

Haiti Expels High Church Official; Said Aiding Communist Plotters

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP)—Roman Catholic Archbishop Francois Poirier, long a foe of President Francois Duvalier, was secretly ousted from Haiti Thursday night with no baggage and no money except a borrowed dollar.

The highest church official of this Negro Catholic republic was accused of giving $7,000 to aid striking students involved by the government of being involved in Communist plotting. To deal with the strike the government declared martial law last Tuesday. Thursday it closed all schools for Christmas vacations a month ahead of time.

The archbishop, 56, said on arriving in Miami Thursday that the charges against him were "entirely false." He is going back to his native Brittany in France.

The churchman's expulsion was swift. Police and presidential guards arrested him at his office and escorted him to the airport where they bought him a ticket for Miami. He was put on a plane without any clothes except the white cassock he was wearing and with only a dollar loaned him by a priest.

The police escort refused to comment and told reporters: "We are awaiting the arrival of a friend." Claude Raymond, commander of the presidential guard, and Haitian Police Chief Daniel Beauvoir watched the departure.

A communiqué broadcast later by Defense Minister Aurele Joseph said the banishment was because the prelate aided the student strikers.

President Duvalier did not mention the expulsion when he addressed a rally of 6,000 of his partisans on the lawn of the National Palace.

Denouncing "lizards" who oppose him, he said he knew who they are and where they are hiding.

The president's supporters carried slogans declaring "Duvalier is the last formula" and "Duvalier or death."

The government's charges concerning the student strike were spelled out at a news conference by Gen. Pierre Merceron, the army chief, and Joseph Baguidy, foreign minister and acting education minister.

Haiti University students went on strike Monday demanding the release of Joseph Roney, student union treasurer, who was arrested in September on charges of distributing Communist tracts. Baguidy held up a small white flag with red hammer and sickle and the numerals "26" on it. He said the flag was found at the oldest college in the city. Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolution has been called the 26th of July Movement.

Baguidy said the strike was the work of "professional agitators, foreign and Haitian, who are brandishing the hammer and sickle."

Haiti, which shares the island of Hispaniola with the Dominican Republic, was invaded by a rebel band of 31 men in August 1959. The government said all but one were Cubans and that all were killed or captured.

At about the same time the government's dispute with church leaders bobbed up with the expulsion of two priests. They were Father Etienne Grienerberger, rector of Saint Martial, the largest Catholic College, and Father Joseph Marrec, a village priest.

Clemet Bardot, Duvalier's press secretary, said at the time that Grienerberger advised "underground elements responsible for a bombing which wounded 42 persons" and also contacted army officers in an attempt to stir up a revolt. The priest said the expulsion was part of a concerted

Officials Ask Protection For Loch Ness Monster

INVERNESS, Scotland (AP)—A police chief whose beat is the Scottish Highlands called today for a special act of Parliament to protect the Loch Ness monster against human villainy.

"At the moment we don't know whether the monster can be properly helped under the law," said J. R. Johnstone, chief constable of the County of Inverness.

"Everybody accepts that something strange lives in the Loch, but nobody knows whether it's an animal or a fish or something completely outside our experience."

Johnstone who has been county police for the past 10 years, said that without new legislation his men might not be able to stop adventurers trying to kill or catch the creature in dangerous experiments.

There have been reports that a band of young men from England intend to drop home-made depth charges into the Loch with the aim of forcing the monster to the surface where it can be captured.

"Any such nonsense will be stopped before it ever begins," Johnstone said firmly. "I would welcome real scientific investigations but bombing the monster is out of the question."

As he spoke in an interview in stately Inverness Castle, Loch Ness brooded under a thick fog. A few lights winked through the mist under the Black Mountains but they came only from fishing trawlers. If the monster was around no one could see him from the shore.

This has been a poor year for the brute. Only about a dozen sightings have been recorded in the 24-mile stretch of water which goes down to 900 feet in parts.

Most descriptions roughly coincide on the essentials: The monster is about 30 feet long, with three or more humps on its scaly back, has a lashing tail and a little flat head with bulging eyes. It is capable of great speed through the water.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A total of $21,425,402 in federal funds has been apportioned to the states for their fish and game restoration programs for this fiscal year.

