

Fear Of Cars Is Abnormal

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old girl with a big problem. I am afraid to ride in a car. It doesn't bother me much in the city, but when we get out on the highway I go to pieces. I become faint the minute we go over 30 miles an hour. I perspire and everything gets blurry. This summer when the family was on vacation we drove across several states. I was a nervous wreck after that trip. I blacked out several times when we passed cars.

I told my parents and they said "Stop talking nonsense. It's all in your head." We have many relatives out of town and I have to go with my folks when we visit them. Please tell me how to get over this problem.—AFRAID

Dear Afraid: Of course it's all in your head. That's where all fears are. The question is how to get it out of your head.

The anxiety you suffer on the highway is related to something else which probably goes way back to your early childhood. You relive all the old fears when the memory of the first situation is recalled. You need trained psychiatric help. My consultants in this field tell me your problem might be solved with just a few visits. Show this column to your parents and ask them to help you.

Dear Ann Landers: A social friend has had her eye on my husband for years. Her husband passed away last month and now she won't leave my husband alone.

He claims there's nothing between them but friendship but he goes to his sister's house to telephone her almost every morning. He says he doesn't want to call her from home because it upsets me. According to him she needs his moral support and he sees nothing wrong in the calls.

What can I do about this? I'd like to pull her hair out by the handful but I don't think it would solve anything.—PATRICIA

Dear Patricia: What does your husband do with his evenings? You give no hint that he ever gets out of your sight.

Encourage him to be open and above board. The more you're in on the less you'll have to worry about. It may well be that he is innocent but if you continue to give him the name he may go in for the game.

Dear Ann: My girl and I read your column and discuss it. We are planning to marry in May and notice that you often tell people they should decide on the financial arrangements before marriage.

We both have good jobs but she is a better money manager. If I didn't give her part of my check to put in the bank, I'd blow it all. As it is we have saved enough to make a down payment on a home and buy furniture.

The question is this: She thinks $6 a week is enough for a fellow to buy lunches and take the bus to and from work. I make $78 a week and she makes $60. How about this?—HANK

Dear Hank: A fellow who makes $78 a week should be able to keep $15 in his pocket without going hog-wild. Only the very rich and the very poor go around broke. Since you are neither, this is a nice, conservative (but not skimpy) compromise.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sen. Morse Heads Back For Huddles

PORTLAND (AP)—Sen. Wayne L. Morse will come home to Oregon for two days this week for a series of talks and conferences.

His Portland office aide, Charles Brooks, said he would arrive at Portland International Airport at 8:52 a.m. Monday and then take up this schedule:

Luncheon at Pacific University, followed by a 2 p.m. address to a student assembly; Monday evening and Tuesday morning conferences with various groups at Albany and Eugene; 7 p.m. Tuesday, talk in the Oregon State College home economics auditorium; return to Washington that night.

Morse's talks at Pacific University and at OSC will outline his experiences as a delegate to the United National General Assembly, Brooks said, and express his views on the reaction of non-nuclear powers to the U. S.-Russian arms race.

60 Display 4-H Interest

Sixty youngsters in Mills Elementary School have shown an interest in becoming 4-H members, notes Carol Armstrong, Klamath County 4-H Club agent. Fourth, fifth, and sixth graders heard an explanation of the 4-H Club program and projects available from Miss Armstrong and Francis Skinner, also 4-H agent, last week.

This marks the first time that youngsters in the city have enrolled in 4-H work in any numbers. Part of the reason so few city-dwellers are in the program is probably due to the misconception that 4-H work is exclusively for rural youngsters, says Miss Armstrong. Although the 4-H Club program got its start among farm youth, there are many activities and projects which fit very well into urban and suburban living.

Some projects especially adapted for urban areas include clothing, foods, knitting, child development, electricity, flower gardening, wood working, photography and outdoor cooking.

Mills School was chosen for a pilot study on urban 4-H Club work and if sufficient interest is shown more urban clubs will be organized next year in other schools.

Any youngster who was 9 years of age or before Jan. 1 is eligible to become a 4-H Club member. No dues or uniforms are required, and leadership is on a volunteer basis from interested adults. For further information, those interested contact either Miss Armstrong or Skinner in the federal building or call TU 48151.

Man Arrested

EUGENE (AP)—A man identified by police as Westley Earl Coffelt, 34, of Weiser, Idaho, was arrested here Thursday night and charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

Coffelt went into district court here Friday and pleaded innocent. Police said they found a .22 caliber pistol on Coffelt after they arrested him outside of a cafe near here.

Police said they also were holding Coffelt on a forgery warrant issued earlier at Lewiston, Idaho.

Bond Meeting

SALEM (AP)—A mass meeting to launch a movement to issue $600 million worth of highway bonds will be held here at 2 p.m. Monday.

