Threat Of Bomb Empties AF Base

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Two thousand civilian employes and airmen were ordered from Mather Air Force Base Thursday when the 6,400-acre Strategic Air Command facility received a telephone bomb threat.

Capt. Robert Moen, base public relations officer, said the switchboard received the anonymous telephone call at about 3 p.m. warning that a bomb would go off in one hour.

Brig. Gen. Norman L. Callish, base commanding officer, ordered 2,000 civilian employes and airmen to leave immediately. About 3,000 airmen remained on their jobs.

The deadline passed, and a thorough search of the base showed no sign of a bomb.

One of the major difficulties facing the Klamath Basin Golden Age Club, besides the present lack of a suitable meeting place, has been a transportation problem. Many members have been unable to attend meetings because of inability to get into town.

The Soroptimist Club has offered to assist the Klamath Falls Parks and Recreation Department in providing transportation for these people to and from the meetings. All the golden ager must do is call the Recreation Department, TU 2-3683, and inform us as to his or her whereabouts and the rest will be taken care of.

The Soroptimists deserve their second big vote of thanks from us, the first for the support we received from them concerning our proposed Fantasy Forest.

April 10 the Klamath Falls Babe Ruth League holds its registration and tryout sessions at Gem Stadium. Now might be the proper time to reiterate the objectives of this program.

The Sportsmanship Code of Babe Ruth League reads:
Develop a strong, clean, healthy body, mind and soul. Develop a strong urge for sportsmanlike conduct. Develop understanding of and respect for the rules. Develop courage in defeat, tolerance and modesty in victory. Develop control over emotions and speech. Develop spirit of cooperation and team play. Develop into real, true Americans.

Fine ideals, indeed, and ones which the boys who play, the men who coach them and the people who watch can and should adhere to.

The adults who are responsible for the guidance of these young athletes should be on guard against imposing some of the dubious adult standards which sometimes creep into Babe Ruth and Little League play. One of these questionable standards is the all out attempt to win, regardless of the cost.

Certainly, no team should take the field with the idea of being beaten. Neither should the objectives of the game and the program be restricted to just a few of the more skilled youngsters, while those less skilled players sit on the sidelines because they are less apt to produce a winning effort!

Fun, the pure enjoyment of the game, should remain a large objective of the program. Baseball, to be sure, is a professionally oriented game. Baseball, as it is played by the professionals, is not what many imagine it to be. Many a lad has come home from the ranks of pro ball somewhat disillusioned by it. It's hard work, coupled with the continual pressure of fans and management to produce or else! Don Demeter, outfielder of the LA Dodgers had this to say:

"The rewards from this game have to be great in order to justify what I've given up to play it. I'm still not sure it's worth it!" It might be a good idea to let the kids enjoy the game before the cold water treatment of professionalism is administered, and if they go any distance in the game outside of youth league and high school they will soon enough be subjected to the pressures which turn baseball from a game into a business.

Baseball, as is true of any other athletic endeavor, is an excellent way to development of self-reliance, courage, development of a sense of responsibility and many other desirable traits in children and youth. Let's remember, however, that it is not a means to an end in itself, it is merely a single facet in an overall attempt to make better citizens and better human beings out of children.
