

Bill Backlog Faces Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — A backlog of almost a dozen major bills will await congressional action following the abbreviated Easter recess this month.

Several of them contain the ingredients of major political issues in the November election.

Topping the list is civil rights legislation, which, barring unexpected developments, still will be kicking around when the Easter holiday starts April 14. Already passed by the House, the bill may be passed by the Senate this week and sent back to the House for action on Senate amendments. There is no present indication the House will speed up its final action on the explosive bill.

Likely to be passed by the House before the holiday is a bill extending the foreign aid program, but a more controversial measure financing the plan won't be ready until later.

A big defense appropriation bill is being whittled into shape for initial House action late in April or early May. Around it swirls the missile controversy.

Bottled up in the House Rules Committee are a housing bill and a measure to help economically depressed areas. Both are scheduled for House action.

Also in the offing and on the unofficial must program are bills to provide federal aid for school construction, an increase in minimum wages and a broadening of the Social Security program.

There is strong pressure also for legislation to increase interest rates on government bonds, to boost the pay of federal employees and to provide some form of health insurance for elderly persons on the Social Security Rolls.

The House Ways and Means Committee already has turned thumbs down on a broad health insurance bill but may come up later with a less expensive measure. Regardless of what is done, the subject is almost certain to be a hot campaign issue. Some Democrats would like to bring the issue to a head by sending the President a bill he probably would veto.

Congressional leaders still are hopeful that Congress can adjourn for keeps before the first of the national political conventions starts July 11. But their earlier optimism about averting a post-convention session is dimming.

"Fine" as the payment of money as a penalty comes from the Latin "finem facere," meaning "to put an end to."
