Contest Judges Visit Gazelle Grange

GAZELLE—Judges of the community service contest sponsored nationwide by the Sears, Roebuck Foundation and the National Grange Home Economics Club, were entertained Thursday by Gazelle Grange—selected among the top 10 entrants in the national contest.

Grange members presented a three-hour review of their community service projects which were a qualification for entrance in the contest.

The judges, Harry Colglazier, master of the Kansas State Grange; Paul C. Johnson, editor of "The Prairie Farmer"; Dr. Winthrop C. Libby, dean of agriculture at the University of Maine; Claude A. Mahoney, farm editor for the Mutual Broadcasting System; and Asa H. Morgan, master of New Hampshire State Grange, were accompanied by John Kelly, controller of the Sears, Roebuck Foundation; Edward F. Holter, lecturer and contest chairman of the National Grange; Roy Battles, assistant to the master in the National Grange; Seward Foote, public relations director, National Grange; William L. Whitsett, press relations, Chicago; Mrs. Fortuna Calvo, business editor, Vision Magazine, New York; and Russ Ogg, photographer, Chicago.

The touring party was met at the Montague Airport at 10:30 a.m. and en route to Gazelle, via Yreka, viewed various projects of the grange, including the old grange building site (original building destroyed by arsonist's fire two years ago); Gazelle Community Church; roadside rest areas; fire prevention poster placements; a fire truck storage area; the fire department; a blackboard bulletin calendar and Gazelle Union Elementary School.

They also toured Gazelle Community Hall, the major project of the grange. It is a new 50-foot by 118-foot grange building—the largest in California north of Sacramento, used now as a community center.

A welcome to the touring party was given by Floyd Wright, master of the Gazelle Grange. In roductions by Chairman Holter followed. A venison stew lunch, prepared and served by the Gazelle Grange Home Economics Club, brought complimentary remarks.

Presentation of a $1,000 check to Wright by John Kelly highlighted the afternoon program, detailed by the various grange project chairmen's reports to the judges.

This award was for placing among the top 10 winners. The grange qualified for national honors after winning the state-wide Community Service Contest.

Grange chairmen and their project program included Cecil Shelley, description of the community; Floyd Wright, building of the new hall; Mrs. Pat Carter, Community Planning Community and youth recreation program; Mrs. James Eiler, aid to the little league program; Leo Schwengel, assistance in school grounds upkeep; Mrs. Edwin Buscombe, Home Economics Club Scholarship; Clarence Lacy, aid to the volunteer fire department; Mrs. William Baum, supporting the conservation program; Mrs. James Richter, community-church support; Robert Witt, maintenance of rest areas and Mrs. Chester Dougherty, general financing.

Harry Crebbin, secretary of the Yreka Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Edson Foulke, president of the Siskiyou County Fair Board, and the Rev. Harold Engdahl, minister of the Community Church, were present and spoke in behalf of the grange and its accomplishments.

Two letters were read by Shelley from William Riddiman, Siskiyou County farm adviser, and Edward Mathews, Siskiyou County fair manager, commending the grange on its participation in county programs.

Several questions were asked of the chairmen by the judges following reports.

The grange was commended by Colglazier, acting chairman of the judges, on members' foresight in planning of community projects to benefit youth in the community. They particularly commended the recreation program in preparing the 60-pupil elementary school to advancement in the larger Yreka High School.

The contingent completed the review and was transported back to Montague Airport at 3:30 p.m. for a flight to San Francisco and Chicago, Texas.

Gazelle Grange could win a cash award totaling $10,000 by placing first in the contest. Second prize is $5,000; third prize, $3,000; fourth prize, $2,000, and fifth prize, $1,500.

Ranking of the winners will be announced October 15. The top three winners will receive their awards at a special ceremony November 19 during the 94th annual session of the National Grange in Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Board Adopts Sales Tax

YREKA—The county board of supervisors adopted their controversial standby sales tax ordinance during a regular meeting here Tuesday morning.

All supervisors except William (Bill) Ealy, Yreka, approved the motion. Ealy said he favors assessing the city of Yreka 20 per cent of tax revenues on sales within the city limits, rather than the 25 per cent the ordinance calls for.

But other supervisors, weighing statistics, said they believe the county is entitled to 25 per cent, primarily because the city is the county seat.

They say $1,600,000 annually is spent to pay county employees, most of whom live in Yreka.

Supervisors next must sign an agreement with the state Board of Equalization to collect the county one-cent sales tax while that agency is collecting the state's sales tax.

