Collections For '60 Fall

SALEM (AP) — The Oregon State Tax Commission Wednesday reported tax collections for the first half of 1960 were down $3.6 million from the year before.

Total collections were $40,930,045 in 1960 compared to $44,598,618 in 1959. The chief drop was in income tax collections, while corporation excise taxes were up.

Income tax collections for the six months were $36,464,174 compared to $40,321,252 the year before.

The commission said the decrease of some $3.6 million was largely anticipated from the decrease in the installment accounts.

It said the imposition of a 1 percent interest charge caused most taxpayers to pay their entire personal income tax in April of last year.

Contract Is Validated

TULELAKE—President Sam Anderson announced that on Jan. 19, the contract between the United States and the Tulelake Irrigation District was validated by Judge J. E. Barr sitting on the Supreme Court of Siskiyou County in Yreka.

There were no objectors at the hearing. Anderson explained that this was the last act necessary to make the contract fully effective. A provision of the contract permitted the United States need not observe the terms of the contract until the final requirement had been completed.

Anderson stated that the district intended to complete the validation for some time but that it had been delayed until the final hearings in the so-called Ivanhoe Case under the Central Valley Project. A favorable decision by the California State Supreme Court in early 1960 had permitted the district to go ahead in its case.

Cash, Forms Are Stolen At Ranch PO

NEW PINE CREEK — Thieves broke into Willow Ranch Post Office seven miles from here across the California border and stole $54 in cash and more than 400 money order forms Monday night. Modoc County sheriff's deputies stated the culprits entered by prying open a back window. They pried a padlock off a cash drawer and took the missing items stored inside.

Mrs. Andy Anderson, postmistress, said she recently ordered 500 money order forms and had distributed upwards of a hundred to postal patrons. Deputies said the work in some ways appeared to be that of professionals. For instance, the thieves left no fingerprints and are presumed to have worn gloves. But in other ways the job seemed the work of amateurs. Burned paper faggots were found stamped out on the floor, indicating the thieves were without a flashlight—the burglar's basic tool.

Postal inspectors were in the community today to help with the investigation and to render assistance in getting the post office back to normal operation.

Administrator To Explain Non-Use Of Surplus Food

SALEM (AP) — Jeanne Jewett, Oregon State Welfare administrator, is to appear Monday before a state Senate Committee to explain why Oregon doesn't use government surplus food.

Sen. Thomas Mahoney, D-Portland, presented a motion that was adopted by the Senate State and Federal Affairs Committee Wednesday requesting Miss Jewett to appear Monday at 4 p.m. Mahoney earlier this week criticized the commission for failing to use the free federal surplus food.

He quoted Congresswoman Edith Green of Oregon as saying that Oregon was one of only eight

Wool Pool Reports 1960 Sales

The annual meeting of the Klamath Wool Pool was held last week. Report of last year's business showed that 21,000 fleeces were marketed for 160 farm flock producers in the Klamath Basin. The total weight of the wool amounted to 178,000 pounds.

Those attending the meeting signed wool marketing agreements covering their 1961 clip. Those who did not attend the meeting may sign these agreements at the County Agent's office, Farm Bureau, Main Branch First National Bank in Klamath Falls, First National Bank in Merrill, and the Farm Adviser's office in Tulelake. Feb. 20 is the deadline set for signing these agreements for the 1961 wool pool. Considerable time was spent in discussing the loss of sheep from stray dogs. It was brought out that the law permit livestock owners to kill dogs that are caught molesting or killing livestock on their premises.

Directors elected to manage the business of the pool for the coming year were Earl Mack, Henley; Barry O'Connor, Tulelake; Lester Moore, Henley; Robert Brett, Langell Valley; Guy Hinson, Poe Valley, and Glen Haskins and Robert Hunt, at large.

Officers will be elected at the first meeting of the Board of Directors, according to Earl Mack, president for 1960.
