HOLIDAY BAZAARS have long been an important part of holiday and pre-holiday preparations the world over. Klamath Falls is no exception as this page of pictures indicates. Photographer Wes Guderian called at St. Paul's Episcopal Parish Hall the day preceding their bazaar to find a flurry of activity as the women were putting finishing touches to "An Old-Fashioned Christmas."

THE TOY STORE was easily located by the sign made of large building blocks, being tacked in place in the picture at right by Mrs. Ralph Benoist, who uses her shoe as a hammer. Her assistant is Mrs. Edna Carnahan.

JEWELLED BIRDS are displayed on a driftwood tree by Mrs. John Renning. In the background is a Nativity scene fashioned of felt with bead and sequin trim.

THE KLAMATH LUTHERAN CHURCH was a lively place, too, when the photographer arrived. Their bazaar was well in progress with many visitors looking, buying, getting ideas and in general enjoying themselves. Seated above, left to right, Mrs. Florence Goddard, Mrs. William Canton and Mrs. Chester Laurhammer were just three of the many who enjoyed the usual fine dishes served by the church women for luncheon. They are served by Mrs. John Ferrell.
