

Pony Enjoys Last Laugh At Neighbors Expense

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—A Shetland pony which has the run of the modern suburban home of Dr. Robert S. Darrow, had a horse laugh on angry Darrow neighbors today.

The neighbors had sought a temporary injunction to ban the 140-pound animal from the high class area until a deeds violation suit against the psychiatrist could be tried.

They were thwarted by Circuit Court Judge Jack F. White, who ruled he could not see where the pony would cause any irreparable damage to the neighborhood if left there until the trial.

Darrow said he bought the pony, "Copper Masterpiece," two months ago for his four children.

aged from 22 months to 11 years. Darrow told the judge the pony, which stands 32 inches high and is six months old, is a household pet.

He said the animal has the run of their five-bedroom home, sometimes sleeps in the house and eats at the table with his children, and is taken for Sunday drives in the family car.

Darrow was taken to court by his neighbors for an alleged violation of a clause which states no pigs, cattle, poultry or other livestock may be kept without consent of a neighborhood association.

Administration Puts Ban On Some Food Colorings

WASHINGTON (AP)—A red amounts of the color which have been shown to produce liver damage in test animals "were many times greater than the amounts of this color that would be consumed in the human diet."

Tests to date, Harvey said, "did not provide a basis for concluding that the color could cause cancer."

Dr. Arnold J. Lehman, head of the FDA's pharmacology division, said some of the test animals developed malignant (cancerous) tumors. He emphasized, however, that scientists could not say definitely that the color is a cancer-inducing agent.

Vachel Lindsay gained the name of "vagabond poet" from his unusual walking tours, on which he traded rhymes for food.

No effort will be made, however, to remove from the market foodstuffs already colored with the coal tar dye, designated Red No. 1.

John L. Harvey, deputy FDA commissioner, said "the additive is not an acute toxic substance" and "is only used in small amounts in foods, drugs and cosmetics."

Red No. 1 is not used in lipsticks, he said. The action to ban the color, however, recalled FDA action against other coal tar colors used in lipsticks. The FDA once ordered them banned but later permitted limited use of them after presumably safe levels had been established.

Gal With Green Thumb Captures Garden Honors

A gal with a green thumb, twice named Klamath County 4-H garden queen, Jean McClay, has won another honor. Jean goes in for gardening in a big way. For two years, her vegetable garden at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall McClay, 5966 Delaware, has won her the garden queen crown.

Recently her entry in the National Flower and Garden Foundation's "Young America Gardens" won further honors for this ambitious miss who will be 13 on January 11.

She was notified that her entry had won first prize for this area in the five through 12 year age group. The complete story of the contest will be carried in the December issue of Flower and Garden Magazine.

As prizes she will receive three Jackson & Perkins roses, one Clematis Plant, five raspberry plants, three "Silver Rim" Iris, two $2.50 gift certificates.

Awards are based on excellence in gardening projects.

Flower and Garden is a non-profit organization devoted to encouraging the youth of the nation in the various phases of gardening.

Linda Dean, 613 Nosler Street, has also been awarded a certificate of merit by the Flower and Garden Foundation for her entry in the contest.

State Plugs Safety Plan

Religious, civic and business leaders in Oregon are being urged to join a nationwide traffic accident prevention program emphasizing the individual's moral responsibility for traffic safety.

The program, conducted by the Association of State and Provincial Safety Coordinators, will begin in December and continue through February. Oregon's state coordinator is Edward J. Warmoth, executive secretary of the Oregon Traffic Safety Commission.

Promotion materials to help support the program will be available to all those interested in taking part.

Warmoth said these materials, which can be ordered from the national promotion office, emphasize the need to drive by the golden rule and stress traffic hazards particularly prevalent around the holiday season.

The moral responsibility program is one of four being conducted by the state safety coordinators. Others will cover child safety, summer driving hazards and woman's role in traffic safety.

Loudspeaker Rocks Dawn

ST. MATTHEWS, Ky. (AP)—It was a quiet morning and St. Matthews residents slept peacefully in the predawn calm. Suddenly there boomed into hundreds of bedrooms the raucous sound of a rock 'n' roll version of "School Days."

The source? The loudspeaker atop the St. Matthews Baptist Church, playing at full volume.

The office housing the amplifier was still locked when police, spurred by numerous calls, arrived. The turntable was still turning.

Police found no trace of the serenade's author.

COUNCIL WARNS HUNTERS

CHICAGO (UPI)—Hunters were warned to be alert for an "invisible killer," in the form of faulty trailer heaters used on cold weather hunting trips.

The warning, issued Wednesday by the National Safety Council, cautioned that certain heaters of "unsafe design" had been responsible for a number of deaths from asphyxiation by carbon monoxide poisoning in the past.
