

Just Sick Women Like Beatings

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: I'm a peace-loving guy, 26. I'm not handsome, but I'm 5-11, weigh 170 pounds, have read a book or two, and I hold a promising position with a good firm. I don't make much of a hit with girls and I've always thought it's because I'm not aggressive. I talked with a buddy recently and he has more girls on his trail than he can handle. I asked for the "formula." He told me that women like to be treated rough. He said he slaps 'em if they get too mouthy in an argument.

I was amazed. I've never hit a woman in my life and can't see myself doing it. If this is what they like maybe I'd better learn how. Please comment. — NO ROMEO

Dear Romeo: Some women DO like to get batted around, but they're sick. These poor things probably had fathers who were brutal and are attracted to these miserable types because it reminds them of dear ol' dad. Most women want no part of physical violence and they will not tolerate it. If you try hitting a normal woman I promise you you'll see stars no astrologer ever heard of.

Dear Ann Landers: We've been married 11 years and during that time we've become involved in a demanding and vigorous social routine. It was fun in the early years but now we admit the card-playing, barbecues, and cocktail parties are a bore. The financial strain is beginning to show, too. But we hate to offend our friends by refusing their invitations. How can we get off this merry-go-round? — M AND N

Dear M and N: How did you get off the merry-go-round at the fairgrounds when you were a little girl? When the music slowed down or stopped momentarily, you just got off. This method still works.

Interests change as time goes on. Couples you found fascinating at 23 may bore you at 34. It takes a lot of "wow-power" to refuse an invitation and just stay at home, but if you are serious about withdrawing from the rat race, there's no other way.

Dear Ann Landers: You'll never print this letter because it isn't interesting enough, but I wanted to let you know that there are some people in this world who lead decent, wholesome lives. I'm not beautiful and my husband isn't handsome. We've been married 14 years and the house is almost ours. The car is a '55 Chevy but it gets us there. Our kids are fairly well-behaved, all four of them. There's not a genius in the bunch, but they are a joy to us.

If my husband wants to work a night or two a week, I don't worry that he's seeing some cutie. We serve liquor but don't drink it so we don't have that problem. We have an occasional bling, but nobody stays mad long.

I'm sure there must be others like us around but your readers never hear about them. Thanks for taking the time to read this. I enjoyed writing it. — JUST FOLKS

Dear Folks: I don't get many

Producers Deny Lapse In Morals

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—"We do not agree that Hollywood has made a 'bold and unprecedented' departure from previously accepted moral standards," says the Association of Motion Picture Producers.

The association commented Wednesday on a statement issued in Washington in which a committee of bishops urged the 40 million U.S. Roman Catholics to stay away from movies not meeting acceptable standards.

"We do not agree that 'objectionable films' have created a 'national crisis,'" the producers' statement said. "We do not agree that the production code administration is 'presently ineffective.' The facts do not support any such conclusion."

Last Of Romanoffs Is Buried

TORONTO (UPI)—Grand Duchess Olga, 79, the last of the shattered House of the Romanoffs of imperial Russia, was buried Wednesday.

At least 300 mourners, including scores of bluebloods, attended the funeral services at the Russian Orthodox Christ the Savior Cathedral.

Olga, daughter of Czar Alexander III and the last direct link with the ruling branch of imperial Russia, died last week while visiting a friend in Toronto.

She was buried at York Cemetery at the side of her second husband, Col. Nikolai Kulikovskiy, an officer of the Imperial Guard. The grand duchess is survived by two sons, Tihon, 43, and Gurri, 41, both living in Canada.

Funeral services were conducted by Bishop Ioan of San Francisco, a friend of the grand duchess.

Olga took with her to the grave the last link with the Romanoffs, a dynasty which was born out of chaos and ended in chaos, but which during its three centuries carved out modern Russia.

IKE RENTS HOME

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Times says President Eisenhower has rented a home on the Southern California desert and plans a two-month vacation there after he leaves office. The dwelling is a palatial one overlooking the Elfordo Country Club at Palm Desert, 100 miles east of here.
