Songs Have Been Sung, Poems Written; Eyes

Galsworthy looks long into the face and says, "One's eyes are what one is, one's mouth what one becomes." The English had an old proverb: "In the forehead and the eye, the lecture of the mind doth lie." And the Latins too: "The face is the image of the soul, and the eyes are its interpreter." Fuller compares the eyes as the "pearl of the face." And Shakespeare concludes that "woman's eyes teach more beauty than any author in the world." Toasts have been made "Drink to me only with thine eyes, and I will pledge with mine." Songs have been sung by Helen O'Connell to "those cool and limpid green eyes" and Anna Held to brown eyes. "I can't make my eyes behave. Two bad brown eyes, I am their slave." And people will never forget the captive eyes of Theda Bara. Cleopatra and Barney Google with his Goo, Goo, Googly eyes.
