Mate Held In Stabbing Of Spouse

A Klamath Falls woman was badly slashed by her jealous husband in a South Seventh Street tavern Monday afternoon, city police said. Mrs. Marjorie Ann Lopez, who will be 30 Thursday, was taken to Klamath Valley Hospital by Peace Ambulance. A wide, deep gash on the left side of her abdomen and some internal damage were repaired by surgeons. She is expected to recover. State police arrested her common-law husband at the Great Northern Railway yard near Midland Road a couple of hours after the stabbing. He was charged at city police headquarters with assault with a dangerous weapon and jailed. Mrs. Lopez, in an interview at the hospital, said she would sign a complaint. Several bar patrons witnessed the stabbing, police said. One, Charles Troy, said the husband, Jose Antonio Lopez, 32, 3304 Delaware Avenue, had threatened him with a pocket knife twice during the afternoon in the tavern. The bartender had intervened, he said. About 3:10 p.m. witnesses said Mrs. Lopez, also known as Marjorie Walker, was putting money in the juke box when Lopez, a six-footer, weighing about 200 pounds, slammed her against a wall and knifed her. Then he bolted out the back door and down an alley toward Sixth Street, pursued by Troy. The suspect got away. Troy said he came back and wrapped the woman's wound with a towel to staunch the blood flow. Someone called the ambulance. Lopez admitted the stabbing. He said he found his wife at home two days before with Troy. For two days his bitterness welled, and on the third, he became violent. "I just couldn't help myself," he told officers. Lopez said he threw the knife away on Washburn Way in the vicinity of the city sewage disposal plant. Officers planned to attempt its recovery Tuesday.

Cyclist, 12, Loses Teeth

Richard Smith, 12, of 335 1/2 East Main Street, lost three front teeth in a bout with a parked automobile Monday evening. The boy was wheeling his bicycle in front of 427 Martin Street at about 6 p.m. and ran into a pickup parked on the wrong side of the street, police said. City police could find no registration in the pickup. Police also are investigating a hit-run auto accident at 2261 South Sixth Street reported at 3 p.m. Monday. Marvin K. Lucas, 237 Pacific Terrace, complained that his new sports car was parked when a woman driver struck it, stopped to retrieve a headlight rim lost from her car, and drove away. The car was slightly damaged.

Rev. A. T. Smith Dies At Home

The Rev. A. Theodore Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Klamath Falls, from 1936 until January 30, 1944, died at his home near Tigard, Monday, March 21. He was 85 years old on March 10. Death apparently followed a heart attack as he worked in his garden. He had been in ill health since Christmas. Survivors include the widow Anne, Tigard; daughters, Mrs. Paul (Dorothy) Grant, Portland; sons, Allan of Tacoma and Lee of Tacoma, also several grandchildren. A grandson, James Sisemore, lives in Klamath Falls. Funeral services will be held Wednesday, March 23, from Finley's Mortuary, Portland, with interment at Spokane at a later date.

Grass Fires Put Out

Suburban firemen tackled two grass fires Monday and quenched them before damage was caused. The first was at the home of H. D. Bechtold, 4743 Bisbee Street, at 10:52 a.m. The second was on a property occupied by J. W. Butler, 3947 Boardman Avenue, at 4:05 p.m. The Bisbee Street fire was apparently caused by a controlled burn which got away. Firemen suspect children playing with matches set the latter.

Slay Suspect Takes Stand In Own Behalf

Fery, sharp-talking Michael Joseph left neither compassion nor hatred for the two men he is accused of shooting to death with a 30-30 rifle last fall. Instead, Joseph testified in his own defense today, he had given a job to one of the victims, Harry Deman, 50, when the man was looking for work. The other victim, Okie Richards, 34, Joseph had known only one day before the September 20 shootings. Joseph, a black-haired, black-mustached man of 52 who fired off his testimony in staccato-like measures, said he had hired Deman to help him do stone work on the Deibert Lang ranch 15 miles southeast of Chiloquin early last August. About two weeks later he ran Deman off the ranch and told him never to return, under any circumstances. He said he had ordered Deman to leave after he saw Deman expose himself while watching the young Lang children in the ranch swimming hole. "I had a good notion to kill him then," Joseph said. "I wished for six months I had of killed him then." Instead, Joseph said he told Deman, "Last warning is fair warning," and he watched Deman drive off the ranch toward Chiloquin. That incident, Joseph testified, was about August 15 or 16. He said he did not see Deman again until September 19, the day before Deman and Richards were killed. On that afternoon Deman had driven back to the ranch with a man Joseph did not know. Joseph asked Deman what he was doing. Deman said he heard Joseph was looking for a helper — as he had when he had hired Deman six weeks before. "I told him I was, but not him, and I ordered him to leave," Joseph said. Deman also told Joseph he wanted to apologize. "All right, I accept your apology," Joseph said, he told Deman, "Now get off the place." Deman and the man — who proved to be Richards — drove away and were not seen until the next day. They returned twice Sunday, and were killed that Sunday afternoon. Joseph kept a fairly-titled circuit courtroom in silence while he maintained his rapid, short-phrased testimony. But by mid-morning, while describing his discovery of Deman's unhealthy interest in the Lang children, Joseph broke his composure. He sat silently on the witness stand, his face in his hands. Judge David R. Vandenberg called a five-minute recess, but Joseph remained on the stand, alone, until his attorneys, David Card and Freeman Murray, persuaded him to leave the courtroom and get a drink of water. Under quiet, infrequent questions posed by Murray, Joseph reviewed his early life. Except for two years in the Navy after World War II, Joseph worked as a bricklayer and stone mason over most of the country. He came to Klamath Falls the last time last May, and eventually found a job on the Lang ranch. At his suggestion, he began a comprehensive stone masonry program on the ranch. He needed an assistant to help lift stones, and hired Deman when he came around looking for work. District Attorney Arthur A. Beidone was expected to begin his cross examination of Joseph this afternoon. Joseph was the seventh witness presented by the defense, which opened its case Monday as the trial entered its second week. Other defense witnesses were Homer Horner, Elmer Duarte, Bobby Mitchell, Shirley Mitchell, Naomi Oldecker and Mrs. Elma Sutton.

