Race For US Senate In Spotlight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The focus of Oregon politics Saturday was once more on the race for the U. S. Senate between Democrat Maurine Neuberger and Republican Elmo Smith.

Mrs. Neuberger said at Portland there has been a lack of concern by high public officials for the nation's natural resource crisis. She proposed a massive program to solve it.

Smith also campaigned in Portland, riding through downtown streets in an open car with Thomas E. Dewey of New York, twice the Republican presidential nominee in the 1940s. That came after Dewey, in a speech at Hillsboro, urged Smith's election in November.

Mrs. Neuberger said in a speech to a Democratic Party meeting that there must be a "massive attack on America's natural resource conservation problems so that our nation will have the strength and material wealth to withstand the challenges of the decades ahead."

The Democratic candidate said she was dismayed by "the lack of concern expressed by some public officials over the natural resources crisis which confronts our nation." She added:

"A large share of the blame for this crisis rests with the present national administration which has failed to convey a sense of urgency in natural resource matters and which has, instead, tried to lull the American people into thinking the problem is minor and is being handled adequately."

Mrs. Neuberger said she was critical of President Eisenhower for vetoing a bill that would have given federal assistance to communities in water pollution control programs.

In his speech at Hillsboro Saturday, Dewey said the farm program advocated by the Democrats would hike the price of food 25 per cent in the nation.

Ex-Soldier Wins His Bet

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A retired Army master sergeant won $50 Thursday by breaking through President Eisenhower's security guard and shaking hands with the chief executive.

William Maurer, 52, who now works as a mail clerk, said he made a $50 bet with a fellow worker that he could shake hands with the President during Eisenhower's motorcade through San Francisco.

"Nobody tried to stop me," Maurer said. "I just said, 'Hey, Ike, remember Ft. Benning,' and he turned around, smiled and gave me a great big handshake."

Maurer said he referred to the fact that he had seen Eisenhower dedicate Stillwell Field at Ft. Benning, Ga., years ago.
