Young People Cautioned On Wed Rites

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teenagers should grow up before they get married, a family sociologist said today.

Dr. David M. Fulcomer, a marriage counselor and professor at Iowa State University, told United Press International that "very few people of high school age are ready for marriage."

"Marriage," he said, "is for adults." But he added there is a trend in the United States "toward forcing children" to grow up in a hurry.

He said parents are trying to make adults out of adolescents by forcing them "to go steady" without preparing them for the pitfalls of such relationships.

Fulcomer is the leader of a work group on current trends in marriage and family size at the White House Conference on Children and Youth.

His group has explored the problems of marriage, divorce and remarriage as they affect children. It is expected to make recommendations today.

Fulcomer's panelists have reached the following preliminary conclusions:

—Community action is needed to discourage pushing children into social adulthood.

—More adequate and more uniform data on divorce should be collected from the states, with a Washington clearinghouse.

—More counseling services are needed for marital and premarital problems.

—More research is needed on remarriage of divorced persons.

—More research is needed on the effect of family size on family relations and personality development.

—A uniform state mandatory waiting period for marriage is needed.

Morse Sees Summit Fizz

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) told a Westchester County American Jewish Congress meeting Wednesday night that the coming summit meeting may result in disillusionment.

Morse said the chances of accomplishment would have been better under United Nations auspices.

"The summit conference appears to be headed for a repetition of the 1955 top-level talks in Geneva, which began with much optimism and publicity only to result in little achievement, and, finally disillusionment," Morse said.

The senator said the Eisenhower administration is bypassing the UN in holding the talks with Soviet Russia, and added:

"It seems clear to me that the world's best hope for peace lies with the work the UN could do to bring world opinion to bear upon the great powers . . when two powerful, contending nations meet face to face, it is difficult for either of them to change the positions they have taken publicly for months in advance on the issues of peace."

Four Engines Of Rocket To Be Tested

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Four engines of the mighty Saturn rocket booster will be tested at Redstone Arsenal within the next few weeks, the Army said today.

No public announcement of the static or tied-down firings, will be made, however.

The announcement of Monday's static tests of two of the Saturn engines was made in Washington Tuesday by Dr. Wernher von Braun, who appeared before the Senate Space Committee.

The Army said the tests were successful, but that the two engines were not allowed to run for their full duration.

The Army said no advance announcements of the static tests are being made because of a desire to avert alarm at Huntsville and the area surrounding Redstone.

A spokesman said noise of the tests would be greater than residents near Redstone have been accustomed to in the past.

After the static testing of four engines, then six engines will be fired. The last test will include the firing of all eight engines.

When the eight engines are operating, the thrust level will approach 1,500,000 pounds. This is five times greater than the thrust of an intercontinental ballistic missile and 10 times greater than the thrust of the Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile.

The booster unit, completely installed, will consist of a cluster of eight liquid propelled rocket engines.

A special barge is being built to move the Saturn from Huntsville, down a series of rivers to the Gulf of Mexico and around the Florida tip to Canaveral on the East Coast.

Ten of the Saturns will be tested over the next few years before the giant booster engine is declared ready for its initial purpose — to catch up with Soviet rocket power.

The eight-engine booster is only the first stage of the multi-stage Saturn, which will be capable of placing this nation's heaviest payloads into orbit.

Von Braun, in charge of the Saturn project, told the Senate Space Committee that new money being applied to the Saturn program should speed up its operational date by about a year — from early 1965 to early 1964.

Mace Missile Shot Success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — (UPI) — The Air Force successfully fired another of its swept-winged Mace guided missiles about 1,000 miles over the Atlantic Thursday.

The shot came shortly after a jet-powered Hound Dog missile, launched from beneath a B-52 bomber wing, soared several hundred miles before landing on its target off the west coast of Florida in the Gulf of Mexico.

The Mace, a 44-foot-long weapon, tested engineering improvements.

The "B" model Mace, headed for military duty in West Germany, can deliver high-explosive conventional or nuclear warheads in any kind of weather. Its maximum range is about 1,200 miles.

and Klamath Lake fish always seem bigger, the town and the country seem bigger, too."

That, he says, is because he became so fond of it as a youngster. He was delighted with things as he found them on his first visit here in years. Business has kept him locked in California. Now that he has established an Oregon branch, he wants to come more often.

As a youngster, he trapped muskrat in the Lower Klamath Lake area. "I made spending money, too," he said. He fished Link River with very respectable success.

And, he worked part time on what was called the Altamont farm. "Boy, that seemed like a long way to ride out of town every day."

Crystal took Musgrove on a tour of the site the other day. It is pretty well clothed with the Town and Country Shopping Center and other structures, now. That was a surprise. The South Suburban area was rural in Musgrove's youth.

Old Carrier

Crystal used to be a paper carrier for the old Evening Herald, when that paper's office was located at Fourth Street between Main and Pine streets. He delivered papers in the northwest section of the residential area and in the South Riverside sector.

Both men say the climate has changed since their youth. "I remember a farmer who used to wagon hay across the upper lake ice when I was a kid," said Crystal.

"We used to have a good time playing ice hockey up there," said Musgrove. He also remembers workmen sawing blocks of ice out of Ewauna Lake in winter for transportation to a commercial ice house.

Crystal has a brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Verle Reaves, living in Merrill. His mother, Mrs. Myrtle Crystal, also lives there.

Musgrove's grandfather Charlie Rehart, lives yet in Lakeview. He is one of the town's really senior citizens. He has an uncle and aunt, Ralph and Ruby Loveless, living near Lakeview on the old Rehart place. An uncle, Bill Rehart, and a cousin, Mrs. Beulah Vincent, also live in Lake County.

The two men are anxious to attend the 50th anniversary celebration and reception Saturday evening at Riverside School. They expect they will meet old friends from a wide area whom they haven't seen for a long time.
