Advisory Group Urges Quick Work On Chemical Milk Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department should give "high priority" to development of rapid screening tests to uncover traces of pest-control chemicals in milk, an advisory group said today.

The department's dairy research and marketing advisory committee said presently available testing methods are not fast enough to be practical in the fast-moving milk marketing system.

The search for an improved testing system was spurred by the Food Drug Administration's campaign, launched last year, to put teeth into enforcement of its regulations banning the presence of pesticide residues in milk.

The ban extends even to small traces of some common agricultural pest-control materials which are regarded as safe when found on other foods.

FDA has taken the position, on the advice of some medical authorities, that no residues at all should be permitted in milk because it occupies a special place in the diets of infants and elderly people.

Milk and other dairy products which contain pesticide residues when they are shipped in interstate commerce are subject to seizure by federal agents. Development of a fast, practical test will enable dairies to detect residues in raw milk picked up from farms before the milk was mixed into general supplies for bottling or processing.

Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson made a plea Wednesday that "a kind of Providence (will) give our new leaders... vision and courage."

Benson said in his prayer for help for the Kennedy administration that "We sorely need the blessing of almighty God in the halls of government, in our homes, in our offices, factories, and shops, and on the farms."

Benson, an official of the Mormon church, included the plea for spiritual guidance in a speech to a Washington Rotary Club meeting.

The Agriculture Department has issued an order banning imports of sheep, cattle, other domestic ruminants and swine from Sweden because of an outbreak there of foot-and-mouth disease.

The Soil Conservation Service said there was marked progress in construction and the installation of land treatment measures in fiscal 1960.

The treatment measures and construction considered of contour cultivation, contour stripcropping, and grass waterways in the 11 major watersheds authorized by the 1944 Flood Control Act, the pilot watershed project authorized by the 1953 Agriculture Appropriations Act and the projects authorized under the 1954 Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act.

Radar Operator Warned Plane Pilot Of 'Target'

NEW YORK (AP) — Moments before two airliners collided in snow-laden skies above New York City a radar operator at La Guardia Airport warned one of the pilots: "Unidentified target at 3 o'clock and about eight miles."

Then, seconds later, he warned again: "A target about two miles off at 2 o'clock."

The pilot, Capt. David Wollman, acknowledged both times.

The radarman noted that both blips on his screen then seemed to merge and pursued a straight line. A second blip fell off in "a slight right hook and disappeared."

What the operator apparently had seen on his screen—although he didn't know it at the time—was history's worst aviation disaster.

For the plane he had warned was a Trans World Airlines Constellation heading for La Guardia. The blip approaching the TWA propeller-driven craft at 3 o'clock, or off his starboard wing, was a United Air Lines DC8 jet liner.

The merging of the blips—collision. The jet, mortally wounded, crashed into a residential area in Brooklyn. The stricken TWA plane came down on Staten Island. The disaster last Friday took at least 135 lives of passengers and Brooklyn residents.

Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, Federal Aviation Agency administrator, said Monday in Washington that the jet was 11 miles from where it should have been when it collided with the TWA plane.

Quesada said he had informed President Eisenhower of this, adding that he also had told the President one of two electronic navigation aids aboard the DC8 was out of commission at the time.

But this should not have caused the jet plane to stray from its course, and it should not have been over Staten Island when the collision occurred, he said.

Details of the radarman's warning to the TWA pilot were disclosed in Quesada's news conference.
