

Egotist Hubby Is Very Rude

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a swell dancer and he sure does know it. Whenever we are out on a party or with a crowd he asks me to dance and the minute he spots a better dancer on the floor he grabs her and throws me at her partner.

This has happened to me many times it's beginning to irritate me beyond endurance. I've told him it's not only insulting to me but there is always the possibility that the girl he grabs may prefer the guy she's dancing with. He says I'm overly touchy and that no girl has ever complained.

I told him I was writing to you and he said you'll surely see the humor in the situation and tell me I'm wrong. Am I?—NO EXPERT

Dear No: This is about as funny as a four-alarm fire in a home for the aged. Your husband's behavior is unacceptably rude and he must have a colossal ego to assume that every woman he encounters would rather dance with him than anyone else.

Tell him if he pulls this stunt again you will walk off the floor and leave him to battle it out with the man whose partner he tries to snatch.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a fellow 19 and in love with a girl who is afraid of all men. Her father beats her and uses bad language. He also hits his wife and slaps the other kids.

I want to marry this girl and take her out of that terrible home but she says she doesn't trust me and that I will probably treat her like her father treats her mother.

I've always been kind to this girl and I've never hit a woman in my life. What can I do to get her to marry me? She is of legal age and could leave whenever she wants to.—IN LOVE

Dear In Love: This girl's home situation has twisted her thinking and I don't think you can easily untwist it.

The normal reaction of a normal girl would be to leave a punishing situation at the earliest possible minute. Since she chooses to stay at home and get belted around I don't think you should try to talk her into marriage. Find a new girl.

(P.S. She'll probably run off with the first guy who kisses her around like Dear Ol' Dad.)

Dear Ann Landers: Is there anything wrong with an 18-year-old boy phoning a girl, 16, at 4 o'clock in the morning?

Our daughter has been going steady with Rick and they see each other every day, even if only for a minute. Rick works nights and our daughter is in high school.

We have a phone with a long cord in the upstairs hall. Our daughter often takes the phone into her room and closes the door. Then if she gets a call no one else in the house is disturbed.

This morning she was giggling about the fact that Rick had phoned her at 4 a.m. just for kicks. I thought it was rather cute but her father blew his top. Is there anything wrong with this?—NOT SURE

Dear No: There's a time and a place for everything. Four o'clock in the morning is not the time for a social call. It may not be "wrong" but it adds up to pretty poor judgment.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Two Men Sought By Portland Police For Quizzing In Peyton Murder Case

PORTLAND (AP) — Police are seeking two men for questioning in the slaying of a coed and her boyfriend in November. One is a sailor missing from his station near Astoria since Nov. 27. The other is a paroled convict believed to have suffered a bullet wound about that time.

There was no apparent link between the men and the slaying of Beverly Ann Allan, 19, Washington State University student from Port Townsend, Wash., and Larry Ralph Peyton, 19, Portland.

But police, looking for any clues in the case, disclosed they are interested in anyone who dropped from sight after the Nov. 27 slaying.

Peyton and Miss Allan apparently were ambushed in a wooded lover's lane near Portland early on Nov. 27. Peyton was found dead in his car there the next day. He had been stabbed to death.

Police recalled that a paroled convict, picked up after a false fire alarm in Portland Dec. 9, had a bullet wound in his arm.

He said he suffered it when he went target shooting with a friend.

He was being held for a lie detector test the next day, but was turned over to the custody of a man who said he was his parole officer. Police said they later learned the man was not a parole officer. He also is being sought.

The sailor was stationed at Tongue Point on the Columbia River near Astoria. He had a pass for leave on Nov. 26 and 27. He last was seen at the naval station gate about noon Nov. 27, when he asked a warrant officer for a ride.

The warrant officer said he gave the sailor the ride, letting him out about 12 miles east of Tongue Point. The sailor said he was to meet friends to go duck hunting.

Naval officers said the sailor left behind his automobile, about $2,000 in payroll savings, and a pistol.

The question was raised Tuesday when Harold Domogalla, Marion County assessor, said he had some doubts about whether Salem Memorial and Salem General Hospitals qualify as tax-exempt institutions.

Domogalla said the hospitals will have a chance to present their cases before any decision is made.

Dr. Adams To Be Last In Office

Dr. J. Martin Adams will be Klamath County's last coroner as a result of a new policy handed down by the state medical examiner, Dr. William L. Lidbeck of Salem.

