Girl Reports 'Mommy Asleep'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mrs. Loretta Hall answered a knock at the door and looked down at the ruffled, red hair of a 5-year-old neighbor girl.

"Mommy's asleep. You'll have to feed me my supper," the youngster said.

Mrs. Hall had no reason to doubt that little Sarasue Nielsen was telling the truth. Mrs. Frances Nielsen, 40, had suffered years of pain as the result of a crippling injury, and often rested. Sarasue's father was at sea with the Military Sea Transportation Service, so Mrs. Hall placed the little girl at the supper table with her own two children.

The red-haired child didn't eat much, so Mrs. Hall finally steered her to the door, with a gentle warning that "your mommy will be calling you."

"No, mommy won't call," the child replied firmly. "She's asleep."

Then she cried a little—and walked alone down the stairway.

Sunday morning there was another knock at Mrs. Hall's door, and there stood Sarasue with a dress pulled over her pajamas.

"Mommy's still asleep. You'll have to feed me breakfast," the youngster said.

Mrs. Hall went downstairs to the Nielsen's flat—and then called authorities.

Deputies found the body of Mrs. Nielsen resting on pillows carefully placed on the floor of the flat. They said natural death had ended her pain.

The body was surrounded by the signs of little Sarasue's patient 17-hour vigil—a doll, its clothing, and a red plastic telephone which she used to make imaginary calls while she waited for "mommy" to wake up.

Christmas Gift Deadline Noted

TULELAKE — Those planning to contribute gifts for the Christmas Gift Shop at the Veterans Hospital at Palo Alto should have the articles to be shipped at Betty's Beauty Shop by October 24.

Gifts for both men and women are needed to include clothing and other items. They should not be wrapped. Patients at the hospital are given an opportunity to choose their gifts for families in the gift shop.

Assistance with this phase of rehabilitation for disabled veterans can be given by all units of the VFW Auxiliary Department.
