Difficult Timber Tax Problems Combined In Compromise Bill

By PAUL W. HARVEY, Jr.
SALEM (AP) — The ground work for action on the legislature's difficult timber tax problem was laid today as Rep. W. O. Kelsay, D-Roseburg, prepared a compromise bill for introduction. Gov. Mark O. Hatfield has said the legislature must do something to devise an equitable timber tax that will encourage owners to hold their timber until maturity. Kelsay said the two giants of the industry—Georgia-Pacific and Weyerhaeuser—are agreed on the bill. But he said the state Tax Commission does not like it, because it prefers a severance tax approach. Kelsay said his bill keeps the current policy of taxing timber at 30 per cent of assessed value, but holders of timber for long terms would get a 25 per cent rate. Timber would not be taxed during the first 30 years of growth, and the tax would jump to 100 per cent in the year of harvest. Kelsay said the bill would make Georgia-Pacific pay more, and reduce Weyerhaeuser's taxes. He said he expects the bill to be introduced Tuesday. The Legislative Interim Committee on Taxation studied the problem for 18 months, and failed to come up with an answer. The legislature came back for its third week today, facing a heavy schedule of hearings. The House, acting weeks earlier than usual, passed a half dozen small appropriation bills. The pace of hearings also is several weeks ahead of schedule. Hatfield announced he would testify Tuesday evening at a hearing on his plan to reorganize the state government. This is the first of several hearings on the plan, under which greater authority would be given to the governor. Hundreds of highway boosters were expected to come here late today to ask for a $60 million bond issue to modernize several highways, including the Oregon Coast, The Dalles-California, Coos Bay-Roseburg, Winnemucca-to-the-Sea and Route 20. The Senate Taxation Committee held a hearing today to begin its study of whether to reduce the number of property tax exemptions. And the House Judiciary Committee will hold a hearing Tuesday afternoon on the proposed new commercial code, which would revise all of the laws dealing with commercial and banking transactions. On Wednesday, the House Taxation Committee will hold a hearing on the proposal, by the Tax Interim Committee, to tax cigarettes 3 cents a package, and to reduce income taxes by a corresponding amount. Hatfield, taking note that some Republicans want to cut his $359 million budget, said he doubts if it can be done. He said he noted that the sponsors of such proposals are not specific about where it could be cut. The flood of new legislation continued today, but most of the new measures were minor. One new bill, by the Senate Judiciary Committee, would permit divorced persons to remarry third parties 40 days after the divorce. The waiting period now is six months.

Crash Hurts Copco Man

BLY—Clark Abbott, a lineman for California Oregon Power Company here, was injured when his car went off the pavement on Highway 66 near here Monday at about 8 a.m., sheriff's deputies said. Abbott told investigators he tried to slow down on icy pavement for a car ahead that had spun into a ditch. He lost control, he said, and smashed into a bank. Abbott and his car were taken to Bly by Weyerhaeuser Company crewmen, said deputies. There Abbott discovered painful back injuries. He was taken to Klamath Valley Hospital, Klamath Falls, by Peace Ambulance Service for observation. Officers said a teenager in the other car was not injured. Abbott's car was badly damaged, they added.

Burglars Hit Auto Wreckers

Burglars broke their way into the office of Valley Auto Wreckers, 3315 Washburn Way, sometime Friday night or early Saturday morning and stole a tool box and its contents valued at $250 and various other auto accessories, state police said. The theft was reported Saturday morning by an employee, Allan Bousman. Officers said the culprits broke plywood around a door lock, reached in and opened the door. Among assorted items so far reported missing were an auto clock, spot lights, first aid kit, auto wire and brake fluid.

Aliens Must Give Address

The United States Immigration and Naturalization Service reminded all aliens in the state of Oregon today that only eight days remain in which non-citizens must file their annual address report as required by law. James L. Turner, district director, pointed out that address reports are available at the nearest Immigration Service Office or post office for the convenience of non-citizens required to report their address to the government each January under a provision of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952. Turner said the only non-citizens not required to report their addresses are persons in diplomatic status, foreign representatives of certain international organizations, and persons admitted temporarily as agricultural laborers. Turner stated: "It is hoped that all persons subject to this law will go to the nearest immigration office of post office and fill out an address report form before the Jan. 31 deadline to avoid possible serious penalties." He explained that persons found guilty of a willful violation would be subject to a possible fine, jail sentence and deportation.

