

Spare Children 'Other Woman'

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: Twelve years of marriage ended tonight. The other woman won.

I'm not feeling sorry for myself or making excuses. Apparently I didn't have what it takes to keep my husband home nights. For two years I pretended not to see what was going on right under my nose. I've failed as a wife but I don't want to fail as a mother. Please tell me how I explain to a 10-year-old boy and a seven-year-old girl that their Daddy has taken his clothes and moved out of the house?

These past two years the children haven't seen much of their Dad evenings or weekends. He took his summer vacation alone. I always told them he had to work hard for us. They believed me. Now what do I say?—MRS. W.

Dear Mrs. W.: It's your husband's responsibility to tell the children why he moved out of the house. He left—you didn't. Ask him if he can spare an hour next Sunday afternoon to explain to his children why he is living elsewhere. If he doesn't like the idea you have no alternative but to tell them in your own way (without bitterness) that their father has decided he would be happier if he lived elsewhere. Don't mention another woman. Spare them this.

me it's an insult, not a compliment. My wife says it's impressionistic but I don't think this is any excuse. The features are exaggerated and out of proportion and it's downright grotesque. To make matters worse my sister-in-law had it framed and surprised us by hanging it on our living room wall—right over the fireplace. She put a big hole in the wall so we can't remove the picture unless we call the plasterers in.

My wife isn't very crazy about the picture but she says we have to learn to live with it or we'll hurt her sister's feelings. What is your verdict?—EYE SORE

Dear Eye Sore: Keep the picture up for a few months—then call in the plasterers. Replace the portrait with one of your own choice and hang the gift in a less conspicuous place for another few months—before retiring it to the attic.

Dear Ann Landers: We have a telephone with an extension cord upstairs. When the telephone company installed these phones they put a plate on each phone which bears the telephone number.

My dear wife took a screw driver and pried off the number plates. Don't ask me why because she doesn't need a reason to do anything.

I say the telephones belong to the phone company and she has no right to deface them. Can they prosecute for destroying their property?—H.E.

Dear H. E.: Your wife has not destroyed the telephones. She simply removed the number plate. I checked with Illinois Bell and was told that the company has no objections to this practice. Some people do not wish their phone number known so they remove it from sight.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Lawmakers Slate Meeting

SALEM (AP) — Highway committees of the Washington and Oregon legislatures will meet at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Portland State Office Building for more talk about proposals to build a bridge across the Columbia River at Astoria.

Rep. William H. Holmstrom, D-Astoria, chairman of the House Highway Committee, said he hopes the Washington legislators will say how much Washington might contribute toward the cost.

The 1959 Oregon Legislature authorized $24 million worth of bonds for the bridge, provided Washington pay half of that part of the cost which wouldn't be financed by tolls.

Dog Licenses Now On Sale, Mueller Warns

Larry Mueller, city poundmaster, announced today that dog licenses are now on sale and may be purchased at the County Clerk's office in the courthouse or at the Klamath County Dog Pound at 2853 Memorial Drive. Fees are $2 for males and $3 for females. After March 1 an extra $2 penalty will be assessed for late applicants for licenses.

Dogs must be licensed when they have attained their permanent canine teeth which occurs at varying ages in the various breeds of dogs, but usually occurs after 3 1/2 to 5 1/2 months.

Dogs running at large must wear the license tag and failure to acquire a license or failure to attach the tag to the dog is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $10 under state law or city ordinance.

Dogs having and wearing 1960 licenses will not be required to purchase 1961 licenses before March 1, 1961. All others of age must have licenses now and may be picked up as strays or citations may be issued to owners of such dogs.

Spud Stock Is Lower In Region

The estimate of potato stocks for the nine western states as of Jan. 1, 1961, show a slight decline from the estimates of a year ago, according to a recent report by the Department of Agriculture.

Stocks estimated on hand Jan. 1, 1961, were 37,670,000 hundredweight as against 38,050,000 hundredweight a year ago.

Holdings in the Pacific Coast states Jan. 1, 1961, were Washington 1,590,000; Oregon 2,450,000 and California 1,950,000 hundredweight.

Estimates for these same states a year ago were respectively 1,950,000; 3,850,000 and 2,100,000.

Idaho's Jan. 1, 1961, holdings were estimated at 24,500,000 hundredweight, comparing with 22,500,000 hundredweight a year ago.

Total national stocks of 103,860,000 hundredweight compare to 97,550,000 hundredweight a year ago on Jan. 1.

The department reports the December disappearance of 20.3 million hundredweight. This compares with disappearance of 19.4 million hundredweight in 1959 and 21.4 million in December of 1958.

The movement to fresh market is reported about the same as a year ago with use by chippers moderately higher, with use by other food processors materially higher, but starch manufacture materially below a year ago.

Sale of fall crop potatoes for all purposes during the past two seasons has averaged about 36 per cent of production.

The balance of the crops has been used on farms or lost through shrinkage and decay.

The 1960 fall crop was estimated in December at 173,831,000 hundredweight of which 65,987,000 hundredweight was produced in the West.

Fish Conference Asked By Egan

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A United States-Canada fisheries conference to work out a program for restoring depleted West Coast salmon runs was proposed today by Alaska Gov. William A. Egan.

Egan invited the governors of Washington, Oregon and California, the Canadian minister of fisheries, the U. S. secretary of the Interior and leading fisheries biologists of both countries to meet here Feb. 15-17.

There is an urgent need for coordinating separate efforts being made to restore the once abundant salmon runs, he said.

Careful management of salmon stocks, opening of new spawning and rearing areas, and new methods of fish culture and fish farming could reverse the downward trend of salmon catches, Egan said.

Egan said he called the meeting "because Alaska has the most extensive salmon fisheries and, therefore, the most at stake."

