

ELECTION RETURNS GIVE NO ANSWER TO FARM PROBLEM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The election returns gave no ready answer to the question of what is going to be done to cut materially into the huge amounts of government-owned surplus farm commodities.

The Agriculture Department reported that on Sept. 30 the investment of the Commodity Credit Corporation in price support programs totaled $8,364,117,000. This included support loans of $1,589,663,000 and the cost value of inventories totaling $7,374,454,000.

This is a slight reduction from a year before when the investment was $9,007,512,000, of which loans outstanding amounted to $1,462,280,000 and inventories to $7,545,232,000.

It is this large store of surplus farm commodities which has acted as a sharp brake on prices in the market place. It has remained large in spite of shipment of great quantities of the surpluses abroad for foreign currencies, for barter goods and as outright gifts.

The CCC now owns 1,165,462,230 bushels of wheat acquired at a cost of $3,004,707,445. In addition, it has made loans of $660,943,734 on 371,435,239 bushels of wheat still owned by the farmers.

Similarly, the CCC also owns other large quantities of corn, tobacco, cotton and other commodities.

The net realized program loss on price-support operations for the three months which ended Sept. 30 totaled $124,658,137 compared with a loss of $159,870,723 for the same period last year.

New Process Reduces Bulk Of Braille Books

LONDON (AP) — A new process that halves the bulk and weight of Braille books and magazines has been announced by Britain's Royal National Institute for the Blind.

The patterns of dots for letters— which the blind read by touch— remain those invented in 1828 by Louis Braille. The secret of reducing size, weight and general bulk lies largely in the paper and the method of making the dots.

Until now the Braille alphabet has been embossed on special manila paper by distorting the fibres of the material to form raised, hollow dots. The new way is to bake solid dots of plastic ink on thin, strong paper.

The institute said the new process was solved after several years work. The breakthrough came when laboratory experts produced a paste-like plastic ink that could be impressed at tremendous heat and a paper that would not catch fire.

The post office system of Great Britain was established in 1860, during the reign of King Charles II.
