Under legislation sponsored by the late Senator Richard L. Neuberger, Klamath Indian Reservation timber was to be offered first for private acquisition under sustained yield management principles.

The legislation calls for timber NOT sold privately to be purchased by the federal government for inclusion in the National Forest system.

So far, only one unit of this timber has been sold. On three other large units valued in the neighborhood of 14 million dollars, no bids were received—indicating, apparently, the belief of private operators that this timber can't be bought and held profitably under sustained yield management until the time comes to cut it.

The department of agriculture has announced that these units will not be re-advertised, thus indicating its intention to purchase them under the terms of the Neuberger act.

But—The timetable of the Neuberger act affecting the end of federal trusteeship over the Klamath Tribe calls for the timber not sold privately to be purchased by the government in April of 1961—a year hence.

That is a long time for the Indian owners to wait for their money. It also delays by a year the time when Forest Service timber sales can be scheduled from these units to help support the needs of the timber industry of the Klamath Basin.

So—Maurine Neuberger, widow of Senator Neuberger, is urging that the date for acquisition of these unsold units by the Forest Service be MOVED UP, and that the funds for their purchase by the government be appropriated at this session of congress.

It is a reasonable suggestion. The federal government is required to purchase them anyway, since no bids for them have been received from private buyers. It might as well buy them now as later.

If it buys them now, the Indian owners will get their money sooner—and they probably need it. Forest Service timber sales from these units can be scheduled earlier for purchase by private operators, who need the timber.

In addition, the time will be speeded up when surrounding National Forests won't have to rally around with sales to make up the deficiency in sales of Indian timber.

It looks like a case where nobody will be hurt and everybody will be benefited. It is to be hoped that Mrs. Neuberger's suggestion is acted upon.

Titan Missile Shot Success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Air Force has successfully fired its Titan missile over a 3,000-mile course for the third time and now will concentrate on improving the range, reliability and accuracy of this intercontinental range weapon.

Money For Bomb Range Requested From Board

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Oregon State Emergency Board is being asked today to earmark up to $400,000 to make certain the state's bid for the 96,000-acre Boardman Bombing Range does not fall through.

And Sam Mallicoate, deputy director of the State Department of Planning and Development, leaves Wednesday to testify in Washington before the Senate Armed Services Committee in support of the Boardman range.

2 Students Found Dead On Mountain

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP)—An Air Force helicopter today recovered the bodies of two university students who perished in falls on 14,255-foot Longs Peak.

The two were found dead on the mountain Thursday after their girl companion had scrambled to safety.

Evidence showed both David L. Jones, 19, of Wester Groves, Mo., and Prince F. Willmon, 23, of Fort Smith, Ark., died in terrible falls down the rocky slopes.

Jane Bendixen, 19, of Davenport, Iowa, staggered to shelter, dazed, cut and frostbitten, late Wednesday.

Dick Boyer, assistant to the Rocky Mountain National Park superintendent, said Jones appeared to have fallen at least 1,000 feet. Willmon, who had been left in a snow cave farther up the mountain, had wandered off and fallen about 400 feet.

"He may have been delirious at the time and made a final effort to get down the mountain," Boyer said.

Members of searching parties, after finding the bodies Thursday, carried them to a 12,500-foot altitude. Today, without the usual wind whipping the peak, a helicopter from Denver's Lowry Air Force Base was able to land on a rock-strewn slope to pick up the canvas-wrapped bodies.

The bodies were taken to nearby Boulder, site of the University of Colorado which the climbers attended.

The three and a fourth companion, James A. Creig, 21, of Glenview, Ill., began their outing Monday. Creig became ill the next day, however, and turned back.

Bulletins

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP) — A Navy rocket, floating upright like a bottle, was fired into the air from a lagoon today to demonstrate a technique that could transport launch pads for military and space vehicles.

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—An Atlas missile shot skyward today in a long-delayed first test of a new type launch complex.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower today blocked a threatened national railroad strike for at least 60 days by naming a special emergency board to investigate a dispute between 11 non-operating unions and the major carriers.

a swap of state land, in Lake and Harney counties near Wagonville, for the Boardman range in eastern Oregon. It lies along the Columbia River in Morrow County.

It is on the Boardman range, plus several thousand acres of adjacent riverfront land on which the state is taking options, that Oregon's ambitious Space Age Industrial Park is to take shape.

