

Medford Pastor To Preach At Church Meeting Series

TULELAKE — Dr. D. Kirkland West, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Medford, will be guest speaker at a three-day preaching and teaching mission at the Tulelake Community Pres-

Dr. West will also speak for special missionary groups and will lead in a three-unit teaching of the Bible. The public is invited to attend the meetings. He will fill a speaking engagement also before the Tulelake Rotary Club.

Mrs. West, a medical doctor for 10 years in China, will accompany her husband and will speak to the church guild.

Preceding the meetings K. S. Buckingham, evangelism chairman, will head a visiting committee for friendship visitations by men of the church.

Dr. West, a native of Craig, Mo., has an impressive background of theological service. He is a graduate of Coe College and Princeton Theological Seminary, attended Oxford University, served as a missionary in China for 15 years, was chairman of the Shantung Mission and was a member of the China Council; was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Johnstown, Pa., during World War II; pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Medford, last 10 years; has served as trustee of Lewis and Clark College, San Francisco Theological Seminary, and has held other important posts.

Shortage Of Ministers Becomes More Serious

By LOUIS CASSELL
United Press International

If you've ever seen a church congregation trying to limp along without a pastor, or with one minister when it needs two or three, you know how demoralizing the experience can be.

Multiply this situation by many thousands, and you'll understand why a chronic shortage of trained clergymen is a serious threat to the nation's religious life.

America has such a shortage today. And it is getting progressively worse all the time.

To serve an expanding population, America's churches need more ministers each year. Instead, they are getting fewer.

The United Presbyterian Church now has about 800 congregations which are searching for pastors. But enrollment in its seminaries declined this year by nearly 12 per cent.

The Episcopal Church discovered in a national survey five years ago that it was 806 clergymen short of its "minimum" requirements. Since that time, its membership has increased 8 per cent — and seminary enrollment has dropped 10 per cent.

The Southern Baptist Convention ordained nearly 2,000 new ministers in 1951. In 1960, with a far larger membership, it ordained only 840. During the past year, enrollment in its seminaries declined from 5,000 to 4,809.

Need 1,200 Clergymen
The Methodist Church needs 1,200 new clergymen annually just to replace those lost by death or retirement. To serve an expanding membership, it needs at least 2,000. Its seminaries will turn out fewer than 700 this year.

The United Lutheran Church has a current shortage of 450 ministers, and needs at least 170 additional each year to fill vacancies. Its seminaries are graduating about 150 a year.

The membership of the Roman Catholic Church has increased by more than 40 per cent in the past 10 years, but the number of priests has grown by less than 12 per cent.

Similar figures could be cited for virtually every other major religious body in the nation.

Different reasons have been advanced for the downturn in seminary enrollments. Some church leaders blame the pervasive materialism of American society, which, they say, causes young people to view a potential career primarily in terms of the financial rewards it offers.

Underpaid Profession
The ministry is unquestionably an underpaid profession. But doctors are the most highly-paid professional group in the nation, and there is also a shortage of medical students. So it seems doubtful that today's youth are altogether money-minded in their choice of a career.

Another theory is that the ministry (as the medical profession is suffering from "image" trouble). Young people don't know enough about the clergyman's job to be attracted to it. They've heard about the low pay and long hours, and they may have an exaggerated notion of the limitations on a clergyman's private life. But they haven't been made aware of the opportunities for leadership and service and the tremendous satisfactions that a good pastor finds in his work.

The ancient Romans had cargo ships as big as America's old frigates, the Constitution.

High school students are particularly invited to the nightly meetings.

Women's Group Plans For Study

MERRILL—The Merrill Presbyterian Women's Association met Jan. 11 for a regular meeting with Mrs. Ira Orem as hostess.

Four guests, Mrs. Paul Lewis, Mrs. Jess Sanders, Mrs. Troy Qualls, and Mrs. Warren Ochs, enjoyed the worship program given by Mrs. George Mattson.

A business meeting followed with a contribution made to the Lewis and Clark College Fund.

A letter from Mrs. Richard Nelson of Ketchikan, Alaska, was read to the group. Mrs. Nelson is president of the Alaskan Presbyterian. Her husband is skipper of the Presbyterian Missionary Boat, "Anna Jackson," which operates along the coast of Alaska.

It was announced that World Day of Prayer will be held at the Merrill Church Feb. 17 for all lower Klamath Basin churches. All women are invited.

Plans for a morning Bible study group were made.

The moderator of General Assembly will speak to all Klamath Basin women Jan. 26 in the Mt. Laki Church at 2:30 p.m.

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served by Mrs. Orem.

Kansas has no saloons, even though liquor is legal there.

27 Attend Church Event

TULELAKE — Twenty-seven young people of the Tulelake Community Presbyterian Church were present recently for the first after school program of music and instruction.

The weekly program activities will include youth choir and band followed by a period of Christian instruction. Elder David Carman will direct the musical program and teach a study course in basic New Testament. The Rev. Wayne Wattman will conduct instruction in the Intermediate Westminster catechism. This group will include sixth, seventh and eighth graders.

The program begins at 4 p.m. Thursday of each week at the church.

Seventeen are now enrolled in catechism, and 10 in the New Testament course.