It is sponsored by the Oregon Coast Association, which has obtained the support of highway boosters in other parts of the state.

The money would be used to improve the Oregon Coast, Highway 20, Coos Bay-Roseburg, Winemuccia-to-the-Sea, and The Dalles-California highways.

Verne Ayres, Newport, coast association manager, said 500 persons are expected at the meeting.

Revenue Bill

SALEM (AP)—Legislation to give counties 10 per cent of state liquor revenues was introduced in the House Friday by Rep. Victor Atiyeh, R-Portland.

The bill was requested by the Association of Oregon Counties. They now get no liquor revenues. Gov. Mark O. Hatfield has recommended that the cities' 10 per cent share of liquor receipts be increased to 15 per cent.

Orders Slack

PORTLAND (AP)—Pine production, orders and shipments stayed slack last week, compared to last year, the Western Pine Association said Saturday.

The association gave these figures for the week ending Jan. 14, compared to the previous week and a year ago:

Production 67,265,000 board feet, 46,314,000 and 85,354,000.

Orders 67,958,000, 58,204,000 and 76,408,000 feet.

Shipments 63,507,000, 55,145,000, and 83,619,000 feet.

Realtor Dies

OREGON CITY (AP)—Caesar Ventura, 60, of Scotts Mills, Ore., a former resident of Ventura, Calif., and member of a pioneer family after which the California community was named, died at the realty office where he worked here Thursday. He lived in Portland some time before moving to Scotts Mills.

McNamara Is Tough 'Whiz Kid'

By United Press International

Robert Strange McNamara, new defense secretary in the Kennedy administration, is an intellectual "whiz kid" who is also a tough-minded business man.

McNamara, 44, Ford Motor Co. president before he was tapped by Kennedy to maintain a military establishment "second to none" has little time for levity or horseplay.

He demands—and gets—performance from those who work for him.

The new Pentagon chief is an intense, scholarly man who takes a serious attitude toward everything he does.

"Very few people know him well," a friend said of him just before he was named to the cabinet post by Kennedy. "He isn't much for socializing and feels his private life is just that—private."

His insistence on privacy was borne out when reporters questioned him about whether he voted for Kennedy. He answered tartly: "My vote is my own affair."

A Registered Republican

It was known, however, that McNamara—a registered Republican—supported Kennedy during the campaign.

McNamara has never been a narrow political partisan.

In 1958, he was one of the largest financial backers of Sen. Philip A. Hart, a Democrat who unseated Republican Charles Potter who was considered one of the strongest favorites of the auto industry which included McNamara's Ford Motor Co.

A little over a year later, McNamara was leader of a group trying to convince American Motors Corp. President George Romney to oppose Sen. Patrick V. McNamara, D-Mich., no kin, who is a strong favorite of organized labor.

McNamara is a lean six-footer. He is a Presbyterian and a strong family man.

He consulted not only his wife, Margaret, but also his children, Margaret, 13, Kathy, 16, and Robert, 10, before accepting his nomination.

Born in San Francisco

McNamara was born in San Francisco, Calif., July 9, 1916, and attended public schools at Piedmont, Calif. Evidence of his intellectual prowess showed itself when he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in his sophomore year at the University of California.

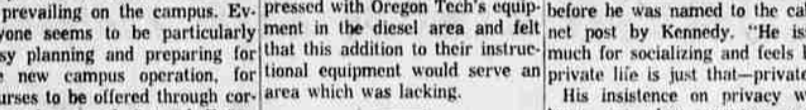

representative from each institution in the Higher System will attend the two-day session.

The women staff employees at Oregon Tech got together Thursday noon for a special luncheon in the girls' dorm lounge adjacent to the cafeteria—"just for fun" June Hodges stated. They were June Grater, Mildred Curry, Marguerite Gompf, Evelyn Biehn, Ellen Upp, Molly Williams, Martha Skoe, Marian Schuler, Elsie Bush, Marcia Griggs, Dorothy Sudbury, Jenny Wagoner, Barbara Overen, Joyce Morris, Sandra Hoyt, June Hodges, Mary House, Carole Howard, Wilma Dunn, Hester Atwood, Bernice Andrews, Joann Howard, and Belle L. VanDel.

This writer, as director of District 4 (Klamath, Lake, and Deschutes counties) of the Oregon State Employees Association, attended a meeting of district directors in Salem on Friday evening and Saturday, Jan. 20 and 21. More than 90 per cent of the faculty belong to the faculty chapter and a large percentage of OTI classified personnel are members of Chapter 36 on the campus. The basic objective of the OSEA is to promote the welfare of state employees in all ways compatible with public interest.

Mrs. Geraldine Valley will travel to Portland Friday to attend the semi-annual meeting of the Oregon State System of Higher Education Library Council. A representative from each institution in the Higher System will attend the two-day session.

