

Watch for Them in '61 (Continued from page 11)

We Resolve!

*Mike Nichols and Elaine May,
the nation's favorite new comedy team,
let you in on how they intend to become better people in '61*

"I will try to assert myself more."

"I will dance only with girls my own height."

"I will smoke only when I really need to."

■ It's an accepted fact that by Jan. 2 for every ten New Year's resolutions made, nine are broken. In fact, it's highly likely that pangs of conscience over broken resolutions are equalled only by the pangs of recalling New Year's Eve foolishness. ■ For years, the brilliant young comedy team of Mike Nichols and Elaine May have resolved to reform and lead the good, simple, conventional life. Fortunately for their multitude of fans, they fail every time. ■ Nevertheless, they have taken time out from their Broadway hit, "An Evening with Mike Nichols and Elaine May," to show FAMILY WEEKLY that they are still trying. See how easy it is? Now everyone can relax and enjoy 1961 as much as 1960.