Thefts Dot Police Blotter

A thief entered a local girl's car, parked at a bowling alley here Friday night, and stole three car coats, an overnight bag and a purse. The theft was reported Saturday morning to city police by Barbara Crapo, 1130 Lincoln Street. She said the car was not locked. The coats, one hers, one belonging to Sally Uerlings and one to Jeanna Witzler, were in the case, she said. The purse, containing a small amount of currency and some papers, photos and other personal effects, belonged to Miss Uerlings. Officers, over the weekend, also recovered a chain saw reported stolen near Keno last year. They said Lee Miller, a local chain saw dealer and repairman, recognized the saw as one reported by Oscar Rylander of Keno to be stolen. Miller said he previously repaired the saw. A special identifying serial number inscribed on the fuel tank had been sanded off and the saw painted green, said Miller, but the disguise didn't fool him. He said he traded Charles Harvey, 429 Commercial Street, a receipt for the saw, notifying him that the machine was stolen property. Harvey told officers who questioned him that he bought the saw for $45 from a man in a tavern last November. He said he used it four or five times to saw wood, found that business unprofitable and decided to sell it. Investigation is continuing. Other reports of theft, in brief: Personnel from Central Auto Sales, a used car lot at 631 Wilcox Street, told police someone stole an air cleaner from the engine of a car parked on the lot sometime Friday night. It was valued at $10. Richard Snyder, 1202 Division Street, reported a thief cut a strap on his pickup truck parked in front of his home Saturday night and made off with a five-gallon can of gasoline. And Lloyd DeLap, 1120 Pine Street, told officers that someone attempted to enter the luggage compartment of his foreign car, perhaps in a fuel theft attempt, Saturday night, as it was parked at home. He said the attempt was not successful, but that the thief broke a hinge on the compartment door in the process. A headon collision. BLY—A headon collision on Bly Mountain caused moderate damage to two cars, but no injuries, at 7:35 a.m. Monday, state police said. They stated a car driven by Coy W. Edwards, 26, 2666 Shasta Way, Klamath Falls, westbound on Highway 66, went out of control on a patch of ice and veered into the left lane. A car coming the other way, driven by Carl Kenneth Fogle, 49, 835 Upland Way, Klamath Falls, struck the Edwards car, said officers. Fogle attempted to swerve but was not able to avoid the collision, they added. No citations were issued. Grass fire Suburban firemen were called at 1:17 p.m. Sunday at 6003 South Sixth Street to extinguish a small grass fire. No damage was reported. Gold first was discovered in Colorado at Englewood in 1859.

Plan Made To Save Temple

CAIRO (AP) — A team of Italian engineers has worked out a plan to lift an ancient Egyptian temple weighing 400,000 tons 168 feet to higher ground, saving it from the waters of the reservoir to be formed by the Aswan-Dam. The temple is at Abu Simbal, more than 900 miles up the Nile from its mouth. Built by Egypt's mighty Pharaoh Ramses II around 1265 B.C., the temple is best known for its four massive statues of Ramses standing 67 feet high on the edge of the river. From this striking entrance the temple halls run 200 feet inside the rocky cliff enclosing rows of statues 30 feet tall and wall paintings of rare beauty. Beside this temple is a smaller but equally beautiful temple dedicated to the Pharaoh's queen, Nefertari. Prof. Pietro Gazzola and an Italian engineering firm, working at the request of the United Arab Republic government, estimated that moving the two temples would cost $50 million and take nearly six years. The U.A.R. government now must decide whether such a sum should be spent on such a project while Egypt desperately needs capital for economic development. Should the government decide to move the temples, the money must come largely from international sources. There is hope here that the United States will pay at least half the cost from American funds in Egypt from the sale of surplus agricultural products. French engineers have proposed an alternate plan to build a dam around the temples to protect them from the waters. The construction would be much more expensive—$80 million—and annual maintenance costs would be about $400,000. Under the Italian plan, the temples would be cut out of the rock. A pit 45 feet deep and 3,000 square feet would be excavated in front to facilitate digging out the rock underneath the temple. Then the two temples would be enclosed in a reinforced concrete box for lifting. The lifting would be done by 300 hydraulic jacks, at a rate of about 30 inches at a time. The rocky landscape behind the present site would be fully reconstructed so that the temples would sit on the bank of the lake in a position as nearly like the present one as possible.

Police Probe Beat Story

City police are questioning three youths in connection with a report by a juvenile high school student in Klamath Falls that he was beaten for no apparent provocation over the weekend. The victim told officers he was followed by the trio as he drove his date home. When he stopped, they challenged him to a fight, he said. He refused he said, and they threatened to beat him unless he drove them to Klamath Union High School to pick up a car. The youngster said he complied. When they arrived, one youth dropped a handkerchief and ordered him to pick it up. When he did so, he was struck in the eye and on the shoulder, stated the victim. Officers are continuing investigation.
