign.

Besides—
I find myself coming around to the belief that it might be a good idea to get more women into politics. The men haven't done TOO good a job. If they had done a BETTER JOB, we might have fewer problems to face in these days.

Motive Sought

J. KARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Army officials today sought links between antigovernment rebels and the air force pilot who strafed President Sukarno's palace. Evidence so far indicated the flier was motivated by a personal grudge.

Death Law Repeal Beaten By Solons

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A marathon, 12½ hour hearing ended early today with narrow defeat in the California Legislature for Gov. Edmund G. Brown's bill to repeal the death penalty.

The 8-7 vote by the Senate Judiciary Committee may have shattered Caryl Chessman's last hope in his 11½ year fight to escape the gas chamber.

Sen. Edwin J. Regan, committee chairman, had said before the hearing he expected the Senate to adjourn the special session on capital punishment the day after committee action on the bill if it was defeated. He indicated adjournment was expected today.

Introduction of a similar bill in the Assembly was not planned and no further legislative action was expected on the death penalty before Chessman's scheduled execution May 2.

It was Brown's reprieve of the convict-author and his calling of a special session on capital punishment that touched off the great debate.

Yet, as if by tacit agreement, not a single witness mentioned the controversial prisoner by name.

The long, almost subdued hearing by the all-lawyer committee began at 9 a.m. Wednesday before a jam-packed audience. It ended at 1 a.m. on a dramatic note.

Deputy District Attorney J. Miller Leavy of Los Angeles disclosed that Barbara Graham, fourth woman to be executed in California history, confessed her guilt in the last few minutes of her life in 1955.

He said the 32-year-old convicted slayer of an elderly widow made the admission to the late Varden Harley O. Teets of San Quentin prison.

Leavy, who was Chessman's prosecutor, was the final witness. He said he related the Graham story because a movie of her life left the impression she was innocent.

Even as the Senate committee debated the death penalty question, the California Supreme Court Wednesday turned down Chessman's latest petition. This one challenged legality of his new May 2 execution date.

A. L. Wirin, one of his attorneys, told newsmen here the decision ended Chessman's court appeals.

"Chessman's fate is now entirely in the hands of the governor unless the Legislature takes favorable action," he said.

Brown, after giving Chessman a 60-day reprieve Feb. 19, said he would let him die if the state's lawmakers rejected his plea to abolish capital punishment.

The 38-year-old prisoner was convicted in 1948 on charges of kidnap-robbery which involved forcing two young women to perform an unnatural sex act.

Filibusters Win Fight In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today rejected a move to limit debate and thus crush the Southern filibuster against civil rights legislation.

The vote was 42 for limiting debate and 53 against.

Backers of a motion to put a time limit on the marathon debate, now in its fourth week, needed a two-thirds majority to put over cloture—the Senate name for a restriction on debate.

The effort to invoke the cloture rule was sparked by leading civil rights advocates. But it was opposed by Senate leaders of both parties as well as the Southerners.

The vote was taken before galleries jam-packed with spectators. Standing in the rear and around the sides of the Senate chamber were several House members who came to watch the voting.

On the roll call, 30 Democrats and 12 Republicans voted for cloture. Opposing it were 33 Democrats and 20 Republicans.

From the mathematical standpoint, advocates of cloture fell 22 votes short of getting the necessary vote. With 95 senators voting, 64 would have been needed for the required two-thirds.

Five hours of brisk debate preceded the roll call.

Nearly every senator had at least a brief say of his views.

Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn), both presidential candidates, spoke for the cloture motion.

The opposition of the Senate leadership deprived the vote of much of its significance, but the outcome nonetheless underscored the continuing hopes for working out a settlement of the election-year controversy.

Hamilton and N. T. Camicia, vice president of operations, at a hastily called news conference said reports that two entrances had been blocked by state, delaying the rescue, were inaccurate.

Some state was encountered, and the job of leveling it, plus necessary timbering and trouble with increasing heat, are causing extra work, they said, "but the job is proceeding nicely."

Hamilton estimated that it still is 1,500 to 2,000 feet from the point the rescue workers have reached to the area where the trapped men are believed to be.

More than 48 hours has passed since last word was received from the trapped men on the mine telephone at noon Tuesday, and there was no indication whether they were dead or still alive.

A new rescue crew was ordered to duty, a crew that officials of the Island Creek Coal Co., operator of No. 22 Mine at Holden, eight miles southwest of here, had hoped would not be needed.

Newsmen attempting to get some clue as to how soon the rescue might come inquired of an official about making arrangements to stay at the scene still another night.

"Go ahead and make 'em," he said glumly.

Word also filtered out of the mine, not confirmed, that the rescue workers were experiencing increasing difficulty with rising heat.

