

North College Students Backing Demonstrations

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Spreading anti-segregation demonstrations by Negroes in the South are being given extensive support by Northern college students for the first time since the current protests began the first of February.

Yale divinity students plan a protest march today. Brown University boys and Skidmore College girls will continue picketing variety stores, and a U.S. senator's son is helping form a group at the University of Connecticut to raise funds for Negroes expelled for taking part in Southern sit-downs.

In the South a new attack on segregation barriers has been started in Alabama. Demonstrations have spread to a Tennessee art gallery and there have been more sit-downs in several states.

These and other racial developments from Texas to Massachusetts marked growing agitation over segregation practices, with lunch counters still the main targets. Only a few arrests were reported Tuesday, however.

Seven Negroes — including one expelled from Alabama State College — applied for enrollment at the white University of Alabama center at Montgomery, a night school where high school graduates take part-time courses for college credits.

Marzette Watts was ousted from Alabama State for taking part in anti-segregation demonstration.

At Memphis, Tenn., police arrested 23 Negro students during new demonstrations at the public art gallery and at a downtown branch library. Seven students were arrested inside the Brooks Memorial Art Gallery and six others outside. Ten students were arrested in the segregated reading room at the library.

More than 150 Negro students varied nonviolent sit-downs at five variety stores in Houston, Tex.

At Storrs, Conn., a group of University of Connecticut students also made plans to form a fund raising committee. Among them was Jeremy Dodd, a 19-year-old sophomore and the son of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.).

Wheaton College students formed a committee at Norton, Mass., to solicit funds for the legal defense of Negro students expelled from Alabama State.

About 20 faculty members and more than 200 Skidmore College girls demonstrated at Saratoga Springs, N.Y., and began picketing a variety store. Brown University students also were picketing variety stores in Providence, R. I.

Two men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun and the other with an automatic pistol committed the robbery. There also were reports there was a third man waiting in a getaway car, but police said Tuesday these had not been confirmed.

A bystander joined down the license plate of the car. Police said a checkup showed that plate apparently had been stolen in the area last week.
