matter of FACT

Have you ever seen a thorn on a plant move? It happens all the time in Central and South America. These "moving thorns" aren't thorns at all but a tiny insect known as the tree hopper. It is one of the most artful camoufages provided in the nature world.

THERE'S PLENTY of entertainment in two sheets of fir plywood when they're fashioned into the horse racing game. It can be used for fund raising as well as group entertainment.

Backyard Version Of The Sport Of Kings Is Easy

Here's a way you can go to the races for less than $10 and, when the ponies have been sent to the barn, the bankroll still is in the family—or at least the neighborhood.

It's a fine ice-breaker for parties or can be used as a fund-raising gimmick for church bazaars or other community affairs.

All you need is a couple of sheets of 3/4-inch fir plywood, some dowels, simple tools, paint and tape. Then, to play the game, it's a good idea to have mutual slips and, of course, dice.

One way to make the track is to cut one sheet of plywood length-wise, the other in strips wide enough to close in the ends. Use scraps to make bases and ends of the hurdles, a dice box and horses. You'll need two hurdles that stretch across the track. Mark the track out in six lanes, divided into an appropriate number of squares. Use black tape over the painted plywood surface for the lanes and squares.

The track can be mounted outdoors on a couple of sawhorses, or inside on a pingpong table or other supports.

A free plan which gives construction details and playing rules for the Horse Race game is available by writing Douglas Fir Plywood Association, Tacoma 2, Washington.

Public Personals Offer Readers Agony Column That's Lacking In Agony

LONDON (UPI)—Some of Britain's most hilarious reading can be found every morning in a dull gray column of classified ads on the front page of the great gray London Times.

For the most part, the ads in this famed "personals" column are in dead earnest. But for unintentional humor, take a few examples:

"Granny is coming to live with us but we can't take Pussy. Will someone offer him a home and avert feline disaster? Please help. . . ."

"Old castle required within two years for one of Britain's oldest noble families. At least partly habitable, modern conveniences unnecessary. . . ."

"For sale: Handsome but small 4-engine airliner. . . ."

Thanks to 170-odd years of such ads, the Times "personals" column has become a national tradition.

Anything and everything is offered there—from a genuine Caribbean kingship to the services of a "gentleman, 29, married, keen foxhunter."

One man appealed for someone to lend him a live walrus to take to lunch. Someone else wanted rattlesnakes, dead or alive, as mascots.

The Times "personals" column contains few personal messages. It's an "agony" column without agony—no lonely hearts or love-lorn ads.

But it's required reading for foreign journalists and anyone wanting a hearty laugh with the morning tea. It appears every morning in the same spot in one of the world's few major newspapers which—despite war, peace or the death of kings—still devotes its full front page to classified ads.

Take a few more examples.

"Will any baron not requiring his robes next Tuesday please write box. . . ."

"Skipper required to command Diesel yacht. . . ."

"Gout—Can anyone who has experienced this painful disease help a greater sufferer by telling any cure or specialist?"

"Original manuscript of two-fifths of Richard Strauss' 'electra.' Offers?"

"Country house with some land for slow sale. Last time for sale 1542. Contains, eighteenth-century wallpaper."

Is it adventure you want?

"Berths available in amphibious D.U.K.W. safari to Bechuanaland, Nyasaland, East Africa." "Girl crew for yacht: Owners of 16-ton yacht. . . . seeks two sisters or friends as crew for world cruise."

Looking for someone to hire away from England's dreary winters? "Browned-off sporting bachelor. . . . wants any interesting job under the sun." "Ex-National Service officer will do anything interesting, preferably abroad where it's hot."

But the mainstays of the Times "personals" are the just plain unusual.

"Untitled old Etoman forced to sell garage in heart of West End; three - bedroomed house thrown in. . . ."

"Label collectors — Write for particulars of new society to Secretary, Labologists' Society. . . ."