Mines normally have a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees, relatively comfortable in which to work.

Rescue Crews Getting Close To Miners

LOGAN, W.Va. (AP) — An Island Creek Coal Co. official estimated today that rescue workers should find 18 men trapped in a burning mine about 4 p.m.

"That's just my guess," said executive Vice President J. L. Hamilton. "It could be a little sooner or later."

Solon's Wife Seeks Post In Capital

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Mrs. Richard L. Neuberger decided today to run for the Senate seat held by her late husband.

The senator died in Portland Wednesday morning of a cerebral hemorrhage.

"This has been a difficult decision for me to make in a time of personal grief, but it is a decision that cannot be delayed. I hope it is the right decision," she said.

Friends said telephone calls and telegrams had piled up at the Neuberger residence, urging her to enter the race before the filing deadline at 5 p.m. Friday.

"The many messages I have received from across the state urging me to be a candidate for the Senate seat occupied by my husband are a source of gratification to me. I am grateful too for the petitions which are being circulated on my behalf," she said in a prepared statement.

"Foremost in my mind in reaching this decision is the thought that I may continue to serve the ideals and purposes for which my husband stood in the Senate," she said.

Mrs. Neuberger earlier had announced she would accept if Gov. Mark Hatfield would appoint her to serve out Neuberger's unexpired term until the November general election.

She is the only prominent Democrat to announce intention to enter the primary.

Princess Weds Clerk

TOKYO (UPI)—Princess Sugaya, youngest daughter of the emperor and a spunky champion of western-style rights for Japanese womanhood, married an $8,300-a-week bank clerk today in an ancient Shinto wedding ritual that broke her ties to royalty.

Shortly after the ceremony, Sugaya, 21, now plain Mrs. Hisanaga Shimazu, announced she and her husband were considering a delayed honeymoon visit to the United States—provided they could afford it.

The honeymoon had to be postponed since Shimazu, 29, could only manage to take a five-day leave of absence from his job at Japan's export-import bank. Two days of that were spent preparing for the wedding.

Thrilled crowds greeted the couple with shouts of "banzai" as they rode through the Nijubashi gates of the moated Imperial Palace toward a new life together in an $11,500 western-style home built for them by Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako.

Truck Executive Files For Judge

Al Vince, Klamath Falls trucking executive, became the 16th person to file for a county court position today when he filed as a Republican candidate for county judge.

Vince, a resident of 2545 Applegate Avenue, is the third Republican to seek the office. Other candidates are Bill Canton, Klamath Falls, and Ralph Hill of Henley. Two Democrats, incumbent Bob Walker of Merrill and William Cresswell of Klamath Falls, seek the Democratic nomination.

Vince made no formal statement when he filed his candidacy.

Family Saved By Blind Girl

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (UPI)—Susan Bantz, 9, awoke in her back bedroom with the acid smell of smoke around her. She knew she could feel her way to safety but could her mother and brother? Susan is blind.

The youngster awakened her 10-year-old brother, Bruce. Then she hurried to her mother's bedroom along the path she knew by heart. Bruce by her side.

Mrs. Bantz was aroused groggy from the billowing smoke and in a panic. She started through a door she thought let outside. It was the bathroom.

"This way," said Susan. She led them to safety.

Crippling Storm Has Tapered Off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A crippling March snowstorm—which gave the Midwest and South one of the worst weather thrashings of the winter—dwined into light snow and flurries across the East today.

But still another late season outbreak of winter built up in the plains. The Weather Bureau issued heavy snow warnings for parts of Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri.

It forecast four inches or more of snow and said the storm might roll eastward through the already snow-bombed lower Ohio Valley. The earlier storm leveled its hardest punch at Kentucky and Tennessee. For Kentucky, it was the worst wintry-weather pasting in history.

From the Central Plains into the Middle Atlantic region, the storm left a 15-state path of misery, inconvenience and hardship.

Before it began to taper off at midday, the storm dumped staggering depths of snow across sections of North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia. Hazardous driving was reported northeastward into Maryland.

State highway crews worked round the clock to clear more than a foot of snow from roads in northern North Carolina. Portions of southwestern Virginia were swamped under overnight snows which ranged up to 30 inches at Keokee in Lee County.

Sleet, freezing rain and rain offered an additional menace to highway travel in southern North Carolina.

Gov. Luther Hodges alerted the National Guard for possible emergency duty in the western part of the state. He said guardsmen might be needed to take food and medicine to snowbound communities.

The storm that fanned across the middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys appeared to have lost much of its fury as it moved north eastward across the Appalachians. But snow fell through Maryland and Delaware, with falls from 3 to 6 inches. Lesser amounts were forecast in New Jersey and New York.

