President Can Look Forward To War Of Nerves With Kremlin

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

On the international front, the president-elect can look forward to a monumental battle of nerves with the Kremlin.

The Communist leadership will waste no time in sizing up its new antagonist and laying its plans accordingly. And there are many signs to indicate that their principal weapon in the developing battle will be the use of fear.

During much of President Eisenhower's administration, the Kremlin attempted a "peace" approach. It failed to work, principally because an overdose of peaceful words and gestures produced towering problems within the Communist camp itself.

Now, while they wait for the new American president to take office in January, Soviet cold war strategists indicate they are thinking that by exploiting European, Asian, African and Latin-American fears of nuclear war, it may be possible to isolate the United States from the rest of the world and remove existing obstacles from the path of Red global expansion.

The Soviet shock approach in the opening weeks of the U. N. General Assembly session suggested Moscow might rely on a swiftly developing fear offensive aimed at keeping a new U. S. administration baffled and off balance.

The immediate objects probably would be to force a special U. N. assembly meeting—outside the United States—attended by heads of government, in an attempt to remove some of the inhibitions and prohibitions in the way of new expansionist moves.

The Kremlin leaders may have assigned Nikita Khrushchev the task of creating an atmosphere of apprehension at the United Nations that would explain his theatrical performance and violent torrent of threats.

If creation of such a mood was the purpose, Khrushchev did the job. Among apprehensive delegates representing the vast majority of the U.N. members—weaker nations caught in the middle by the giants' cold war—the impression was created that something had to be done to placate the Kremlin, or else.

How can the Kremlin use terror as a weapon in an offensive against a new U.S. administration? The U. N. performance suggested some examples.

Fear and the United Nations structure—

The U.N. peace-making machinery has annoyed the Russians ever since Korea, in areas like Laos in southeast Asia and the Congo in Africa. It might get in the way again.

Khrushchev banged his desk and virtually threatened the end of the world organization if its peace-making machinery was not changed to suit him—that is, deprived of its power to get in the Kremlin's way.

Weaker nations, leaning heavily on the United Nations as a hope for peace, displayed shock and fright. The campaign could be carried a step further at a new summit-General Assembly in the spring. The result could be a significant gain for Soviet aims.

Fear and Latin-America—

Khrushchev posed the threat of a rain of nuclear warhead rockets on the United States should it attempt to interfere with the Yankee-hating, pro - Communist regime of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The results: fear in Latin-America. A possibility of inhibiting any U.S. action that might be construed as interference with Castro. A fear in Latin-American governments of the power of Castroism when backed by Soviet threats. A net gain for Soviet policy as it attempts to nail down its foothold 90 miles from U.S. shores.

Fear and the Berlin-Germany questions—

The Kremlin thunders threats and vilification at West Germany. Against this background it can, at any moment, generate a crisis over West Berlin and hope to bring a summit convened in an atmosphere of world fear.

The Russians want West Berlin transformed into an "international city," cut off from Western occupation and protection.

The Russians propose that West Germany and Communist East Germany be completely disarmed, that all bases be dismantled, that all foreign troops be withdrawn and that both withdraw from military alliances. This could mean, eventually, withdrawal of the United States from all Europe, leaving the continent's heart under fear of non-nuclear Communist expansion.

All this does not mean smooth sailing for the Kremlin, however. At the current world Communist summit meeting in Moscow there are indications it has its own troubles.

The Kremlin has not convinced the Red Chinese or other dissident Communists that its way is the best and only one. The old-line Stalinists and the Chinese Reds chafe at Khrushchev's tactics as themselves displaying apprehension and certain signs of weakness.

Patrol Ambushed

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — An Irish patrol ambushed by Baluba tribesmen in Katanga province apparently killed 10 of the attackers and wounded 10 others in a desperate burst of fire before they were overwhelmed.

The U.N. Congo Command announced today that 10 wounded Baluba tribesmen had been captured at the site of Tuesday's ambush and 10 other tribesmen were found dead. Only two of the 11-man Irish patrol escaped unhurt.

Green Named To Study Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., Friday was named to head up a special study group for the House Labor Committee.

She was appointed to investigate what could be done to combat juvenile delinquency. The appointment was made by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N. Y., who will become head of the Labor Committee when the new Congress meets in January.

Powell also established study groups in four other fields—minimum wages, aid to [illegible] employment and automation.

Production Cuts Set In 2 Mills

PORTLAND (AP)—Production cutbacks for two more mills were announced Thursday, further cutting the Pacific Northwest lumber and plywood output.

The Boise Cascade Co. eliminated for the time one of two shifts at the sawmill and green chain it operates at La Grande, Ore. At Astoria, the Columbia-Hudson Co. shut down its mill for one month.

Forty men were affected by the La Grande cutback. The Astoria closure idled nearly 170 men although they are expected to be back on the job by Christmas.

Crow's Lumber News said steps have been taken to curtail operations of at least one-third of the Northwest's mills. Plywood production was curtailed by 18 per cent in October and so far this month has been down 20 per cent.

A Lumber News spokesman, Frank Latanzi, said lumber production was curtailed by some 5 million board feet by the curtailments at 20 mills.

Last week the lumber output was down 18 million board feet.

Major producers of plywood have ordered the curtailments in an effort to bolster firm prices and have been joined by many small firms. Latanzi estimated production is down by about 150 million square feet monthly.

He added: "This is bound to put a severe strain on the economy of towns that depend on one or two mills."

Edward Lawson, Columbia-Hudson general manager, said his company expects the market to stabilize by mid-December, which would make it possible to reopen at Astoria.

The minimum acceptable bid per M board feet is as follows: ponderosa pine $19.95, sugar pine $26.00, Shasta red fir and other species $5.00. In addition there is within the sale area an unestimated volume of all species older dead (unsound sapwood) logs which will be paid for at $3.00 per M board feet which includes required deposit for sale area betterment plus $0.00 for slash disposal. The prices bid for stumpage for live and recently dead (sound sapwood) timber whall be considered as tentative rates subject to quarterly calendar adjustment upward or downward by 0.5 of the difference between the average of the Western Pine Association Lumber Price Indices, as calculated by the Forest Service at the end of each calendar quarter, and the following base indices: Ponderosa pine $89.14, sugar pine $112.24, Shasta red fir and other species $60.61 low index, $63.65 high index for those species having double base indices, the high index shall be the base index for upward adjustment of stumpage rates and the low index shall be the base index for downward adjustment of stumpage rates. Such adjustments in the price for stumpage shall be applicable to timber scaled during the calendar quarter for which the adjustment is computed. In no event, however, shall the adjusted stumpage rates for each quarter be less than the base rates as stated above. Sealed bids will be publicly opened and posted, at the office of the District Ranger, Klamath Falls, Oregon, at 2:00 p.m., on December 16, 1960. All those who submitted a satisfactory sealed bid will be permitted immediately to continue auction bidding. If requested by the purchaser, contract terms will permit felling of timber in advance of payment up to the value of the performance bond. If an oral bid is declared to be high at the closing of the auction, the bidder must immediately confirm the oral bid by submitting it in writing on a Forest Service bid form. The right to reject any and all bids is reserved.