Nearly a dozen of the country's great space age industries have shown interest. Some, says Robert Tarr, director of the Department of Planning and Development, are very definite prospects. But as yet it has no tenants.

None can be named until negotiations really get under way, and that cannot start, he said, until the state gets title to the land.

When industries with their missile projects, their rocketry experiments and perhaps even their dreams of space stations, begin developing Oregon's Space Age Park, some see a swiftly growing city springing up beside the Columbia River. Tarr's department declines to comment on speculation that first development of a big missile industry would take 5,000 workmen and lead to a mushroom city of 20,000.

But not far away Richland, Wash., thrives in what a few years ago was sagebrush country similar to the Boardman range.

The Boardman Bombing Range is federal property, once used by the Air Force. In recent years it has been operated by the Navy.

But the Department of Planning and Development, led by Gov. Mark Hatfield, some time ago saw its greatest value as other than bombing. It has these great industrial values:

River transportation, with slack-water navigation available all the way to Portland when John Day Dam is completed a few miles downstream.

line of the Union Pacific cutting along the northern edge of the range.

Highway transportation, U. S. 30—a part of the new interstate system—reaching it.

Isolation, with no adjacent population areas to be disturbed, and secrecy possible for space age experiments.

In early discussions to see whether missile companies and others would be interested in the site, there was one universal reaction: Doubt that the federal government could be persuaded to give up the big 96,000-acre block of land.

Now, a spokesman in the Planning and Development Department says, "They are impressed with the ability of the state of Oregon to get this range; they didn't believe we could do it."

The state hasn't quite done it yet. But it sees victory at hand. The Department of Defense has agreed to an exchange of the Boardman property for one of similar size in southeastern Oregon. The state and the Bureau of Land Management have agreed to an exchange of low-grade grazing land in eastern Lake County which will give the state a big enough block to swap for Boardman.

Air Crash; 35 Die

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A Belgian DC4 airliner crashed near the top of a mountain in the Belgian Congo early today, killing all 35 persons aboard.

THE JAZZIEST "SOOTS" in town will be worn Saturday night by Krater Kords, local quartet of the Klamath Falls Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America. The quartet will appear with visiting quartets, the Incidentals of the Sweet Adelines, Klamath Falls, and the full Klamath Falls choruses, Saturday night, April 23, in the 12th annual parade of quartets and choruses.

The program will be presented at 8 p.m. in Mills School Auditorium. Tickets are still available at Derby's Music Store, from members and at the door. Vernon Durant, lead, seated; Bill Evans, tenor, left, standing; Lyle Smith, baritone, center, and Jim Perkins, bass, right, will model new scarlet jackets and shoes, light gray trousers, blue bow ties and white shirts for their appearance.

Lad United With Family In New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eighteen-year-old Yuri Korol today rejoined the parents from whom he was separated more than 16 years ago in war-torn Russia.

He was just in time to help celebrate his kid sister's eighth birthday Sunday.

Yuri's mother, father, sister and 10 other relatives were watching through a glass partition a floor above the customs area at Idlewild Airport when the dark-haired, 6-foot youth was brought into the area by a (KLM) stewardess.

"There he is," shouted his mother, Mrs. Rubin Korol, of New York, recognizing him from photographs.

"He looks thin," she said. "He crowded around him when finally he had passed through customs, thus severing the last strand in eight years of governmental red tape."

Mrs. Korol, weeping, embraced him. His father stood beside him, softly patting his head. His sister Miriam—who suddenly has a new big brother—looked a little perplexed. But when asked if she was glad to see him, she grinned and nodded her head vigorously.

"It's so lovely, and so sad," said Yuri's aunt, Mrs. Bella Korol, of New York.

Yuri's parents had been imprisoned in Russia when he was 22 months old. He grew up in an orphanage, where his real name—Jonathan—was changed to Yuri. The reunion climaxed an eight-year effort which had involved the U. S. State Department; Vice President Richard M. Nixon; Adlai E. Stevenson; Gen. Alfred M. Guenther, president of the American Red Cross; Iowa corn farmer Roswell Garst; New York attorney Marshall MacDuffie; Soviet Ambassador to Washington Mikhail Menshikov; Soviet Foreign Minister Andre Gromyko; and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Travel Time Revises Told

Buses will be the only public carriers affected appreciably by Daylight Saving Time beginning Sunday.

