

Girl Gets Blame In 'Old Game'

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: I'm not very good at putting things into words, but I hope you will print this letter anyway. It's important.

My best friend was buried yesterday. M was very pretty and popular, lots of fun—and only 17 years old. She was going steady with a boy from school, M became pregnant and the boy wouldn't marry her. She was six months along when she died. The doctor said her heart gave out.

The boy's mother and my aunt are close friends. She claims her son was probably "one of many" and the girl was a tramp. This isn't true. M was a good girl, but she was foolish. I've heard many grownups talk about this tragedy and no one blames the boy. They all say the girl's mother didn't raise her right. What about the boy's mother? Did she raise HIM right? Why is it that a girl who goes into trouble is a tramp but the boy responsible isn't even criticized? Please tell me.—HEARTSICK

Dear Heartsick: One of the oldest laws of nature is that the female is the biggest loser in the game of heavy romance. This is why I hammer away at young girls and implore them to keep their heads.

If a girl loses control of the situation SHE pays the Big Price, not her boy friend. Unhappy, too many boys will go just as far as they can. Of course it isn't fair, but it's a biological fact of life that girls who get mixed up in out-of-bounds sexual involvements find that it's a man's world.

Dear Ann Landers: I suppose you've had this problem a hundred times, but I don't recall ever seeing it in your column. Our 4-year-old daughter is a little spoiled. She was the first grandchild and everybody has always fussed over her. Three weeks ago I surprised Nina with a baby brother. I thought she'd be thrilled but instead Nina hates the new baby. She has tried to take his bottle away and cover his head with blankets. I even caught her pinching the baby to make him cry. I've scolded Nina and told her that she must love her little brother and not hurt him. It does no good. I'm afraid she may harm him seriously because it's impossible to watch her every second. Please tell me what to do.—L.P. SET

Dear Upset: Your first mistake was "surprising" Nina with a baby brother. She should have been told several months in advance—and in a way that would have made her happy and eager. Nina feels displaced by the new baby and views him as an interloper. Give her special attention and additional affection and enlist her "help" in caring for her little brother. Keep a sharp eye open and don't leave Nina alone with the baby until she overcomes this feeling of hostility.

Confidential to HELP NEEDED URGENTLY: You can't ignore your children for 15 years, Dad, and expect to win their love overnight. A good parent-child relationship is never purchased. Too bad you woke up so late, but try to make up for lost time—not with presents—but with YOUR presence.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

W-2 Deadline Is On Tuesday, Employers Told

January 31 is the deadline for employers in Oregon to furnish their employees with statements of federal income and social security taxes withheld from their wages during 1960.

This reminder was issued last week for the benefit of those employers who have not already done so, said A. G. Erickson, district director of the Internal Revenue Service for Oregon. Most employers, he said, already have given their employees copies of the W-2 form, one of which must be attached to the federal income tax return filed by the employer reporting income received during 1960.

He said prompt furnishing of W-2's by employers is a big factor in timely and accurate filing of income tax returns by the nation's taxpayers.

Naval Reserve Has Openings

Several openings for young men, each for from two to five months of temporary active duty, exist at the Naval Reserve Unit at Kingsley Field, said Radioman I.C. Gordon Froman, stationkeeper at Klamath Falls Naval Reserve Unit.

The billets are open to veterans who are still under Navy enlistment but who are not members of a Naval Reserve unit, and to fleet reserve and retired Navy men.

Personnel on this type of duty will serve their full tour of duty at the Naval Reserve Building in Klamath Falls and will receive full pay plus subsistence allowance and basic allowance for quarters. The positions are expected to be filled soon. Those interested are invited to contact Froman at the Naval Reserve Building, TU 4-7115 during the day or TU 2-5186 in the evening.

Four KF Men To Take Cruise

Four Klamath Falls members of the Naval Reserve are scheduled to take a two-week training cruise during January. They are CTC Norman Hanson, RD2 Joe Boyce, EM3 Robert Smith and AO1 James Decker. Hanson, Boyce and Smith are scheduled to attend the instructor's school at Thirteenth Naval District Headquarters in Seattle, where they will receive training in latest of electronics techniques they will use in the reserve's various electronics ratings. Decker is aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Oriskany cruising off the coast of Southern California.

Anderson Rites Set For Monday

Funeral services for Paul Myron Anderson, former Klamath Falls resident, will be held at Klamath Lutheran Church Monday, Jan. 30, at 2 p.m. Final rites and interment will be in Klamath Memorial Park. The Rev. Leroy Redal will officiate. O'Hair's Memorial Chapel is in charge. A service was held also in Bethel Lutheran Church, Roseville, Calif., on Saturday.

