

GASOLINE ALLEY Bill Perry

So what's with the tea kettle, Corky?
Can't you guess, Sarge?

And the blanket? That was supposed to keep it from freezing in the first place.

The starter doesn't even make a click!
How could it? She's frozen solid!

There's two ways to defrost that heap. One is to leave it right here till spring. And the other?

Arrange to have it spend the night in cozy, steam-heated Gasoline Alley Garage. That's gonna cost me.

Oh, well, maybe Skeezi will give me a family rate. Could be.

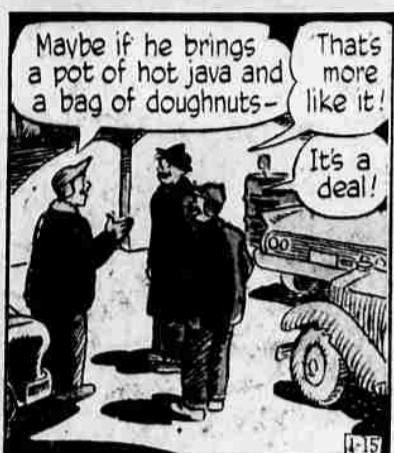

Or maybe if you get it out of here before he shows up in the morning—

Oh, no, you don't! Oh-oh, it's the boss! We're caught in the act!

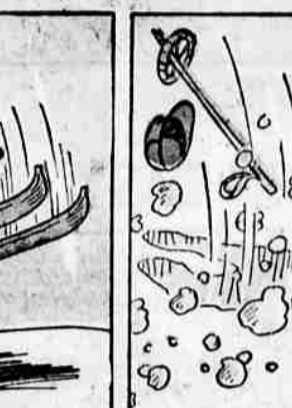

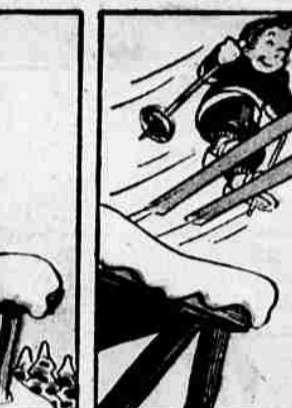

Boss, it's gonna be cold in the morning and we won't feel like going out for coffee and— So?

Maybe if he brings a pot of hot java and a bag of doughnuts— That's more like it! It's a deal!
