

Troubled Times Ahead In International Scene

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — "I don't know what the '60s will bring except I think they will bring hard times in the international sphere."
That was Sen. John F. Kennedy talking during the presidential campaign. Now that he's president-elect, how will he cope with the international future?

He put it this way: "In my judgment we should follow the advice of Theodore Roosevelt: be strong, maintain a strong position, but also speak softly."

As a result of this thinking his campaign promises make big defense an essential part of his foreign policy.

Here are just a few of the tasks lying ahead for him:

Keeping peace in the Middle East; trying to keep communism out of Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America; strengthening this country's alliances; stiff-arming the Russians on Berlin; and, while making another stab at disarmament, building a terrible arsenal of American weapons.

His most immediately spectacular problem for some time is likely to be Soviet Premier Khrushchev, who insulted President Eisenhower and said he'd try for a summit meeting with his successor.

Kennedy has been a little foggy on the subject of meeting Khrushchev. At one point in the campaign he said that before any summit with the Russian this country must build its strength, military and economic.

At another time the only preliminary he laid down — before meeting Khrushchev — was a meeting of the foreign ministers to determine whether anything might come of a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting.

Kennedy has been very definite about his intention of stepping up American defenses with plans that range from programs on missiles to shaking up and streamlining the slow-moving Pentagon.

And, while this busy defense building was taking place, Kennedy would be planning for disarmament just in case there was agreement with the Russian on it.

Here are some of the other things he said he thought about foreign affairs:

West Berlin—The Communists want to take it over. This country is committed to keeping it free. Kennedy said this country would live up to its commitment.

Middle East—He made it clear this country should act "promptly and decisively" against any Middle East nation which attacks its neighbors.

He said the president should try to get Jews and Arabs into conference to solve their problems and promised to back up their efforts with economic and technical help.

Africa—Here he spoke of a "bold and imaginative new program for the development of Africa." He suggested that this country, along with other nations able to pay the bill, should provide education, food and development capital for Africa by setting up an international fund.

Kennedy would put reliance on the United Nations in trying to help the Africans.

Latin America—During the campaign Kennedy emphasized the need for a "new attitude and a new approach" to Latin America where Vice President Richard M. Nixon was stoned and there is considerable sympathy for Fidel Castro's anti-United States revolution in Cuba.

Cuba—Kennedy was a little vague on how he'd handle Castro, particularly after pulling a boner at one time in the campaign by suggesting anti-Castro people inside Cuba should be encouraged to act against him.

This would be internal intervention by the United States and therefore a violation of a treaty this country has with Latin American nations pledging all signers not to argue into a neighbor's internal affairs.

But Kennedy suggested: This country must immediately begin a major broadcast program for Cuba; Castro must be told he can not deny this country compensation for the American property he seized; the United States must let Khrushchev, a Castro supporter, know it will permit no expansion of his foothold in this hemisphere.

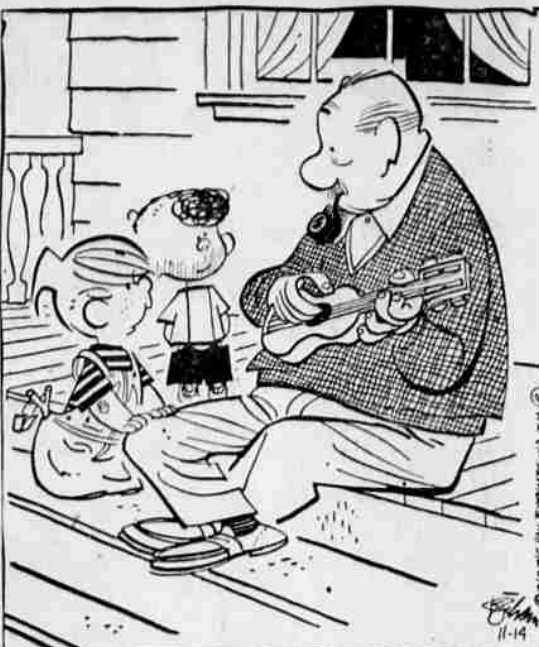

The United States, Kennedy said, should seek collective action against "communism in the Caribbean" by working with this country's European allies and the Organization of American States.

And Kennedy wants economic sanctions against Castro increased.

Foreign Aid—Kennedy would revise this country's foreign aid program. He proposed a "new joint effort by all the wealthier nations to establish funds of long-term credit for India and each of the underdeveloped nations."

All this is a big order for a new president to impose on himself. While he was making all these proposals he was also promising a multitude of new programs for America at home.

