My Friend
Jack
Benny

By GEORGE BURNS

as told to Peer J. Oppenheimer

A funny thing happened to

IT SEEMS LIKE only yesterday that I was sitting in my dressing room in Chicago and received Jack Benny's wire from Milwaukee: "Am arriving at 10 a.m. Meet me at the station."

I promptly wired back: "Glad you're coming to Chicago. What time do you arrive?"

A couple of hours later, Jack's second telegram was delivered. "I'll be there at 10 o'clock."

My second message went out by return wire: "If you don't tell me what time you're coming, I'll see you later at the hotel."

Three hours later, about 35 wires, sent by actor-friends of Jack, arrived simultaneously from all over the United States: "Jack Benny will be in Chicago at 10 o'clock."

I didn't meet him at the station, but I plastered the telegrams all over my dressing room. When Jack came to my room the next morning and wanted to know why I hadn't met the train, I said: "Because I didn't know what time you were coming in."

Jack and I exchanged such crazy—and expensive—communications for years until my Gracie and his Mary—his wife of 34 years—insisted we'd go broke if we didn't stop. So we switched to the telephone.

I would call him from almost anywhere, then hang up in the middle of the conversation. After a while it ceased to be funny, but I continued doing it because if I didn't Jack would think I was angry at him.

When Jack played Milwaukee once, comic Benny Rubin was there in a show and Jack made Rubin a $25 bet that