Bill Would Clarify Law

SALEM (AP) — A bill introduced Monday in the House would take baby buggies and well drilling machinery off the list of those exempt from state licensing.

However, a Department of Motor Vehicles spokesman said, this is just to clear up the law. The spokesman said the state has no intention of licensing baby carriages.

Owners of well-drilling equipment asked for licensing of their equipment so they could obtain reciprocity with other states, the spokesman said.

Roseburg Blast Case Is Heard

SALEM (AP) — The Oregon Supreme Court heard arguments Wednesday in a case to determine whether Pacific Power Co., Termino, Wash., can be charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of 14 persons in the Roseburg explosion on Aug. 7, 1959.

A company-owned truck, loaded with 6 1/2 tons of explosive, blew up, destroying part of the downtown area of Roseburg.

Because the Oregon courts never have decided whether a corporation can be charged with manslaughter, all seven of the supreme justices heard the case.

Circuit Judge James M. Cain of Douglas County dismissed the case on grounds the manslaughter statute does not apply to corporations. The state then appealed.

Avery W. Thompson, Douglas County district attorney, argued that the legal definition of "person" also includes corporations. He said the company violated Interstate Commerce Commission regulations by leaving the truck unattended.

Thompson cited examples in other states where corporations have been charged with manslaughter.

E. K. Murray, Tacoma, Wash., and Edwin E. Allen, Eugene, represented the company.

They argued that the legislature had no intention of including corporations in the manslaughter statute.

They said that in states where corporations are prosecuted for criminal acts such as manslaughter, the law is specific about it. Murray and Allen pointed out other criminal laws of Oregon which specify that they apply to "persons and corporations." So, they reasoned, when the legislature does not include corporations, it is intentional.

SALEM (AP) — A proposal to wipe out all property tax exemptions in Oregon was presented to the House Committee on Taxation Wednesday by a spokesman for fraternal groups.

Ted Turner, executive secretary of the Oregon Non-Profit Organizations Association, said all non-profit groups should be taxed or all be exempt.

Along with fraternal groups that he represents, Turner also would take away exemptions of private colleges, parochial schools, hospitals and other charitable and benevolent groups.

The Oregon Tax Commission told county assessors last November that fraternal organizations must go on the tax rolls this year.

The commission said the fraternal groups are taxable because the law says that to be exempt they must be "actually and exclusively occupied or used in the literary, benevolent, charitable or scientific work carried on by such institutions."

Carlisle B. Roberts, Tax Commission attorney, told the committee that "taxation is the rule and exemption is the exception" regarding the fraternal lodges. These include labor temples and Grange halls.

George Brown, representing the Oregon AFL-CIO, asked the committee to clarify the law. He said he was not prepared to say if organized labor would support a move to eliminate all exemptions. "If you want to put everyone on the rolls," he said, "I guess we could stand it as well as the rest."

Roberts said the Tax Commission took action in advance of the session so that fraternal organization could appeal to the legislature.

Elmer McClure, master of the Oregon Grange, told the committee that Grange property was put on the rolls with the directive and he felt all exemptions for non-profit groups should go if the Grange is required to pay the taxes.

Rep. Edward N. Fadeley, D-Eugene, asked Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton for an opinion on whether faculty members at state institutions of higher learning can make political contributions or serve as precinct workers.

Fadeley said if this is illegal under the Oregon Corrupt Practices Act then he will introduce legislation to permit faculty members to contribute or hold precinct offices.

The Joint Ways and Means Committee set a public hearing Thursday night for Department of Finance and Administration officials to explain the plan for wage increases for state employees.

The House Education Committee Wednesday considered a bill that would set a ceiling on administrative costs for a driver-

The House Education Committee Wednesday considered a bill that would set a ceiling on administrative costs for a driver-training program in the schools. It is expected to cost $30,000 this biennium.

The committee learned that surplus funds have accumulated because fewer schools than expected have joined in the program. It is financed by a 50 cent assessment each on those buying driver's licenses.

A bill was introduced in the House that would permit classes on Saturday. This is designed primarily to encourage driver training.

Another bill would raise minimum age for driving from 16 to 18 except for teen-agers who have passed a driver-training course. This also is designed to encourage driver training programs.

SALEM (AP) — Rep. Victor Atiyeh, R-Portland, said Wednesday he will introduce a proposed constitutional amendment to increase legislators' $600 annual pay to $1,800.

The voters rejected a raise to $2,100 last May. Atiyeh said he believes the people thought the raise too large.

It would be on the 1962 general election ballot.

Atiyeh opposed the resolution, passed several days ago, to pay legislators' expenses of $75 a month during sessions, and $150 a month between sessions.

Secretary of State Howell Applegate Jr. said he would ask Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton for an opinion on whether the expense money should be paid. Applegate said it might violate the constitution, which says legislators shall not receive personal expenses.

Thornton advised Applegate he will not render an opinion until some legislator actually files a claim for the expense money.

House Speaker Robert B. Duncan said he will file such a claim at the end of this month in order to get a legal ruling.

The whole question of expense money is expected to wind up in the state Supreme Court.

Atiyeh said his resolution is a "straight-forward approach" to the problem.

City firemen were called at 10:55 p.m. Tuesday night to the Market Basket on Ninth and Pine Street.

Another call was made to 1840 Worden Street, the Stemple residence, when an electric wall heater fan shorted, causing smoke damage.

Brave Birds

BARNWELL, S. C. (AP)—The scarecrow holds no terror for a breed of crows that have been harassing farmers in this area. They have been ravaging crops daily. Farmers have had to turn to a battery of acetylene guns, rigged to shoot automatically at intervals. The din disrupts the quiet country-side and frightens the birds away.