Buses from the south will arrive and leave an hour earlier. Greyhound buses arriving from the south at 6:09 a.m. from San Francisco, 6:14 a.m. from Los Angeles, 7:37 a.m. from San Francisco and 10:02 p.m. from Los Angeles will arrive at 5:09 a.m., 5:14 a.m., 6:37 a.m. and 9:02 p.m. A northbound Trailways bus will leave Klamath Falls at 7:15 rather than 8:15 a.m.

West Coast Airlines are making minor adjustments in flight schedules. The northbound flight usually arriving from the south at 9:35 a.m. and leaving at 9:50 a.m. now will arrive at 9:20 a.m. and leave at 9:40 a.m. That is flight 740 through Klamath Falls, Eugene and Medford to Portland.

A flight from Boise will arrive at 9:12 a.m. rather than 9:15 a.m. and will leave at 9:30 a.m. rather than 9:45 a.m.

Southern Pacific announces a change in its slower passenger train "Klamath's" schedule. More and more small towns are getting mail service by truck, eliminating some stops.

The train will leave Oakland Sixteenth Street terminal at 11:10 p.m., arrive in Klamath Falls at 9:55 a.m., leave at 10:30 a.m. and arrive in Portland at 7:10 p.m.

The train now leaves Oakland at 8:10 p.m., arrives at 9:55 a.m. in Klamath Falls and in Portland at 7:55 p.m.

The southbound Klamath will leave Portland at 11 p.m., 45 minutes later than usual, arrive in Klamath Falls at 7:05 a.m., 10 minutes earlier, and at Oakland at 6:45 p.m. rather than 7:15 p.m. The new schedule also is effective Sunday.

Six-Year Old Lad Drowns; Crews Probe River For Body

Sheriff's officers, Air Force volunteers, and jail trustees continued today a grim search for a 6-year-old boy who was drowned in the Klamath River yesterday afternoon while fishing.

The victim was Barry Lynn Bell, a first grader at Ponderosa School. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bell, 2254 Darrow Street.

Sheriff's personnel said the youth and his father went fishing on the Klamath River about three miles west of Keno when the child slipped from a rock and into the water.

The section of river is enclosed by steep rock walls and swirls about a fishing hole about 10 feet deep, Deputy Sheriff Lou Bogart said.

Sheriff Murray Britton, Deputy Sheriff Del Summers, and three other trustees began the search soon after receiving a call at 3:50 p.m. yesterday.

They were joined later in the afternoon by from 50 to 60 volunteers from Kingsley Field.

The sheriff's officer said the river section was dragged for about four hours yesterday without success.

Britton, with three deputies and more trustees, renewed the search about 7:30 a.m. today. State police and from 40 to 50 Kingsley volunteers joined.

The site is some three miles west of Keno. California-Oregon Power Company reduced the flow of the Klamath River this morning in an effort to aid the search.

Water flow was cut at a needle-type dam at Keno, a Copco official said. The dam is not intended to stop flow entirely, but is used to regulate river flow between Lake Ewauna and Keno by raising and lowering long, needle-like sections.

There was some question how long water flow could be restricted.

Relatives said the youngster slipped from a rock and was seen tumbling into the water by his father, who was unable to reach him.

Barry was born August 19, 1953, the son of Clarence and Nola Bell. He is survived by two sisters, Bonnie and Betty, and by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Bell of Talent and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Newton of Tulelake.

Funeral arrangements were to be announced later.

The detentions were made under the broad powers of the Nationalist government's March 30 state of emergency proclamation invoked after bloody Negro riots against the white government's race laws.

Officials Of Korea Refuse To Quit Jobs

SEOUL, Korea (UPI) — Both President Syngman Rhee and controversial Vice President Lee Ki Poong have considered—and rejected—the idea of resigning to end South Korea's political unrest, it was reported today.

Opposition leaders have demanded the resignation of both and the calling of new presidential elections to wipe out the memory of the March 15 elections when Rhee was unopposed and Lee was accused of winning through fraud.

New Demonstrations Erupt
Opposition to the March 15 elections brought widespread riots Tuesday and the death of at least 125 students. New demonstrations erupted today in Inchon and in Kusan, 100 miles south of Seoul, but there was no violence.

Political circles said Rhee met with members of his ruling Liberal party and asked them whether he should resign and call new elections. The sources said party leaders urged him to remain at his post.