There were at least 23 deaths attributed to the storm, including 7 in Illinois, 3 in Georgia, 2 each in Tennessee, Missouri, Nebraska and Kentucky, and 1 each in Indiana, Iowa, Idaho, South Carolina and North Carolina.

The major storm spread a heavy blanket of snow across a dozen or more states after sweeping out of the Texas Panhandle Tuesday. The fresh falls piled atop the heavy covering from last week's storm across the same wintry path.

Snow depths were up to two feet in southwest Virginia and piled up to record amounts in many communities in Illinois, Indiana, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri.

Calfee, 56, said he would bring economy and experience to the office. He proposed to:

1. "Operate on a budget of $100,000 or less, or will refuse to accept any part of my salary."
2. "Feed the present prison menu, or better for 50 cents a day, or will make up the deficit out of my own pocket."
3. Assign prisoners to "clean the courthouse, memorial building and county library, also assist with the upkeep of all county and city public recreational facilities. Prisoners will pay own way 100 percent."
4. "Hire only qualified personnel, and only as many as needed to do the job efficiently."
5. Permit "no coddling of prisoners, but give fair and impartial treatment to all."

Calfee was a jailer and identification officer under Britton for three and one-half years, and was criminal deputy for one and one-half years. He left the sheriff's office in February, 1959. Calfee gave this reason for leaving: "I resigned because of deplorable working conditions, inefficiency and waste in the department."

For the past year, Calfee has been a contractor of custom-built homes. He is a veteran of nine major sea-air battles from Pearl Harbor to Tokyo, and holds the Legion of Merit for preventing the heavy cruiser Pittsburgh from sinking after receiving severe damage at Nansei Shoto Island off Japan on June 5, 1945.

He has been educated in finance and administration.

Calfee is the fourth former deputy to file for Britton's office. Others are Arthur Bryant and Dale "Snuffy" Smith, both Democrats, and Dale Mattoon, a Republican. The other Democratic aspirant is L. W. "Swede" Harroun, a former state police officer.

Ground Broken For Siskiyou Juvenile Hall

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES marked the groundbreaking for a new county juvenile hall at Yreka, Tuesday. Here, Father John Martin of St. Mark's Episcopal Church invokes divine blessing for the hall and the ground on which it will stand. Judge James M. Allen waits, ready to turn the symbolic first spadeful of dirt. In the background, left to right, are Supervisor Earl Agar, Tullake; Minor Cross, Etna, chairman of Siskiyou County Probation Committee; W. A. Barr, supervisor from Dunsmuir, and W. C. Ealy, chairman of Siskiyou County Board of Supervisors.

YREKA—The Honorable Judge James M. Allen of Siskiyou County Superior Court turned the first symbolic spadeful of dirt in ground-breaking ceremonies for a new Siskiyou County Juvenile Hall here Tuesday.

Father John Martin of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Yreka, raised his arm in prayer, blessing the ground and the hall that will stand there.

Jess Brewer, Siskiyou County probation officer, said, "This is the ground-breaking ceremony for the new juvenile hall, marking a step forward toward achieving a goal which is something we have all been wanting for a long time."

Brewer expressed his gratitude to everyone who had persistently urged establishment of the hall.

W. C. "Bill" Ealy, chairman of the Siskiyou County Board of Supervisors, said although the project had long been a matter of controversy, he, too, felt that it was a step forward in curbing the problem of juvenile delinquency.

Minor Cross, Etna, chairman of the Siskiyou County Probation Committee, was guest speaker. "To me," he said, "this is another milestone for Siskiyou County. Creation of this building is the culmination of an idea started some time ago." He stressed the importance of the need which the new hall would fill in providing a suitable place for juveniles, eliminating the former necessity of holding them in a cell at the county jail.

At the close of the ceremony, Judge Allen said, "This has been a dream of mine for many years. An ounce of prevention," he said, "is worth a pound of cure. We should treat juvenile delinquency like a disease. Isolate, then seek the cure. We want to keep youth from becoming criminals, and this can be done with good advice and help."

Judge Allen suggested the new hall be named Graves Hall in memory of the county's first transient officer, Charles S. Graves. Graves served as supervisor of attendance and probation for Siskiyou County sometime in the 1920s and earned the respect and love of county residents. Graves was author of "Lore and Legends of the Klamath River Indians," published in 1929, and "Before the White Man Came," published in 1934.

Other officials on hand for the occasion were Supervisors Earl Agar, Don Avery and W. A. Barr; Robert Keeney, Medford, architect who drew the plans for the building; Jess O'Roke, Siskiyou County administrator; Sheriff A. B. Coltar and James Cummings, Yreka mayor.