Adenauer: Age Sometimes Burden

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor
The man-of-the-week: West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.
The place: Bonn.
The quote: "Age is sometimes a burden, but it has something in its favor. He who has spent years in various public positions has gained experience that youth cannot possibly match."

The wily 84-year-old Christian Democrat who has governed West Germany ever since the country was created 11 years ago now faces what may prove to be his toughest parliamentary election campaign.

Arrayed against him is Willy Brandt, 46, Socialist mayor of West Berlin. Brandt's staunch opposition to Communist inroads on the freedom of his Soviet-encircled city has won popularity that seriously challenges Adenauer's own.

Each man will try to present himself to the electorate as America's choice for chancellor. Brandt already is arguing that the U.S. election of John F. Kennedy—a man three years his junior—proves the political tide favors the young.

Both candidates will visit Washington early next year to confer with Kennedy, Adenauer in February and Brandt in March. The chancellor is expected to arrange a second visit sometime between March and West Germany's elections in September.

Besides hopes of improving his chances of victory in the election, Adenauer has another interest in current U.S. policy. He hopes to head off an East-West summit conference on the German problem.

At a press conference Thursday, he expressed hope that the new U.S. president would "take the world a major step forward in the sphere of disarmament." He is expected to press the point that disarmament, rather than Germany, should be the chief topic of any early summit talks.

Adenauer is customarily uneasy about East-West talks which might formalize the division of Germany, abolishing whatever faint hope remains of reuniting the nation by any means short of war.

Women's Group Suggests Jack Turn In Salary

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — A Republican women's group's suggestion that millionaire John F. Kennedy turn back to the Treasury his salary as president was a "rude affront," a group of prominent writers said Friday.

The writers, including Pulitzer-prize-winning novelist McKinlay Kantor, deplored the suggestion and apologized for it.

The Sarasota County Women's Republican Club had wired Kennedy that "in view of your financial status, we suggest that you and any of your family going on the government payroll turn back to the people of the United States your respective salaries."

The women also suggested that the entire Kennedy family publish "the list of corporations which provide your income so that the people will feel reassured there is no conflict of interest in your so-called concern for the public welfare."

That request, said the writers, was "an additional gratuitous insult."

Kantor and 10 other Sarasota residents, including former United Press President Karl A. Bickel, aired their feelings in a telegram to Kennedy. They described themselves as a mixed group of Republicans and Democrats.

Other signers were playwright Alfred Hayes, novelists John D. MacDonald, Wyatt Blassingame, and Richard Glendinning, Jr.; Frederick Woltman, who won a Pulitzer Prize while a reporter for the New York World-Telegram Sun; and Stan Windhorst, columnist for the Sarasota Herald-Tribune.

Nicaragua Put On Martial Law

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua was put under martial law by President Luis Somoza Friday night after surprise rebel attacks on military barracks in two southwestern cities.

Troops were rushed to the Carazo Department, where barracks in the cities of Jinotepé and Diriamba were attacked.

A communicable said government troops will "crush any attempt to upset order and will maintain peace in the country."

Now Many Wear FALSE TEETH With More Comfort

UNVELLS NEW COPTER BORBANK, Calif. (UPI)—An "easy-to-fly," mass-produced two-seat helicopter that sells for less than $10,000 and is said to operate at a cost per mile about equal to a compact automobile will be demonstrated today by Umbaugh Aircraft Corp.

PASTEETH, a pleasant alkaline (non-acid) powder, holds false teeth more firmly. To eat and talk in more comfort, just sprinkle a little PASTEETH on your plates. No gummy "plate odor" (denture breath). Get PASTEETH at any drug counter.

Swedish Doctor Shortens Legs Of Tall Girl

SUNDSVALL, Sweden (UPI) — A Swedish surgeon said today he cut two inches off a six-foot-tall girl's long legs in an unusual operation last summer to ease "deep complexes" caused by her height.

Dr. Lars Unander-Schawin of the Institute for the Crippled and Disabled said he took two inches out of each of the girl's thighs just below the hip joint and then reinforced the cut bone ends with silver plates. The girl is now able to walk without crutches, he said.

Scharin said there was no physical necessity for the operation, and that he was reluctant to perform it "just for looks."

"I hope I'll never have to perform such an operation again," the doctor said. "At first, I refused to perform the surgery... but both the girl and her parents begged for an operation."

"Finally, it became clear that the girl suffered so deeply from her long legs that I decided to perform the surgery on humanitarian grounds."
