

Pictures Shock Boy's Mother

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: I found something in my son's room to lay that just made me sick. If I hadn't been snooping I would confront him with it. This summer he worked and didn't seem to save much money. I came across the key to his chest, and snooped, hoping to find that he had stashed away a few dollars. Instead I found an assortment of disgusting hand-drawn pictures. I didn't show these things to his father because he's a short-tempered man and would probably have thrown the boy out of the house.

I'm not a goody-goody mother who thinks her own children are perfect, but I must say this was a shock. He's 17, an excellent student, a regular church-goer and has never caused us any trouble. What shall I do?—H.M.
Dear H.M.: You must not let the boy know you found the pictures. Most young people see some pornographic material at one time or another. Broach the subject in an off-hand way, (perhaps you can point out something in a magazine which is borderline). Make the point that people who get kicks from dirty pictures are not grown up regardless of their age. Understating your viewpoint will be more effective than clobbering the boy.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend of mine who comes from a cultured and educated family announced that her engagement is off. We don't know who broke it, but we don't feel it makes any difference. We think she should return the engagement gifts and give the fellow back the ring.

The girl has switched the engagement ring to her other hand and told me she has no intention of returning it. I can't imagine a girl wanting to keep a ring that belonged to a fellow she didn't want to marry—or one who didn't want to marry her. The ring is very beautiful and it must have put him back plenty. What do you say?—PENNY
Dear Penny: The girl definitely should return the engagement gifts. She may keep the ring however, if he broke the engagement. Nonetheless, I'm at a loss to understand why a girl would want to keep a ring which symbolizes a shattered romance. But some girls do. Perhaps it's comfort for the ego to be able to say, "Well, at least I got something out of the skunk."

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a husband who says, "Tomorrow is your birthday! Gee, honey, I almost forgot... what do you want?" And then when you tell him he says, "I've only got a few bucks, could you make me a loan?" And then when you give him $4 to put toward your birthday gift he comes home the next day and says, "I hope you don't mind but a guy at the shop offered to sell me his bowling ball at a real bargain so I used your birthday money." End of story.—GIFTLISS
Dear End: Next year give him a quarter and tell him to buy you a card.

Confidential to Dumbest Woman Alive: You aren't dumb—you're just not informed. Many people have written to me about the same problem. I can't discuss it in print, but your doctor can give you literature which will be helpful. Don't feel ashamed or guilty. You're not alone.

If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Reynard did not have long to wait before Jeremiah Kat, Arabella Han and Erasmus Lamb approached the morsels set beside the inn by the wily fox without a toil.

Out of the black night sprang the fox, his teeth flashing like knives.

Aggressive Educators Get Credit For State's Outstanding Schools

SALEM (AP)—The Oregon Board of Education will get a report on Oregon's public school system when it meets here Tuesday and Wednesday.

Few states have been rated so consistently "tops" on education achievement as has Oregon, the board will be told.

A report credits this achievement to leadership from aggressive educators.

"Undoubtedly Oregon does have one of the better systems," said Jim Turnbull, deputy state superintendent of schools.

A report issued last January by the National Education Association and based on 1959 data is quoted in the report. It rated school systems in 20 varying fields.

A composite of this report by Walter Crosby Eells in the education magazine, Overview, rated Oregon 3rd in the educational factors in the survey and 15th in the financial factors. The so-called educational factors were chiefly a compilation of the amount of schooling a resident. It had little to do with intelligence.

The original NEA report did not attempt to rank the states as a whole and said: "To date, no one has been able to analyze, assign appropriate weightings to and summarize in a meaningful way all the complex factors that must be considered in placing a value on a state's system of public education."

The State Department of Education cited as assets in Oregon the leadership of elementary supervisors, workshops for in-service training for teachers, consultant service, curriculum improvement and elementary staff competencies.

The report said it is essential that members of the staff continue to study and said it is rare not to find a member on educational leave and others taking night extension courses.

There has been a concerted effort in Oregon elementary schools to keep class loads within the ratio believed to give the best pupil-teacher relationship, the report said.

It said the recommended range is from 20 to 30 children for a single-grade class. It said more than 30 is an overload.

The report said that in Oregon 71 per cent of the single-grade classes contain 20 to 30 pupils. Another 21.65 per cent contain more than 30 and 8 per cent have less than 20 students.

The department reported that 74 per cent of the teachers in Oregon elementary schools have from four to five years of preparation and 4.3 per cent have ad-

Texans Will Build Resort For $3 Million At Eugene

EUGENE (AP)—Plans for a $3 million resort-executive hotel and country club on 1,360 acres adjacent to Eugene's Municipal Airport were announced today. The site is six miles west of Eugene. Preliminary plans call for a 200-room, four-story hotel, an 18 hole golf course, a heated indoor swimming pool, tennis courts, and convention facilities for 600 persons.

The announcement was made by H. D. Boncher, vice president of Dresser Industries, associated in the development with a group of Texas industrialists.

Construction may start as early as March, with completion possibly a year later.

Options on six properties comprising the 1,360 acres were completed Wednesday by Dave Van Fossen, a Eugene industrial realtor.

Van Fossen said the option price is $718,660 on the property, located generally between Mahlon Sweet Municipal Airport and the old Highway 99, and then north some three miles. The property now is farm land, he added.

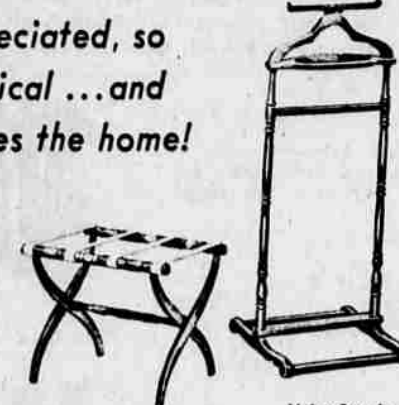

GUARD, FURS MISSING
CHICAGO (UPI)—Police today wondered where oh where could $10,000 worth of furs and a little dog have gone.

The dog—a Scottish terrier named "Scotty"—had been assigned to guard a parked truck containing the furs. Both dog and furs were stolen Wednesday.