Secretary of the Interior Fred Seaton says this includes a partial apportionment of $12,800,000 made available on July 1.

The funds are derived from federal excise taxes collected from the manufacturers—an 11 per cent tax on sporting guns and ammunition and a 10 per cent tax on fishing rods, reels, artificial lures, baits and flies.

Federal aid money is matched by state funds on the basis of no more than $3 federal to $1 state, although according to law the states carry out all projects with their own resources and are reimbursed for as much as 75 per cent of the cost.

This year, the maximum amount which can be received by any state for game restoration is $725,100 and the minimum $73,510. Alaska and Texas received the top amount.

For fish restoration, the maximum amount of $272,750 went to Texas, California and Alaska.

Washington received $98,993.97 for its fish program and $200,966.51 for its game program. The figures for Oregon were $109,846.50 and $359,187.41 respectively.

This Is A Case Of Bad Manners

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I do not eat meat on Friday. His sister-in-law who belongs to the same religious faith doesn't pay any attention to the religious rules. According to her it's a lot of nonsense.

I have no quarrel with her and as far as I'm concerned she can do as she pleases. However, the question I would like to ask is this: My sister-in-law and her husband go to my mother-in-law's home at least twice a week for dinner. My husband and I go, too. My mother-in-law is a marvelous cook and it is her greatest pleasure to have us over for meals.

On Fridays my mother-in-law does not serve meat. This sister-in-law brings a nice juicy steak for herself. Do you think it is proper? My mother-in-law has never complained, but I know she doesn't like it.—ASKING

Dear Asking: Your sister-in-law has poor judgment, worse manners, and apparently her religion doesn't mean anything to her either. If she is unable to live without a steak on Friday she should have the decency to stay at home and eat it by herself.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a girl 15 who has a serious problem I can't talk to anyone about. I think I am losing my mind. I have a nice home life, lovely parents and a sweet brother. We have no money worries and I get good grades in school. I have many friends — both boys and girls. For some reason I have flashes of horrible thoughts and can't seem to get rid of them.

My most frequent thought is what would happen if I died suddenly. I imagine what my funeral would be like, what the kids at school would do.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Death Overtakes Three Hitch-hiking Soldiers

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—Thanksgiving Day was only three hours and 20 minutes old.

The three hitchhiking soldiers, the automobile driver and the operator of the tractor-trailer were headed west separately on U.S. Route 22. Their Western Pennsylvania homes lay ahead.

The soldiers were on holiday leave from Fort Devens, Mass. They were racing the clock. Every minute sooner they got home, the more time they could spend with their families.

Donald Henderson, 17, who enlisted last spring, was headed for South Leechburg. He had told his sister and his widowed mother he would be home for Thanksgiving Day.

Antonio Magana Jr., 21, McKeesport, was looking forward to a turkey and all the fixings reunion with his parents, a brother and two sisters.

Harry J. Plumber, 19, was en route to Sidman to rejoin his wife, Ruth.

They never reached their destinations. Death intervened at nearby Fogelsville, more than 200 miles from the destination of each. The soldiers got a lift but they were in the car only moments before it was overrun from behind by the tractor-trailer. Only the drivers survived.

The servicemen had made good time after leaving their Army post.

They had walked through Fogelsville but didn't notice its Pennsylvania Dutch quaintness. The temperature was near freezing early Thursday and the wind was cold. A motorist stopped to pick them up.

The three climbed into the car. They never learned that their good Samaritan was Paul E. Dugan, 21, of Morann, Pa. They hardly had a chance to say thanks when the tractor-trailer rammed into the auto, telescoping it.

Magana and Henderson were killed instantly. Plumber died eight hours later in Allentown hospital.

Police said the tractor-trailer was operated by Amos Lee Manor, 51, Pittsburgh. Manor was released on $1500 bond on involuntary manslaughter charges.

Henderson had been home two weeks ago and brought along a telephone her then from Monroeville, where she was to pick him up in the family car. When she did not receive the call, she went to church. She returned home and found state police there with the news of her son's death.