The ordinance will not go into effect until all the county's incorporated communities agree to share tax revenues with the county at the following rate:

Mount Shasta and Dunsmuir, 15 per cent to the county, and 85 per cent to the city; Tulelake and Montague, 10 per cent to the county, and Fort Jones, Etna and Dorris, five per cent.

Mount Shasta, Dunsmuir and Yreka all have balked at the proposed ratios. Yreka's council has indicated it would settle for a 15-85 per cent ratio, and Mount Shasta and Dunsmuir, a 10-90 per cent ratio.

Supervisors argue that cities, even with tax-sharing ratios proposed by the county, would make as much money or more under the county ordinance, since the Board of Equalization is a much more efficient tax-collection agency than any small city can hope to be.

Hearing Set October 25

WEED — The Siskiyou County Board of Supervisors set October 25 at 10:30 a.m. for a public hearing of a move to make Weed an incorporated city.

Supervisors will meet then in a regular session. The hearing will give residents of the area proposed for incorporation a chance to protest the move or ask to be excluded from the city's new boundaries.

Weed's Incorporation Committee recently submitted to the board a petition containing more than 500 signatures of property owners within the area enclosed by the proposed city limits. That number was well over the signature of 51 per cent of registered voters within the area required by law.

The petition asked for incorporation. Opposition to the move so far has been negligible.

Pat Views Progress

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown, returned from a campaign tour of the East, said today that "while I was away, I think we really moved ahead on the water front."

Referring to the $1.75 billion water bond issue—Proposition 1 on the November election ballot—Brown said two metropolitan newspapers, the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, and Chamber of Commerce and the steelworkers and operating engineers unions backed the bond issue.

He said he had instructed Director of Water Resources Harvey O. Banks "to continue negotiating with the Metropolitan Water District" in hopes of getting its support and an agreement on a water contract for delivery of water from the Feather River Project, which would be built by the bond issue.

Brown expressed hope the people of Northern California also would back the bond issue. "We haven't emphasized flood control enough," he said. "We can't have a repetition of the 1955 floods" in Northern California.

"Without" this bond issue we will be faced with tremendous capital expenditures.

The governor also repeated his opposition to Proposition 15, which would reapportion the state Senate so that Southern California would get eight more Senate seats.

As to Proposition 5, which would increase the salaries of state legislators from $500 to $750 a month, Brown said, "I'm for it. I think legislators are entitled to more money."

Brown said he would not take a stand on other issues before the voters.

Director Vetoes Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—California Finance Director John E. Carr has come out flatly against an ambitious proposal for a new $75 million State Fair in Sacramento.

At a meeting of a State Fair Citizens Committee Monday, Carr quickly countered a disclosure by former Sacramento Mayor Clarence L. Azavedo that he and Gov. Edmund G. Brown felt California should have "the finest fair that could be built in the United States."

Azavedo said that $25 million "will not build such a fair. More money is needed."

"There is not going to be that kind of money available in the foreseeable future for the fair," Carr replied. "If you can't show that a new State Fair is going to be self-sustaining, you're going to be sunk. You cannot count on general fund support."

Los Angeles attorney Richard Keating said the future of the fair should be gauged in terms of future revenue and funds available, and that a legal opinion should be sought on the possibility of selling $13 million in authorized fair bonds.

Fuel Lee Kelly, president of the State Fair Board, said the crux of the plans for a new State Fair is the sale of the $13 million in bonds to help finance new construction on a previously purchased site on American River.

"If the bonds are sold the new fair will be on its way," Kelly said. "If they are not sold, we will be stymied. The most important thing the committee can do is sell the bonds because we can't go anywhere if we don't sell them."

Committee members agreed that evidence must be developed for bond buyers that the bonds will be repaid. The committee meets Oct. 17 in San Diego to draw up its final report to the governor.

Lad Saved By Surgery

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Emergency surgery saved the life of a 3-year-old boy Monday night after he had been pronounced dead in an ambulance.

Mr. and Mrs. Gino Voltattorni feared their son, Jerry, was dead after they found no pulse or respiration. An ambulance attendant told doctors "the boy died in the vehicle on the way to Mission Emergency Hospital."

Dr. James Hamill and Dr. Burdett Nelson opened Jerry's chest and massaged his heart. They also inserted two tubes into the windpipe to bring air to the lungs. The boy started to breathe again and doctors closed the chest and removed one of the windpipe tubes.

Jerry remained in serious condition today with a massive throat inflammation, doctors said.

Haughy, who was born in Ireland, came to this country in 1909. He has two living children, three grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and a number of nieces and nephews.

His formula for a long and happy life is "a lot of living and loving." Haughy says people should love people and learn how to laugh.