Mr. Anderson, a native of Adams, N.D., born Aug. 1, 1916, died in a San Francisco hospital Jan. 26 following a lingering illness. The family moved to Klamath Falls in 1941 and lived here until April, 1957, when they moved to Roseville.

Mr. Anderson served on the Southern Pacific Railroad as a switchman. He was a member of Bethel Lutheran Church, Roseville, transferring his membership from Klamath Lutheran Church. He was also a member of the Switchmen's Union of North America. Survivors include the widow, Edna; two sons, Michael of Roseville, and Paul of Auburn, Calif.; a brother, Albert of Jersson, this city; two sisters, Carol Anderson of this city and Mrs. Jessie Lawrence, Madison, Wis.; also one grandson, Paul Martin.

They'll Do It Every Time

WEEKLY LEGISLATIVE ROUNDUP... Three-Way Deadlock Develops Over State Tax Structure In Legislature

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR. SALEM (AP) — The Oregon legislature's tax picture got so muddled last week that there is a growing probability that the lawmakers might wind up without making any changes in the state's tax.

There is a three-way deadlock over taxes. The Legislative Interim Committee on Taxation proposed a plan to levy a 3-cent cigarette tax, and couple it with an income tax reduction. It also wants to levy a gross income tax of about one per cent, and couple that with reduced-income taxes.

The result of this plan, expected to win the approval of the House Taxation Committee, would be to raise the same amount of revenue as under existing laws. It shifts some of the burden to the cigarette smoker and to low income groups. Gov. Mark O. Hatfield tossed a monkey wrench into that plan by saying he opposes the cigarette tax. Consequently, the House committee is in a quandary. It doesn't want to pass legislation that the governor would veto.

Further fat was tossed into the fire Friday when Sen. Walter J. Pearson, D-Portland, and Boyd Overhulse, D-Madras, called for a 10 per cent tax reduction. They say the state doesn't need all of the money it now raises.

The Pearson-Overhulse plan, which might win Senate approval, never could get through the House.

Some legislative leaders are predicting that nothing will be done about taxes — and this could shorten the session. In fact, a session shorter than the 115-day meeting in 1959 looms as a possibility. Senate President Harry Boivin says that there is an awful lot of major legislation that will be junked.

Governor Hatfield is facing a revolt in his own party over finances. A majority of the House Republicans want his budget cut by $10 million. Hatfield says it should neither be cut nor increased. Pearson and Overhulse proposed that the gasoline tax should be cut from 6 to 5 cents a gallon. They said the Highway Commission has too much money to spend.

This proposal came after a hearing in which people from all parts of the state demanded more money to build roads. The complicated timber tax situation apparently was eased last week by introduction of a bill designed to encourage timber owners to hold their trees until maturity. After the first hearing Tuesday night on Gov. Hatfield's plan to reorganize the state government, some legislators said they doubted whether it could be passed at this session. They think it's too big a job.

Only two of the 20-odd reorganization bills have been introduced so far. Legislative leaders are getting behind a proposal to set up a commission to consider writing a new state Constitution, rather than try to do it at this session. That also should help to shorten the session.

Gov. Hatfield's demand that four of the seven members of the Public Welfare Commission resign drew much support from legislators. He said the commission has failed to follow his policies. The Senate State and Federal Affairs Committee will put Miss Jeanne Jewett, welfare administrator, on the griddle Monday afternoon. The committee want to ask her why Oregon doesn't use federal surplus foods for its needy. She already has said the reason is that it costs too much to administer such a program.

The legislature appeared to be making much faster progress than usual. Committees are getting their teeth into bills a lot earlier than in past years. The presiding officers in each house are riding herd on the committee chairmen to get the important legislation out to the floor.

ization bills have been introduced so far. Legislative leaders are getting behind a proposal to set up a commission to consider writing a new state Constitution, rather than try to do it at this session. That also should help to shorten the session.

Gov. Hatfield's demand that four of the seven members of the Public Welfare Commission resign drew much support from legislators. He said the commission has failed to follow his policies. The Senate State and Federal Affairs Committee will put Miss Jeanne Jewett, welfare administrator, on the griddle Monday afternoon. The committee want to ask her why Oregon doesn't use federal surplus foods for its needy. She already has said the reason is that it costs too much to administer such a program.

The legislature appeared to be making much faster progress than usual. Committees are getting their teeth into bills a lot earlier than in past years. The presiding officers in each house are riding herd on the committee chairmen to get the important legislation out to the floor.

OREGON NEWS ROUNDUP... 12 Youths In Custody For Having Dynamite

PORTLAND (AP) — Twelve high school youths — one who said he wanted to blow up his school — were in police custody today on charges of possession of dynamite. Police said the youth told them that he had not blown up the school because he didn't know how to detonate the explosive. One of the boys had taken 40 sticks of dynamite from his father about three weeks ago. He and others peddled the explosive for 25 cents a stick.

