Thornton To Ask Move Be Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert Y. Thornton, Oregon attorney general, said today he would ask Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield to hold up the moving of the Northwest Regional Post Office from Portland, Ore., to Seattle, Wash.

Before meeting this afternoon with Summerfield, Thornton said he would ask him to delay the move pending a public hearing.

He said he would "express the dissatisfaction on both sides of the political aisle in Oregon" with the proposal.

Thornton added he had talked about the move with all Oregon members of Congress, members of the House and Senate Post Office committees, and other officials.

He said he had also been investigating legal aspects of the proposed move, but declined to elaborate.

down for a cup of coffee before strutting out.

Lilla Reister, a waitress at the Jumbo Drive-In, said she and a car hop were in the restaurant about 12:30 a.m. when the man walked in.

She said she asked what he was going to have. He pulled a revolver and said: "money."

Mrs. Reister said she took money from a cash register and handed it to him. He put it and the pistol into a coat pocket.

"On second thought, I'll have a cup of coffee," he told Mrs. Reister. He took a sip and then walked out—without paying for it.

Portland Meters Coughed Up

PORTLAND (AP) — The city's parking meters coughed up a $703,214 payoff in the 1959-60 fiscal year and the take should be even heavier in the current one.

Deputy City Auditor Charles Spear said the meters contributed $703,214 to municipal income, which increased to $775,045 for 1959-60. He estimated the meters will produce $714,000 in the 1960-61 year.

Other income included $579,224 from fines and $546,832 from forfeitures in municipal court. Most of this money came from traffic violators.

Estimates are that fines will total about $550,000 and forfeitures about $525,000 in the 1960-61 year.

But, Spear added, total revenue probably will be down—to about $49,235,000.

SALEM (AP) — Gov. Mark Hatfield will speak Friday night in Portland to the Pacific Coast Section of the American College Health Association.

Hatfield's schedule this week calls for most of his time to be spent in the office.

He also will meet Friday with delegates to a Council on Aging who will assemble at the state Capitol.

At 2 p.m. Tuesday, he will attend a meeting of his Natural Resources Committee.

Liquor's Okay When Not 'Needed'

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann: Both my husband and I are sick and tired of listening to you knock liquor. You are probably a lush yourself.

Perhaps the lady doth protest too much. My husband and I both enjoy a martini before dinner at night, and we've found that it relaxes us after a hard day's work.

Neither of us has seen snakes or pink elephants, and we've never hit a lightpost, been evicted from a night club or landed in jail.

We own two cycles, and he has purchased every kind of extra chrome gadget available. He has two expensive outfits, complete with helmets, goggles, gloves and fancy leather jackets (one jacket is black, the other white).

Dear Ann Landers: I have often heard gossip about secretaries who have lunch with the boss. I work in a small office. My boss often asks me to have lunch with him in a nearby (and very public) restaurant because it affords an opportunity to discuss business matters during mealtime.

Dear Widow: No activity is good when it takes a married man away from his family and eats into the family budget.

Hold-Up On Dam Building Draws PNP Protests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys objected Monday to parts of an Interior Department report recommending that construction of power plants on the middle Snake River bordering Idaho and Oregon be held up.

The position was voiced at a hearing of a Federal Power Commission hearing on competing applications for hydroelectric project licenses.

The Pacific Northwest Power Co. (PNP) seeks to build the High Mountain Sheep project. The Washington Public Power Supply system (WPPSS) wants a license or the nearby Nez Perce project.

Attorneys for the two parties did not outline their specific objections to the Interior Department report.

Examiner William C. Levy said all parties to the proceeding would be permitted to criticize any statement in the report as the hearing proceeds.

In the report to Chairman Jerome K. Ruykendall of the power commission, Elmer F. Bennett, undersecretary of interior, said that because of prospects for increased power in the northwest under proposed Canadian-United States cooperative development of Columbia River water resources "we believe it is unnecessary at this time and for some years to come to undertake any project in this (middle Snake) area."

WPPSS has been turned down in its request to postpone the hearing until Jan. 9 and to take depositions from two FPC officials in connection with staff testimony in the case.

Cross-examination of Charles C. Bonin, engineering manager for Ebasco Services who supervised preparation of engineering and economic studies for PNP, continued as the hearing resumed after a week's recess.

Bonin was questioned on technical details of dam design, construction and cost estimates.

Gov. Hatfield Is Mum On Pearson's Actions

PORTLAND (AP) — The moves by acting Gov. Walter Pearson drew no criticism from Gov. Mark Hatfield on his return Monday night from a trip to South America.

Republican Hatfield was asked about Democratic Pearson's actions to try to halt a move of the regional postoffice from Portland to Seattle, and to free Chester Lincoln Fitzwater, 47, Lebanon, from prison.

Of the postoffice action, Hatfield said, "I welcome any attempt by any individual to retain the Portland postoffice."

Hatfield said he had talked with Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield in Washington prior to the South American trip. He called the postoffice move "capricious, arbitrary and without foundations of logic or reason."

At no time have I had presented to me valid material that would indicate a reason for the move.

Of the release of Fitzwater, who had been convicted of killing his wife, Hatfield said, "He (Pearson) has every bit as much legal authority to do this as I would have if I were making the decision." He made no further comment.

The governor was accompanied by his wife and his legal assistant, Loren D. Hicks, who made the tour of Brazil and Argentina with 28 other governors.

All said they were impressed with the good will still apparent toward the United States. Hatfield urged increased economic and cultural ties with South America.

Vote Recount Is Continuing

SEATTLE (AP) — The recount of ballots cast in the close 7th District congressional race continued Tuesday pending court action on a legal move designed to halt the recount.

The 16-vote margin of Democratic Rep. Don Magnuson, who instigated the move to stop the recount, slipped to 108 Monday night after all absentee ballots were rechecked.

The King County Auditor's office said errors were discovered in the absentee ballots, which, when corrected, took away seven votes from Magnuson and gave one to his Republican opponent, John Stender.

After the recount of the absentees, the total vote was Magnuson 95,832 and Stender 95,324.

CLAIMS ARE FILED
SALEM (AP) — About 1,000 insurance claims seeking damages of about $100,000, have been filed in the Salem and nearby coast areas in the wake of last week's storms and floods, a Salem firm said today.

Some 1,000 buildings were damaged in the city, the General Adjustment Bureau said.

Insurance policies generally cover damage due to wind, but do not protect against floods, officials said.

SEED GROWERS MEET
PORTLAND (AP) — Some 300 growers continued Tuesday the annual convention of the Oregon Seed Growers League, discussing problems of a $20 million industry.

Horace Bolster, a U.S. Department of Agriculture seed marketing specialist, forecast a fair to good market for seed in Europe this season. But, he added, the long range outlook for export markets is not favorable.

Another speaker was G. Burton Wood, head of Oregon State College's department of agriculture economics. He said the trend in farming is toward larger, more efficient units. He predicted that by 1970, agriculture will produce an excess of 8 to 10 per cent of food and fibres, compared with the present 3 to 6 per cent.

METER TAKE HEAVY
SALEM (AP) — The state Industrial Accident Commission said today it received last week claims for 1,048 accidents, six of them fatal.
