Mrs. Cornett Delegate To Capital Conference

Mrs. Marshall Cornett will be one of 18 Oregon delegates who will attend the White House Conference on the Aging called by President Eisenhower for Jan. 9-12 in Washington, D.C.

Plans for the conference were brought back to Oregon by Dr. Wesley G. Nicholson, Eugene, chairman of the Oregon State Council on Aging, and Gov. Hatfield's designee in charge of state activities. He made the trip to the capital with Mrs. Georgia Patterson, a member from Oregon of the National Advisory Committee which has assisted Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Arthur S. Fleming in the past 18 months in arranging the White House Conference.

President Eisenhower will address the opening session of the conference which will draw more than 2,700 delegates from the 50 states. From its findings in the four-day meeting are expected also in other states and that the panel discussions in Washington will boil down much substantial data.

He regards it most likely that considerable attention will have to be given to medical care for the elderly, since at present only five states have begun work seriously on implementing the medical care law passed by Congress in the last days before the political conventions. He agrees with most others who have studied the current law that it is faulty in not setting up proper standards and that many worthy cases may not be covered. He regards it likely that Congress will revamp the present law and spell out many of the points being debated.

Dr. Nicholson is one of five members of the committee set up by Governor Hatfield to try to analyze the law as it applies to Oregon so that the coming legislative session can make the necessary appropriations, keeping the state's budget in line but still affording the relief necessary.

The Washington conference, however, has at least 20 fields to explore in regard to the problems of the aging. As a consequence a dozen of the larger Washington hotels will be buzzing with group discussions, addressed by scores of authorities in the field of aging. There will also be plenary or full-delegation meetings in Constitution Hall.

Virtually all the waking hours of the four-day session will be filled with business. One small evening period has been set aside for sociability. Expenses of the elaborate meeting have been provided by Congress and the delegates will be confronted with ample business, Dr. Nicholson points out.

On their return from Washington it is planned for the Oregon delegation to address many groups and district aging councils. Most of the delegates are long-time students of the problems of aging. Few are governmental or state officials and generally they represent many sections of the state and many businesses and occupations.

The delegates from Oregon are Elizabeth Baldwin, Portland; Jessie L. Brodie, M.D., Portland; Don Chapman, Portland; Mrs. Marshall Cornett, Klamath Falls; James H. Crockwell, Portland; Arthur L. Crookham, Portland; Harold M. Gowing, Portland; Julia G. Johnson, Eugene; Mrs. George P. Kouns, Albany; Eli McConkey, Astoria; Dr. Wesley G. Nicholson, Eugene; Edward E. Rosenbaum, M.D., Portland; Dr. Adolph J. Roth, La Grande; Mrs. Margaret M. Sharp, Portland; Dr. Clara Simerville, Corvallis; Ray A. Ziegler, Portland; and Mrs. Clifford Zollinger, Portland.

Oregon has approximately 185,000 persons above 65 years of age.

Work To Begin On New Center

PORTLAND (AP) — The first phase of major construction will start soon on the Oregon Primate Research Center in Washington County, it was announced today by the Medical Research Foundation of Oregon.

The $280,725.40 contract for the work was awarded to the Donald M. Drake Company of Portland.

The center is being established under a grant from the Heart Council of the National Institutes of Health, to study the rhesus monkey in an effort to learn more about diseases which afflict man.

The initial construction will include the main building, access roads and sewage facilities.

Accident Rate May Set A Low

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's accident death rate may hit a record low this year, the National Safety Council says. But fatal mishaps are on the increase.

The council attributes the contradiction to a steady rise in the nation's population which is outdistancing the death rate from accidents of all kinds.

The council said statistics for the first nine months this year indicate a death rate for the year of 51.1 for every 100,000 persons. The low record of 52.4 deaths was set in 1959.

Fatal accidents for the first nine months totaled 68,500, an increase of one per cent over the same period last year.

Non-fatal accidents have increased two per cent.

FB Meet Draws KF People

The 29th annual Oregon Farm Bureau convention was held in Eugene Nov. 13-16.

Those attending from Klamath County were Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Kerns, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Harnsberger Sr., Leland Cheyne, Mrs. Harold Campbell, Linda Taylor and Marlee Breithaupt from Klamath Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Lavern Hankins and Lloyd Hankins from Bonanza. Also attending were Glenn Dowers, claims adjuster for Oregon Farm Bureau Insurance Company; and Mrs. Dowers, Klamath Falls, and John Tofell, service representative, and Mrs. Tofell, Bonanza.

The annual address delivered by President Gerald Detering entitled "Farming the Farmer" advised that farmers themselves must work hard to keep outsiders from "farming the farmer." The alternative to more and heavier taxes, he said, is to be better informed on tax matters and be very vigilant in making better use of our tax dollars.

O. W. Fillerup, manager, Council of California Growers, talked on "The Union Threat to Agriculture." He stated they must first make the public recognize the vast difference between unionization of farm groups and industry. In a steel strike, steel piles up and waits for the strike to end.

A farmer cannot take up where he left off when the strike was called, he said.

Mrs. Haven Smith, chairman, American Farm Bureau Women, was one of the speakers at the convention. In her address to the general session, she said, "We should take time to do what we want to do today and not put it off until tomorrow or next week, or next year. The time to live is now."

Other speakers were W. T. Harrison, president, National Right to Work Committee, and Dr. Orlo M. Brees, public relations representative, Western Division of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Individual commodity conferences were held during the three-day meeting to analyze the problems of each commodity in the state. Awards were given to individuals for outstanding service in their particular fields. Earl G. Kerns received the award in livestock.
