

Police Investigate Knifings

City police report a pair of knifing incidents Friday night and early Saturday but no charges have yet been preferred in either case.

Officers investigated a disturbance report at 12:30 a.m. Saturday in the alley at the rear of Clyde's Garage on Klamath Avenue.

They found Marilyn McKnight, 24, of 866 Riverside Street lying in a blood-stained pile of snow, bleeding from four knife wounds about the head.

Investigating officers report that they found evidence of a struggle having taken place, and blood stains covering about an eight square foot area.

A pocketknife was found near the victim.

She was moved to Klamath Valley Hospital where it was found she had a slash on the right side of her head that was about four inches long, and another on the left side three inches long. Both cuts had penetrated to the bone. Another laceration slashed part of her left ear and another cut through her cheek.

The woman was incoherent and could not tell officers who her assailant was.

Police expected to question the woman later. She is recovering.

The other knifing report came at about 9 p.m. Friday and officers, answering a call to the Waldorf on Main Street, were told that a knife had taken place between two women, but that both had left just before the police arrived.

They were told that a woman had come in, become belligerent and finally began a fight with an Elizabeth Nelson, Chiloquin, pulled a knife and cut her on the right side of the face.

At 9:19 p.m. police were called to Klamath Valley Hospital where they found the Nelson woman awaiting treatment for a knife wound.

She later admitted having been involved, but would not name her assailant and the case was closed.

Mother Attacks Daughter, But Fails in Death Try

SALEM (AP) — A young Salem woman was charged Saturday with attempting to kill her sleeping 8-year-old daughter.

Diane Louise Harrison, 28, was quoted by police as saying she not only tried to kill her daughter, but also planned to kill her 6-year-old son and then herself.

Police said only the strength of the daughter, Jacqueline, apparently prevented the three deaths.

Mrs. Harrison told police she awoke about 2 a.m. and decided "this must be the time."

She said she went to a closet, got a plastic bag and held it against Jacqueline's face, despite the girl's struggles, until the girl's face turned blue and she lay still.

Then, Mrs. Harrison told officers, she turned toward the bed where her son, Douglas, lay asleep.

As she started toward him, the girl stirred. Mrs. Harrison said she returned to the girl's bed and choked her with her hands.

The girl lay still again and Mrs. Harrison said she decided to go to her parents' home nearby "to get a gun and finish the job."

Telling Douglas to stay at home, she put Jacqueline in the car and drove to her parents' home and told them of her plans. They promptly took the girl into the house and called police.

The girl was semiconscious as police arrived, but doctors said she apparently was not seriously hurt.

Officers said the woman told them she feared she had a serious disease and did not want any one else to have her children.

Police said Mrs. Harrison's husband, Robert Richard Harrison, now is serving time in the Washington State Penitentiary.

PORTLAND (AP) — A man stood at the ticket booth at the Academy Theater here Friday night, pulled a gun and told the cashier, Mrs. Fred Teeney, "This is a stickup. Give me all your money."

"Why pick on me?" Mrs. Teeney asked.

"Because I'm hungry," the gunman replied.

Firemen Get Only 2 Calls

Thus far, despite the heavy precipitation, only two fire calls have been received by the city fire department in the past 24 hours.

At 4:50 p.m. Friday they were called to the Ray Worden residence at 1215 Owens Street where some falling tree limbs had broken electric wires causing 220 voltage to surge through the house.

The house was filled with smoke, and extent of damage is undetermined.

The second call came at 10:54 p.m. Friday to 2200 Reclamation, where a flooded oil stove was found at the R. Meininger residence. No damage was reported.

Court Upholds Judge Ruling

The Oregon State Supreme Court last week upheld a decision by Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg in the case of State versus Charles Junior Hood, 28-year-old Chiloquin man sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary last spring for the crime of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Hood and Louis Gibbons, 30, also of Chiloquin, were convicted of beating a companion, Cyril Bierle, with a wine bottle and a stove poker on Nov. 11, 1959.

In upholding Judge Vandenberg's handling of the case, Chief Justice George Rossman said "the instructions to the jury were unusually complete and detailed."

The case had been appealed by Hood's attorney, Glenn D. Ramirez. Justice Rossman, in the court's unanimous decision, commented that the "defendant-appellant's brief manifests scarcely a nodding acquaintance with our rules . . ."

Jury Affirms Assault Bill

The Klamath County Grand Jury Friday returned a true bill against Leroy J. Kirk for the fourth time. The 28-year-old Chiloquin man is accused of striking his cousin, Donald Kirk, with the butt of a 30-30 rifle.

Kirk's attorney, Arthur Beddoe, asked for more time to study the indictment. William H. Kirk, Leroy's 31-year-old brother, goes on trial Monday for the same crime. He is accused of assaulting Donald Kirk with an arrowhead.

Friday's special session was the final meeting of the June grand jury panel. Judge David R. Vandenberg thanked the jurors for their service. Jurors were Allen C. Aldrich, Dean DeWitt, Ronald Harper, Bertha M. Moore, Cora B. Rogers, Joye M. Ritchie and John B. Wiseman.

Possession Charge

Two 19-year-old Malin youths Friday morning were charged with being minors in possession of liquor.

William Lee Fargo and Gomer Burton McCollough were arrested in a car Thursday evening by state police on Route 86. Officers said there was a six-pack of beer in the car.

A 17-year-old passenger, also of Malin, was held for juvenile authorities.

Aunt Mamie Entertains For Special Debutantes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mamie and Ellen Moore are a pair of special debutantes.

They made their plunge into society at a historic White House tea Friday, sponsored by their aunt, Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"I'm up in a cloud," is the way dark-haired Mamie, 18, expressed her feelings afterwards. Her sister, blonde Ellen, 19, agreed.

"I thoroughly enjoyed it. Youth does something to me," said fond Aunt Mamie Eisenhower.

"We'll never forget it," added the mother of the girls, Mrs. Eisenhower's only sister, Mrs. George Gordon Moore.

The history books will record the unusual double debut, with 500 guests, including ex-White House deb Alice Roosevelt Longworth, former First Lady Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, family, school friends, socialites and official wives.

Mrs. Eisenhower said it was "an old-fashioned debut tea," the kind she remembered from girlhood, where old friends were invited to meet the daughters of a coming out age.

Fondly, with kisses and pats, Mrs. Eisenhower launched her nieces, standing in a receiving line with them and their mother in the green room beneath the imposing portrait of President John Quincy Adams.

All four wore lace dresses — Mrs. Eisenhower in royal blue, Mrs. Moore in cocoa brown and the girls in beige and brown.

The executive mansion was decked with flowers, the red-coated Marine Corps band played waltzes and show tunes, and tables were laden with goodies.

The last formal debut affair in the White House was in 1910 for Helen Taft, daughter of President William Howard Taft.

More recently, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt honored a deb in her family by holding a dance in 1938 for her niece, Eleanor Roosevelt.

"This party is a delight," said a veteran of a White House debut in 1902 — "Princess Alice" Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, wife of the vice president and the ranking guest, stayed just long enough to greet the Moore girls. Frail Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, 88, paused alone in the red room for quiet meditation before the portrait of her late husband, President Wilson.
