American Presidents and the Bible

By PAUL STEINER

■ One of the great traditions of American life, Bible reading, was dramatized 17 years ago when a Marine on Guadalcanal wrote his family asking them to join him in reading the same Bible passage each day. From this beginning has come the Worldwide Bible Reading Program, sponsored by the American Bible Society, in which Christians in 50 countries join in reading identical Bible passages each day from Thanksgiving to Christmas. The daily readings are below, as well as what some of our Presidents have said about the Bible.

"The Bible should have particular significance for Americans at this time because of the light which the Scriptures shed upon the grave and troublous times in which we are living. Most certainly, these words of Micah (6:8) speak a message to all: 'He has showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God.'"

—President-Elect John F. Kennedy

"The people know it is impossible to rightly govern without God and Bible."

—George Washington

"I have always said, and I will say, that the studious perusal of the sacred volume will make better citizens, better fathers, and better husbands."

—Thomas Jefferson

"Suppose a nation in some distant region should take the Bible for their only law book, and every member should regulate his conduct by the precepts there exhibited. Every member would be obliged in conscience to temperance and frugality and industry, to justice and kindness and charity towards his fellow men, and to piety, love, and reverence toward Almighty God."

—John Adams

"This great book... is the best gift God has given to man... But for it, we would not know right from wrong. Take all of this book upon reason that you can and the balance by faith, and you will live and die a better man."

—Abraham Lincoln

"The Bible is the most democratic book in the world."

—Theodore Roosevelt

"The Bible has stood at the back of progress... For this is a book which reveals men unto themselves, not as creatures in bondage, not as men under human authority, not as those bidden to take counsel and command from any human source. It reveals every man to himself as a distinct moral agent responsible not to men, not even to those men whom he has put over him in authority, but responsible to his Lord and Maker. Whenever a man sees this vision, he stands up a free man; whatever may be the government under which he lives, he sees beyond the circumstances of his own life."

—Woodrow Wilson

"Those of us who believe in the democratic way of life therefore take heart and courage from the fact that the Bible, after centuries of circulation, still holds its place as the world's best seller."

—Franklin D. Roosevelt

"Like stored wisdom, the lessons of the Bible are useless unless they are lifted out and employed."

—Dwight D. Eisenhower
