Plane Crash Kills Four At Salem

SALEM (AP)—A plane crashed soon after takeoff at McNary Field Tuesday afternoon, killing four business executives who were heading for Roseburg.

All four were killed outright in the crash. Flames quickly engulfed the plane.

They were Wilbur E. Church, 56, Portland, the pilot and regional manager for Chain Belt Co.; Robert E. Wicen, 40, engineer from the company's home office at Milwaukee, Wis.; Ray W. Smith, 57, Salem, assistant manager of Salem Iron Works; and George William Bagnall, 53, chief sales engineer for Salem Iron Works.

Church and Wicen had just picked up Smith and Bagnall to fly to Roseburg for a business conference. E. C. Rose, Oswego, Portland office manager of the chain company, had driven to Salem and planned to fly south but gave up his seat to Bagnall.

Rose watched the plane take off, turn back about a mile south of the field after losing altitude, then crash.

Two of the men were thrown from the plane by the impact. Church had nearly 2,000 hours of flying time, Rose said. He bought the plane, a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza, last spring.
