Seed Research May Result In Huge Savings Soon

Oregon seed growers stand to gain millions of dollars from improved methods and machines being developed by agricultural engineers at Oregon State College, predicts Norman Goetze, OSC extension farm crops specialist.

U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers, headed by J. E. Hammond, are recovering much of the grass and legume seed that's usually lost because of field shattering, processing damage, and weed contamination.

Losses—running as high as 50 per cent—are expected to be greatly reduced. The seed growing industry now is worth 20 million dollars to 30 million dollars a year in Oregon.

The research is being conducted at Corvallis in a seed research laboratory operated cooperatively by the OSC agricultural experiment station and the USDA's agricultural research service.

Here are some of the experimental developments that are expected to save much of the 200 million dollars worth of grass and legume seed produced in the U.S. and $5 million dollars more imported each year:

1. Farmers who cut birdsfoot trefoil at the first signs of shattering and cure it in loose bales or shocks prior to combining can reduce shatter losses 32 per cent. Similar savings result by combining trefoil in windrows on wide sheets of plastic.

2. A moisture meter for use by farmers to indicate when grass and legume crops are prime for harvest.

3. A fluidized method of conveying seeds without mixing or damaging them.

4. A device that separates seeds depending on their ability to hold an electrical charge.

5. A machine that separates tiny pigweed seeds from alfalfa. Pigweed contamination now costs the seed industry millions of dollars a year.

6. A vibrating seed separator that makes use of differences in seed shape, surface texture, and

Radio & TV Tubes

Always Tested

FREE

by Competent Technicians

at ACE TV!

And, to keep you from making useless purchases, we operate tube TESTERS, not tube SELLERS!

Over 34 of the tubes that check WEAK when tested, will work perfectly in the set; most of them, in fact, BETTER than a cheap replacement.

As an example, most weak audio (sound) tubes will put out more than wanted by merely turning up the volume control.

So we simply say, don't be confused by a tube SELLER masquerading as a tube ANALYZER. Have your tubes properly tested by your favorite service shop. They WILL save you money!

And for the finest in Radio-TV service, it's...