The report that Lee had offered to resign was carried in the opposition Tonga Ilbo newspaper, which quoted a top Liberal party member. It said the party members urged him not to resign despite the growing demands to do so.

A new demand for Lee's resignation came today from Puan Yang Tai, a former prime minister under Rhee and the last before Rhee scrapped the parliamentary form of government.

Police Fire Blanks
The biggest demonstration today took place in Inchon where 25,000 school children—grammar and high school students—marched through the streets in defiance of police and demanded their schools be reopened. Unlike last week, police regarded them with a benevolent eye today.

Police fired blank cartridges when 2,000 students began the Inchon demonstration and started throwing stones, but as the crowd swelled police became almost kindly. They furnished drinking water to the marching students and followed with an ambulance in case any became ill.

Break Up Peacefully
The demonstration finally broke up peacefully in mid-afternoon. In Seoul, a National Assembly meeting, the first in 10 days erupted into a cursing and shouting match and one fist fight between Liberal and Democratic opposition members.

The trouble started when Defense Minister Kim Chung Yul reported officially on Tuesday's demonstrations.

He angered the Democrats when, in giving an account of the rioting, he said the students had gotten out of hand but did not mention police firing on the students.

Curse One Another
Democrats stormed to the platform, grabbing at the microphone and shouting "Why didn't you mention the shooting?" Liberals and Democrats started cursing one another in violent language and it took an hour's recess to cool them down.

Absent from the assembly session was speaker Lee Ki Poong, vice president-elect and Rhee's heir apparent.

It was the election of Lee March 15, over incumbent Vice President John M. Chang, leader of the Democratic opposition, that sparked charges of election frauds and led to this week's bloody violence. Chang had beaten Lee easily in the previous election.

De Gaulle flew in from Toronto for four days of talks with Eisenhower on strategy for next month's meeting of Western leaders with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

His special Air France Constellation airliner landed at 11:59 a.m. at National Airport.

Eisenhower had been waiting for five minutes in warm sunshine under a blue sky to greet him.

In an arrival statement, De Gaulle said: "A grave international debate is going to take place in three weeks. Before joining this debate on behalf of France it was indeed necessary that I converse with the President of the United States."

The President welcomed De Gaulle as "a man who in war and peace has proved such a great friend of all those who love human dignity and are dedicated to the welfare of human beings everywhere."

Moved out in a motorcade for the government guest house where the French President and Madame de Gaulle will reside during their visit here.

For the ceremonial airport welcome, an honor guard was drawn up at present arms and a battery on the far side of terminal building fired a 21-gun salute.

An army band played the national anthems of the two countries — first "The Marseillaise" and then "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The two old generals, in civilian clothes, stood rigidly at attention.

During De Gaulle's inspection of the honor guard, made up of men from all the U. S. armed forces, the crowd of spectators broke into applause.

De Gaulle and Madame de Gaulle spent four days in Canada. After their stay here, they will visit New York, San Francisco and New Orleans before leaving the country.

Approval Given To Ex-Premier
ROME (AP) — Former Premier Amintore Fanfani today received specific authorization from leaders of his Christian Democrat party to try to form a center-left government.

The 52-year-old economist was not authorized to solicit the support of Pietro Nenni's fellow-traveling Socialists, but apparently he was under no obligation to reject their help if it was offered.

De Gaulle Greeted Old Comrade In Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower enthusiastically welcomed French President Charles de Gaulle to the United States today amid the colorful pomp and ceremony of full military honors.

Incorporating Action Lags

TULELAKE — No definite action relative to incorporating the HBL Road, about five miles west of town, into the Siskiyou County road system came out of the special session of the Siskiyou County Board of Supervisors here Thursday.

A member of the board expressed optimism regarding the final outcome, however.

The road has been owned in the past by various public agencies and has never been brought up to county standards. Residents of the area petitioned the board about three weeks ago to take the road into the county system and bring it up to standard.

The board wanted the road brought up to standard before it became a county road. Differing opinions were expressed at the meeting.

The county board will return to Tulelake in about two weeks for further consideration and hopes to take definite action then.

"I KNOW IT'S LADIES AID, but I'll sign the guest book anyway," is what Guy Merrill seems to be saying to two younger aspiring members of the Ladies Aid of Merrill Presbyterian Church which observed its 52nd anniversary in the church on Wednesday.