SMOLDERING RUBBLE is all that remained of the 50 by 50 foot Bly Garage on Highway 66 in the business center of Bly, after an explosion of gasoline fumes set it afire about 12:45 Monday afternoon. A number of firefighting units concentrated effort to save other business buildings. The business was owned by Ernest "Olie" Hanson, a resident of Bly since 1939.

Roaring Fire In Bly Garage Perils City

BLY—A roaring fire in the Bly Garage on Highway 66 about 12:45 p.m. Monday endangered the entire business section of town as volunteer firemen and residents fought to confine flames to one building. An explosion of gasoline fumes, ignited by sparks from a welder, quickly reduced the building and its contents to ashes. Owner Ernest Hanson, a bachelor who had his living quarters in the garage, estimated loss of his household furnishings, personal possessions, automobile and building at about $10,000. He had no insurance. Power and telephone service was interrupted for about 25 minutes as firefighting equipment from lumber companies, the Bonanza Volunteer Fire Department, Bly Volunteer firemen, and a crew from the Suburban Fire Department at Klamath Falls converged in an effort to keep the fire from spreading. George Fullerton, manager of the Bly theater, expressed gratitude to the firefighting units who kept the fire away from his building, directly across the street from the burning garage. He estimated exterior damage to the theater building at less than $100 and said the show will be open as usual tonight.

Tires Stolen From Garage

Richard Turpin, 2217 Bly Street, complained to city police Monday that someone entered his unlocked garage and stole three tires and wheels valued at about $50 over the weekend. Police also learned from Mrs. R. L. Gilchrist, 1520 Sargent Avenue, that a prowler had been in the vicinity of her home during the past few nights. She called when neighborhood dogs began barking. Officers patrolled the neighborhood, but found no one. Shortly afterward, they were called by Mrs. Lydia Malarski, 1512 Sargent, next door to the Gilchrist home. She said she saw a tall young man crouched by a fence near her garage. The man sprang over a fence and ran down an alley when she spotted him, she said.

Sent To Jail

Marilyn Ann McKnight, 21, was sentenced to four months in jail today for violation of probation. Mrs. McKnight admitted before District Judge D. E. Van Vactor that she had been arrested for drinking at least three times since she was placed on one year probation last September 16 for petty larceny.

Revision Of Plans Results Following Aqua Firm Study

TULELAKE—A revision of plans in the area to be covered for water delivery by the recently organized East Tulelake Water company, has resulted following further study of the proposed project. It is the decision of the directors that it is not economically feasible at this time to extend the project further east than the Great Northern Railroad tracks at this time. The company, however, will continue with legal procedures preparatory to completing the delivery of soft, domestic water to ranches adjacent to the Osborne Road to the Great Northern, south to Modoc Road 102, west to the highway and parallel to the Alturas Highway and to the point of beginning. In a two-day joint meeting with the water board and officials of the FFA from Berkeley, Reno and Yreka, changes and additions in the original proposed bylaws and articles of incorporation for the newly formed district were recommended. The law firm of Robnett and Wilson, Alturas, will incorporate the changes before the company submits the documents to the membership of the East Tulelake Water Company for approval. Edward Wurd, of the engineering firm of Claire Hill and Associates, Redding, flew here to present the outline of preliminary engineering work accomplished by his company to the present time. Directors of the water company have announced that it is not yet possible to determine actual cost of water to the user but investigation has determined that the project will be economically practical. Costs will be available in the immediate future.

Boys Admit Pane Busting

Three boys, two of them 11 and one 7 years of age, have admitted breaking 20 windows in a home being built by vacationing C. D. Long, 2010 Van Camp Street, city juvenile officers said. The three were taken into temporary custody Monday. Two were ordered to appear Tuesday in the county juvenile office, and one was ordered to appear Wednesday for interviews with county officers. A neighbor discovered the damage March 14 and notified police, who have been working hard on the case since. One officer clutched at a slim lead provided by a little neighborhood girl. She told officers a boy with a strange nickname liked to throw rocks. Police found a boy with such a nickname registered at a local school. He admitted the vandalism and implicated the other two. The boys insisted they had nothing to do with other cases of window breakage in the neighborhood recently, though one said he throws rocks at cars occasionally. He couldn't remember ever having broken a car window, he said. One boy admitted breaking 17 or 18 windows in the Long home with rocks. The other boys weren't very good shots, he said. Meanwhile, police received a report of another window broken by vandals, Virgil Yulen told them Monday someone took a shot at a 24-inch by 26-inch window in his home sometime over the weekend.

Encyclopedias Found By Police

City police were surprised Tuesday morning at the way someone is spreading his knowledge around. They found 10 encyclopedia volumes in the middle of the Tenth and Pine streets intersection while on patrol. Seven of the books are of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia. The remainder are of Bulton's Universal Encyclopedia. The books are at headquarters, Fifth Street and Oak Avenue.

Car Towed

A car bearing Massachusetts license number P98-956 was towed away from a restricted zone at Klamath Falls Municipal Airport Monday morning, city police said. Airport Manager Harold Jones complained the car had received two tickets for illegal parking. It was taken to Clyde's Towing and Storage Service on Klamath Avenue.