THE OWL HOOTS

By A. L. GEISS
Director of Information Oregon Technical Institute

It seems to this writer that the lull before the storm—the strong winds that will blow the OTI craft deeper into its unknown future—is prevailing on the campus. Everyone seems to be particularly busy planning and preparing for the new campus operation, for courses to be offered through correspondence and General Extension classes, for new programs on the campus, or perhaps for other innovations not yet announced. This bustling activity, however, seems to be in a state of quiescence that does not yield to the dissemination of information at the moment. Characteristic answers to requests for news are "this isn't quite ready to break yet" or "just a few more details and the finishing touches and you may have it." Although this isn't meat for today for a writer, it makes the near future seem pleasant.

Dr. Hugh G. Lovell, head, research and development, and George Diehl, head, public affairs, in the Portland Center of the General Extension Division, spent Wednesday on the campus becoming familiar with OTI's facilities and programs. They will be coordinating Oregon Tech's offerings through General Extension.

"Dr. Winston Purvine and Jack Douglass sold us on Oregon Tech when they were in Portland recently, and after seeing the institution, we are still sold," they said. "We didn't realize that it was such a dynamic and growing organization; it is more advanced and more highly technical than we had expected."

Our athletic director, Rex Husaker, is one of three coaches being seriously considered as head football coach at Brigham Young University in Utah. Rex was exceptionally successful as a high school coach. At Oregon Tech, he has piloted the "Owl" football team to two conference championships and an untied, unbeaten season. If Rex wants this job, we don't think the officials at Brigham Young could hire a better man.

Howard Rowe, registrar, spent Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Interinstitutional Residence Committee in Portland. They discussed the new residence requirements for institutions in the State System of Higher Education.

Imogene Ralston is in Klamath Valley Hospital surrounded with flowers and doing well after having had minor surgery last Monday morning. She is permitted to have visitors. She will probably be back on the job in about one month, according to Geraldine Valley, assistant librarian.

Deans Bingham and Meier will travel to Riddle next Monday for an industrial visit to the Hana Nickel Smelting Company. The trip is the result of a long-distance telephone call from the company requesting information about courses or material for upgrading their millwrights and machinists. One purpose of the trip is to explore the possibility of making available part of OTI's program through General Extension or correspondence courses.

A Euclid automatic transmission on a heavy-duty diesel tractor valued at $7,000 was donated this week to Oregon Tech by the

Pound Sets Dates In County

Don Libby, county poundmaster, will be in the following cities on the following dates to accommodate residents who want to purchase dog licenses:

Malin, fire hall, Feb. 1, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Merrill, fire hall, Feb. 4, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Bly, restaurant across from the Halfway House, Feb. 6, 1 to 4 p.m.; Lorella, irrigation district office, Feb. 8, 1 to 4 p.m.; Chiloquin, city hall, Feb. 10, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Sprague River, post office, Feb. 14, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Fort Klamath, hotel, Feb. 16, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Chemult, bus stop, 1 to 4 p.m.; and Crescent, sporting goods store, Feb. 27, 1 to 4 p.m.

Males and spayed females may be licensed for $2 and fertile females for $3.

All dogs in the county are required by law to be licensed. The measure is designed to give the county a measure of control over the animals.

The system helps, for instance, when authorities are attempting to track killer dogs that prey in packs on domestic animals.

Deadline for licensing is March 1, and those who miss the deadline are liable to incur penalties.

FALCON HEIGHTS PTA organization will have a meeting Monday, Jan. 23, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Florence Briggs, 935 Division.

At the age of 20, he was graduated from California. Two years later he took a master's degree in business administration at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

After graduation from Harvard, McNamara joined the accounting firm of Price, Waterhouse and Co. in California. A year later he was back at Harvard as an assistant professor of business administration.

Through work for the War Department as a civilian consultant while at Harvard, he entered the Army Air Corps in 1945 as a lieutenant colonel, serving as a consultant on management practices.

He later was tapped by Ford along with nine other Air Corps officers to form a management specialists group known as the "whiz kids."

The mild-looking McNamara started as manager of Ford's planning and financial analysis offices. He moved up rapidly and climaxed his rise last November, only a month before he was picked by Kennedy, by being named president of the nation's second-largest automobile company.

KLAMATH BOARD OF REALTORS will meet Wednesday, Jan. 25, at 12 p.m. in the Spruce Room at the Willard Hotel.

Approve Bills

SALEM (AP)—The Joint Ways and Means Committee Friday gave its approval to its first batch of appropriation bills.

The action came weeks earlier than ever before. The committee has adopted a policy of getting the little appropriations out of the way before acting on the big ones.

It approved a $446,939 appropriation for the state Blind Commission, and smaller ones for the Capitol Planning Commission, Traffic Court Rules Committee, Commission on Uniform State Laws, boards of engineering examiners, optometry and barber examiners.