The principal of Roosevelt High School received an anonymous telephone tip Thursday, reporting there was dynamite in a school locker. The principal and the staff searched all 900 lockers, but found no explosives. Later police took one of the youths into custody and the arrest of the others followed. They ranged in age from 14 to 17.

One of the boys said that he had thrown four sticks of dynamite into a school trash can. The contents of the can were burned in the school incinerator, but the dynamite did not explode. Eight of the students are from Roosevelt High School, three from Benson High, both public schools, and the other from North Catholic High.

The remaining dynamite was recovered in hiding places in the students' homes.

Establish Price

PORTLAND (AP) — Plywood mills have reestablished the list price of $60 per 1,000 square feet for 1/4-inch AD grade sanded plywood. Crow's Lumber Market News service reported Friday. The price was withdrawn last week after a rush of orders at the lower figure. It had fallen from $68 to $60 in less than two weeks. A spokesman for Crow's said that the order rush did not reflect the actual market, but was a result of jobbers buying at the lower price to cover losses on their inventory bought at the $68 figure. The spokesman said he believed the market to be pretty well established now at the $60 price, at least for a time.

Welfare Abuses SALEM (AP) — Citizens who know of welfare abuses were asked by Gov. Mark O. Hatfield today to tell their legislators about it. The governor has been critical of the state Public Welfare Commission, and has asked that four of the seven members resign. Hatfield said "the legislature is the only place corrections can be achieved in view of the present administrative chaos and the shackles on the governor."

He again said the commission has refused to carry out his policies, such as his request for a statewide work project campaign for welfare recipients. "We cannot condone the actions

Hatfield Continues Running Attack On Welfare; Members Fire Back

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Governor Mark Hatfield continued his running attack on the Oregon Public Welfare Commission Friday and several members of the commission, meeting at Oregon City, fired back.

The latest round in the battle was touched off when Hatfield said in a news release that there was chaos in the department. The governor also has asked four members of the commission, appointed by his predecessors, to resign.

The news release listed a number of instances in which Hatfield said the commission had been remiss. Hatfield called upon "all citizens who have knowledge of welfare abuses to contact their legislators, the speaker of the House or the president of the Senate." He said the "legislature is the only place corrections can be achieved in view of the present administrative chaos and the shackles on the governor."

Three of the four embattled commissioners replied. Dr. Morton Goodman said: "These are gross distortions and misstatements of fact."

Mrs. Lee Patterson said: "I've worked under 10 governors and never had one yet tell me I couldn't do my own thinking. I have never heard anything so insulting."

Gerson Goldsmith said: "Many of the statements are at variance with the written record of the commission and with previous statements of the governor in commission files." Speaker of the House Robert Duncan, D-Medford, added his views. He said that it appeared that Hatfield was reversing himself and conceding that welfare problems are a matter of concern to the legislature. "Only Sunday in a television broadcast," Duncan said, "Hatfield stated the location of the welfare office was of no concern to the legislature and we should not meddle."

Hatfield spoke at a meeting of the Portland City Club later in the day. He called for support of his program for reorganization of the state government. On the REQUEST

The family of Harold T. (Sync) Halaas requests that those of his friends who wish to do so may contribute to the Klamath Union High School band fund. Funeral services will be Tuesday, Jan. 31, at the graveside at 2 p.m.

subject of welfare, he said it should be used to help the aged and handicapped, but that the state cannot afford a plan which encourages able bodied men to sit in their armchairs when plenty of jobs are available.

At its meeting at Oregon City, the commission ordered its staff to find out more about President Kennedy's order to provide more and better surplus government food to the needy. Welfare officials said the program has not been used in Oregon because of the costs of distribution of the food.

Mrs. Kathleen Bash, state commissioner from Medford, suggested that the commission consider extending the "work for relief" program to women recipients

CD Alert Is Subject Of Meeting

Plans for establishing a civil defense welfare center for evacuees in the spring practice Operation Alert 1961 will be discussed Monday night at 7:30 at a meeting in the education office in Chiloquin.

Joe Searles, county civil defense director, said Chiloquin has been designated as an evacuation area for 500 people in the event of a disaster. The spring alert will be a simulated disaster and the Chiloquin welfare center is expected to be in operation.

Anthony R. Cardello, state civil defense welfare officer, will attend the meeting as will Mrs. Julia Brown, Klamath County welfare administrator. Searles said civil defense people from other communities are welcome at the meeting.

ASKS PURCHASE CUTS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John F. Baldwin, R-Calif., has asked President Kennedy to forbid the armed forces to buy foreign goods. Baldwin said Friday in an interview he saw no justification for asking military personnel "to leave their dependents in order to reduce dollar outflow when the Defense Department itself is making purchases from foreign sources."