Dr. Adams, elected to a four-year term in 1959, will serve until January, 1963, when the coroner's duties will be assumed by the county health officer. The Klamath County health officer is presently Dr. Seth Kerron.

"This will mean more work for my office," Dr. Kerron said. "The reason coroners are being abolished is that most counties named an undertaker to the coroner position—and then one undertaker got all the business." Dr. Kerron said Klamath County didn't have this problem, but still came under the ruling.

The coroner is responsible for conducting autopsies and determining causes of death.

List 158 Births In Lake County

LAKEVIEW—Figures compiled in the County Health Department show that there were 158 births in Lake County during 1960 and 54 deaths. The 1959 figures were 159 births and 61 deaths.

In the office of county clerk it was reported there were 29 marriages during the past year and 22 divorces.

Postmaster Fred Peat issued a statement that gross postal receipts for 1960 were $62,554 which showed an increase of $851 over the $61,703 for 1959.

The total for money orders issued in 1960 dropped $30,760 in a comparison of $255,131 against $285,891 of the previous year.

The money order fees were $3,275 in 1960 as against $3,664 in 1959. Stamp cancellations showed an increase of 5,863 in the 1960 figure of 892,190 compared with the 886,327 of 1959.

Two Are Booked On Local Counts

A young man from Malin, Carl Bradley McCollough, 22, was arrested Wednesday by sheriff's deputies and charged with obtaining money and property by false pretenses.

McCollough was charged in a warrant issued by the district attorney with cashing a worthless $15 check Jan. 2 at Hendricks and Hodge Shell Service, Spring and Esplanade streets.

A 21-year-old Lakeview man, James Gordon Poole, was booked at the county jail to begin serving a 90-day sentence for furnishing liquor to a minor. Poole was also ordered to pay a $300 fine by Lake County Magistrate O. C. Gibbs.

Fire Expert Testifies In Portland

PORTLAND (AP) — Inflammable liquid had been poured in three places in a house that burned here Oct. 6, killing four persons, a fire investigator testified Wednesday.

The testimony was given by Lt. Glenn C. Richards of the Portland Fire Department at the trial of Mrs. Joseph Garrett, 33, on a charge of first degree murder.

She is accused of setting the fire that killed three of her four children and their governess, Mrs. Garrett and the other child were rescued by neighbors.

Mrs. Garrett's attorneys have entered pleas of innocent and innocent because of insanity.

Lt. Richards brought into court floor boards from the burned house. He said they showed that the fire had spread rapidly and that charring had occurred under the boards, indicating that an inflammable fluid had run down there.

Defense attorney Earl F. Bernard said earlier that Mrs. Garrett had been using cleaning fluid on the furniture in the living room and that she had left a candle on a table as a welcome to her husband. The state contends that Mrs. Garrett set fire to the house after she had quarreled with her husband and he had left home.

Hospitals' Exemption Questioned By Roberts

SALEM (AP) — Carlisle B. Roberts, chief of the legal section of the Oregon Tax Commission, said Wednesday the law leaves some doubt about exempting hospitals from property taxes.

Roberts said that the law defines property and specifies what is exempt. But in the law, he said, it exempts property of literary, benevolent, charitable and scientific institutions "exclusively used" for charitable uses.

Roberts said hospitals are charitable institutions but court rulings have held they also can be run for profit.

Under the law an exempt hospital is one that never denies admission to anyone for lack of funds, he said. All, he added, swear they admit everybody except for a few private hospitals which say otherwise.

Roberts said the Oregon Supreme Court has held that hospitals are charitable as long as they are run on a non-profit basis and accept non-paying patients and also accept others on the basis of what they can pay.

The Shriners Hospital for crippled children in Portland, he said, is a clear case of a charitable organization.

"It is a clear case where every patient benefits," he said. "They pay nothing and are not even admitted unless it is shown they can pay nothing."

"If we could keep them as pure as that we would have no problem," he said. "Yet we have hospitals on the rolls that have not taken a charitable case in 12 years."

Charles Mack, chairman of the Tax Commission, said that the question must be decided in each individual case.

The question was raised Tuesday when Harold Domogalla, Marion County assessor, said he had some doubts about whether Salem Memorial and Salem General Hospitals qualify as tax-exempt institutions.

Domogalla said the hospitals will have a chance to present their cases before any decision is made.
