

WILL THE CAT get the canary? Zany perhaps, but it's all a part of the fun and foolishness planned by this committee of spooks for the annual Halloween costume party for women of Reames Auxiliary. The question will be answered October 28 at 12 noon at the clubhouse. A nuisance committee will be on hand to see that all have an enjoyable time. Each member is asked to bring a white elephant to be used as a prize during the affair. The planning committee who will be unidentifiable at the later date are, left to right, Wyoming Stiles, Ellen Clark, Mary Juckland, Claire Ellis, Mary Maxwell and Lucille Adams. — Photo by Kettler

Bonanza Club Has Meeting

BONANZA—Dora Smedley had charge of a short business meeting of the Woman's Club on Tuesday, October 4, at Bonanza library.

May Gale gave an interesting account of the annual board meeting of the Community Lounge in Klamath Falls, which she and Janet Fernland attended.

The meeting was a special day set aside as Doll Day to get clothes sewn for the doll to be given away at the bazaar in December. There were two visitors, Mrs. Sanford Jones and Mrs. Peterson from Idaho, who is visiting her son, Oscar Peterson and family.

Lillian Bechdaul brought the picture of the Bonanza library she had framed to be hung in the library.

Doris Smedley and Donna Dixon served refreshments. The special prize was won by Birdie Burk.

Lorraine Beck donated two hostess sets of dishes for the club.

Young Glass Grinders

They live in Leeuwarden — capital of The Netherlands' northernmost province of Friesland. They are typical Friesian boys with unadorned Friesian names: Auke, Jelle, Douwe, Tjeerd and Sjoerd (Ow-kuh, Yell-uh, Dow-uh, T-yaird and Shoor-d). They went to grade school together, and in the spring of this year they were graduated from a vocational high school. At school, this particular quintet had been interested in glass and lens grinding, and in this field they decided to seek employment together.

Some time ago, one of the five found a large advertisement in the paper. It had been placed by a well-known optical industry in Delft in search of young personnel. With the help of their former teacher, the five applied for the jobs in a well-worded letter, telling something about themselves and their school, and enclosing their photographs.

The Delft firm seemed more than interested. The boys were related and so was their teacher. Not so the parents. For five 17-year-olds, who had away from home, to go and live far away and right near the wicked cities of Rotterdam and The Hague was something they couldn't and wouldn't allow. And that was that.

But the optical firm wasn't that easily put off. It got in touch with the boys again, then with their parents, and finally suggested that the firm establish a branch in Leeuwarden—something in the style of Mohammed and the mountain.

The result? Indeed—a branch is being established in Leeuwarden right this instant.

PAT JOYCE, center, nursing field representative of the American Red Cross, spoke to members of Quota Club at their Tuesday luncheon meeting at the Winema Hotel. She is in Klamath Falls to conduct a training course for instructors for the home nursing and care of the sick program planned by the American Red Cross and Civil Defense and endorsed by the Quota Club. Classes will start this week and interested persons are invited to contact either office for information. Virginia Dixon, left, executive secretary of the local Red Cross, also a luncheon guest, introduced the speaker. Joy Rolph, right, is program chairman for Quota Club. — Photo by Guderian

Bethel No. 61

Initiation of new members was held at the meeting of Bethel No. 61, Order of Job's Daughters, on Monday, October 17, at the Scottish Rite Temple. This was the first ceremony under the reign of Honored Queen Nancy Hugelman and her corps of officers.

Those girls who became new Daughters of Job were Lynette Angel, Jeanne Fredrickson, Nancy Clark, Myrna Lichtenstein and Susan Paddock.

Many visitors and parents were present to witness the ceremony. Introduced were Ellen Thomas, Bethel No. 6, and Phyllis Poole, past grand guardian and deputy guardian.

Installation of the guardian council was conducted by Phyllis Poole as installing officer, assisted by Susan Parisotto, guide, and Cheryl Ball, Marshal. Installed were Natalia Reichenberg, guardian; Gus Vlahos, associate guardian; Helen McCormack, guardian secretary; Jackie Bedford, guardian treasurer; Beverly Green, guardian of music; Betty Ball, guardian of merits; Ruth by John Sykes.

Musselman, guardian of sociability; Mrs. H. E. Bispham, guardian of paraphernalia, and Larry Whytal, fraternal relations.

Natalia Reichenberg thanked the Bethel for her second term as guardian and presented a past guardian's pin to Larry Whytal for his outstanding year's service to the Bethel.

Esther Deen, librarian, reported on the book, "The Quakers," Ball, guardian of merits; Ruth by John Sykes.