ESQUIRE
Continuous Today From 12:45

NOW BOOMING WITH LAUGHTER!

JACK LEMMON
"The Apartment"

RICKY NELSON
"The Great Escape"

WACKIEST SHIP in the ARMY

Coming WEDNESDAY!

CLARK GABLE

MARILYN MONROE

Montgomery CLIFT

"THE MISFITS"

CHAMBER COMMENTS

by GEORGE T. CALLISON
Manager
KLAMATH COUNTY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The turnout at last Wednesday's initial meeting of the area-wide Community Hospital Committee was most gratifying to Dr. H. M. Amsberry and his chamber hospital committee. Approximately 150 persons responded to the invitation to participate in the larger group which will now assume the responsibility for developing a workable plan — one which seems best suited to the needs and desires of the community and also falls within the possibility of accomplishment.

As stated by Dr. Amsberry and Robert Kent, chamber president, at the Fremont Auditorium meeting, the chamber can provide the organization and the leadership, "but only the people can supply the incentive to give life to such a large project."

The Stanford Research Institute survey and subsequent studies clearly indicate the need for new hospital facilities; there seems to be no question that the majority of the people desire a new hospital. But these two, alone, are not enough. In addition, there must be a willingness on the part of the people to work for the new facilities, and to pay for them. Without it, there could be no new hospital because in the final analysis, regardless of what course of action may be adopted, it is the people who will be called upon to pay for it in one way or another. And when you are talking in terms of $2,500,000 to four million dollars, a lot of enthusiasm and understanding are vital.

The committee of 100-plus, which met last week, will carry out the next stage of the program through an 11-man planning board which will keep the larger group informed of developments through the periodic release of progress reports. Each member of the full committee, in turn, represents an organization, association, industry, school or governmental unit so that the progress reports eventually should reach several thousand persons scattered throughout Klamath County. In addition, informational releases through the regular news media should result in everyone who ultimately might be affected being kept fully informed of the latest developments.

All this is based on the premise that to be enthusiastic about anything, you have to know what you are being asked to be enthusiastic about. Certainly it is the hope of everyone even remotely involved in the project that when a workable plan is evolved, it will be one which will merit the enthusiastic endorsement of all the people of Klamath County. It is the further hope that when the time of decision arrives, everyone will be so thoroughly familiar with the plan, in all its aspects, that enthusiastic support can be logically expected.

Breaks Bone

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Sophia Loren fell in her apartment and broke her left collar bone Friday. The Italian actress had just completed work in the production of "El Cid," a story of the 11th century Spanish hero.

Canon Dies

LONDON (AP) — Canon Henry Dewsbury Alves Major, 89, died Thursday. Canon Major, one of the most controversial figures in the recent history of the Church of England, ran into difficulties with church authorities over his outspoken pronouncements on the reconciliation of scientific and religious views.

OPEN Every Sunday

11 till 6

PAY LESS DRUG STORE
BOB MAIN ST. KLAMATH FALLS

Herald and News
Klamath Falls, Oregon
Serving Southern Oregon and Northern California
Published daily (except Sat.) and Sunday

Southern Oregon Publishing Company
Main at Exchange
Phone TU 4-6111

W. B. SACKETT, Publisher

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Klamath Falls, Oregon, on August 25, 1906, under act of Congress, March 3, 1879. Second-class postage paid at Klamath Falls, Oregon, and at additional mailing offices.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

Carrier	11.75
Month	3.50
3 Months	10.50
1 Year	35.00
Mail in Advance
1 Month	6.25
3 Months	18.75
1 Year	61.00

Carrier and Dealers: Klamath Falls, Oregon
United Press International
Associated Press
Bureau of Circulation
Subscribers not receiving delivery at their homes should contact circulation manager at Klamath Falls, Oregon, or at the office of the publisher at Klamath Falls, Oregon, or at the office of the publisher at Klamath Falls, Oregon, or at the office of the publisher at Klamath Falls, Oregon.

THE GREATEST ENTERTAINMENT SHOW!
NOW AT POPULAR PRICES!

Uncut! Intact! Exactly as it ran for over a year in the major capitals of the world!

FRANK SINATRA ★ SHIRLEY MacLAINE

MAURICE CHEVALIER AND LOUIS JOURDAN

20 Color Portals CAN-CAN

COLOR by DE LUXE

co-starring JULIET PROWSE • JACK CUMMINGS

Produced by SUTCLIFFE CUMMINGS PRODUCTIONS

SUNDAY

Shows at 1:00 • 3:40 • 6:20 • 9:00

Mon. Thru Fri. 7:00 & 9:40

TOWER
PHONE • TU • 4-8484

Read Shirley MacLaine's Story in Today's Family Weekly Magazine.