

Hearing Isn't Believing

A housewife calls her husband
From workshop, yard, or den
When dinner's on the table,
And calls him once again.

She's glad, of course, on hearing
At last that voice of his,
But also knows "I'm coming"
Doesn't mean he is.

"It depends on the cars," the child said.

"What do cars have to do with it?"

"The patrol boy who takes us across the street makes us wait until some cars come along so he can stop them," the youngster explained.

The young girl closed her eyes in horror. "Oh, dear," she cried. "I never gave that a thought! Washington is D.C., and all our wedding gifts are A.C.!"

A tearful lady appeared before the judge who had just sentenced her boy friend to jail for burglary. "Your honor," she sobbed, "would you please marry us before the bailiff takes him away?"

"What?" said the surprised judge. "You want to marry this man after learning what he is—a second-story man, burglar, footpad!"

"Well," the woman explained, "I've always wanted to be married to a man who's quiet around the house and picks things up."
