Keep Alert For Modern Living

Keeping alert and in tune for everyday activity depends upon many things, including proper rest at night. Lost sleep buildup is a common ailment that is striking an increasing number of Americans. Fatigue, restlessness, depression are a few of its symptoms. Chief causes for lost sleep are the fast pace of the times and worn out mattresses and springs. While it's often difficult to stop the fast pace of living, it's a relatively simple matter to replace old bedding with modern equipment. If you've noticed signs of strain and fatigue among members of your family, check over their mattresses and springs the next time you make the beds. Lost sleep buildup may be the cause.