Studying are Barbara Anne Howe, Ardene Foster, Lloyd W. Moore, Janice Lillard, Christine E. Foster, Cheryl Rose, Kathy E. Howe, Kimberly A. Workman, Pamela Hoyle, Elizabeth Duckett, Charles L. ## Ordaining Of Officers Set Sunday

TULELAKE—Newly elected officers of the Tulelake Community Presbyterian Church will be ordained at the morning worship service Sunday, Jan. 29. They will be installed with officers now functioning with the Rev. Wayne Wattman pastor officiating. Officers ordained earlier will assist with the ordination service.

A coffee hour will follow the worship period.

New deacons are Estelle Grove, Allison Osborne, Fannie Ryckman, Marvin H. Thomas and Connie Thomas. Elder deacons are Edgar Duckett, Eleanor Potter and Mary Jane Smith.

New ruling elders to be ordained are John Bowen, Burton Hoyle, Kay Paulson, Gwin McCracken, and Cecil Moore. Elder trustees include Robert Anderson, K. S. Buckingham, David Carman, Woodrow Chambers, Eddy Mae Crawford, Lulu Duckett, Walter Johnson, Alice Wilkinson, Portia Aikins and Harry Mitchell.

Church Official Schedules Visit

Rev. Herman L. Turner, D.D., of Atlanta, Ga., moderator of General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of USA, will speak Thursday, Jan. 26, at the Mt. Laki Church.

There will be a tea after the program.

Two Attend Church Meet

The Rev. Ferris D. Winn, new pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, and Al Unger, chairman of evangelism, attended an evangelistic conference in Portland Jan. 16-18.

The conference for pastors of the Southern Baptist Churches in the Oregon-Washington and British Columbia Convention was held at the First Southern Baptist Church. The Rev. Lewis Steed, state evangelist chairman, was moderator.

Principal speakers were Dr. C. Y. Dossey, associational director of evangelism; Dr. Arthur B. Rutledge, director of home missions; Dr. Ira Peak, pastor of Tulelake Baptist Church, Mobile, Ala., and Dr. Stanley Jordan, pastor of Queensborough Baptist Church, Shreveport, La. Music was under the direction of Bennett Cook.

Mrs. Winn and children, Sandra, Judy and Ronnie, accompanied the pastor to Portland.

Kingdom Hall Talk Slated

A public address, "What Is God's Way to Salvation," will be delivered by George Hriczisce, a representative of the Watchtower Society, Sunday, Jan. 29, 3 p.m. at the Kingdom Hall, 833 North Ninth Street.

Some of the questions that the speaker will answer are salvation from what and why can no one ignore it.

At 4:15 p.m. a study of the Watchtower will follow. The public is invited. There is no charge.

LDS Church To Construct New Temple At Oakland

Decision to build a Mormon Temple on a site in Oakland, purchased for that purpose in 1942, has been announced by David O. McKay, 87-year-old president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Nineteen stakes of the Northern California Mission and an estimated 100,000 membership will be served by the new structure.

A Mormon Temple is not a place of worship as are the many Latter Day Saints chapels within the area. When completed and dedicated, temples are used by worthy church members only for sacred ceremonies, including marriages and other sealing ordinances, vicarious baptisms for the dead, and priesthood ordinations.

The Mormons have built 14 other such temples throughout the world.

The new temple will rise on a hilltop site in northeast Oakland. The site commands a sweeping view of the entire Bay Area. On part of the same property is the beautiful new two million dollar East Bay Interstake Center, dedicated by President McKay last September.

The design shows a modern building with the traditional single spire of a central tower. Mounted on top of the spire will be a torch-like beacon which will shoot a huge beam of light skyward at night. The central spire will rise to a height of 180 feet from the base line. The main structure will be approximately 48 feet to the square, overall length 195 feet, width 185 feet, with approximately 60,000 square feet of floor space.

The temple will have a capacity for ordinance work equal to that of the Los Angeles or Salt Lake temples, largest of the 13 Mormon temples now in use.

The building will be of reinforced concrete, faced with stone, completely fireproof and earthquake-proof. It is being designed by Harold W. Burton, supervising church architect, and construction will be directed by the LDS Building Committee.

No date for start of construction was announced Monday, although leaders were advised that work will begin immediately upon completion of plans and working drawings.

The 19 stakes to be served by the temple are the American River, Fresno, Gridley, Hayward, Monterey Bay, Napa, North Sacramento, Oakland-Berkeley, Palo Alto, Redding, Sacramento, San Francisco, San Jose, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Rosa, Walnut Creek, Reno and Klamath Stakes, as well as the church's Northern California Mission.

Wash-DRY-And Wear... and save time, money, needless work!

Wash 'n wear is a magic phrase to many homemakers, especially those with school kids. New fabrics eliminate ironing chores, save money because fewer clothes must be purchased, cost less, are easier to keep clean and neat. But you can't wear after you wash until you DRY—and in the fall-and-winter rainy season, this can be a problem...

But it's a problem easily and automatically solved by an ELECTRIC CLOTHES DRYER—built especially to handle the newest wash-DRY-and wear fabrics.

For the best buys in electric clothes dryers — see the dealer displaying this emblem...
