New Officers Hold Meet

Olive Hanna, newly installed noble grand of Prosperity Rebekah Lodge No. 104, conducted her first meeting with the 1951 officers on Thursday, Jan. 19, at the IOOF Hall, Veronias Butterfield, first time visitor, was introduced and welcomed by the lodge.

Reports on the installation were given and Velma Krause, district deputy, gave her year's report on the president's project for the home.

Installation of Velma Krause as right supporter to the vice grand was conducted by Vera Clemmens, acting as installing officer, Harriette Estes as marshal.

Plans were announced for the pancake supper on Saturday, Feb. 25, at the IOOF Hall. This is a benefit for the United Nations Youth Pilgrimage which the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs sponsor every year. All members and friends are invited to attend.

Discussion was held on the Odd Fellows Eye Bank Program. The Order of Odd Fellows has set up an organization called the Odd Fellows World Eye Bank and Visual Research Foundation, working with skilled medical eye specialists to restore sight by making arrangements for eyes no longer useful to one person or at death, to be transplanted to waiting blind. Anyone can help in this humanitarian work by contributions or signing up to leave your eyes at death to the Eye Bank. Prosperity Rebekah lodge will participate in this world wide program and will hear later from Genevieve Pierce, chairman of the committee.

After the meeting refreshments were served in the dining hall decorated in the patriotic and inaugural theme. Miniature White Houses and flags adorned the tables and a White House cake was served by the committee, Charlotte Anderson and Retha Kirby.

STORK SHOWER
BLY—Two sisters, Mrs. Douglas Newman and Mrs. Stan Teumseh, were honored guests at a stork shower Jan. 12 at the home of Mrs. Charles Pratt. Mrs. Pratt was assisted by several close friends of the honorees.

Scout Director Gives Report

WEED—Mrs. Dysart Scribner, Weed, chairman of District 1, gave a report of the Jan. 12 Sierra-Cascade Girl Scout Council board meeting held in Chico, at the Jan. 18 district meeting held in Mount Shasta.

Forthcoming events and program for the Girl Scout troops in the Southern Siskiyou area were outlined to neighborhood chairmen, Mrs. Zenonian, Dunsuir; Mrs. Jake Baraglia, Weed; Mrs. Ralph Brooks, Mount Shasta, and Mrs. R. W. Prentice, McCloud. Other District 1 workers present and participating in the program discussions were Mrs. J. P. Shelton, troop consultant; Mrs. David Dawson, troop organizer; Mrs. R. G. Gaynor, public relations; Weed; Mrs. Ruth Jones, Dunsuir.

Jo Roach, council district director, Chico, attended and explained council procedures and future participation for the district workers.

Program activities discussed included a Feb. 1 meeting in Mount Shasta for training new community workers in the Girl Scout programs; Girl Scout Week, March 12-18, activities; the annual Girl Scout cookie sale, slated for the first two weeks in March; programs for the annual Brownie day camp, the time and place for District 1 to be determined, and the approval of an all district Brownie session sometime in May.

THE MATURE PARENT Don't Fret About Effect Of Your Acts On Child

Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: Some time ago you wrote about a mother whose girl wouldn't listen when she said to go to the store for her. You said that the mother went to the store herself and shamed the daughter so she started doing what she was told. I have tried this many times and my daughter doesn't feel any shame but just lets me do the things I tell her to do. A woman like you is dangerous to have writing in newspapers. . . . Answer: You must be feeling pretty discouraged about me and this daughter of yours. Perhaps we can straighten out our misunderstanding.

It was not in my mind that we should shame a child by doing a chore that he has resisted doing. Let's return to the original situation I presented.

We want some oranges from the store, ask our daughter to get them; she pretends not to hear. So we put on our coat and go get them ourselves. But we do not go reproachfully, complainingly, with any wish to shame the child at all.

Indeed, we don't care a whoop how the child feels about our action. We are taking it for ourselves. We are serving our wish for oranges because we simply respect our wishes.

So, free of all the sticky worry about what effect our action is on our discipline and future control of her, we march off to the store a happy woman.

That's where our misunderstanding comes. We don't go off to the store drooping like a dying gladiator but happy! And return happy. Arriving home, we don't sulk or fuss. Quite the contrary. We come in with the oranges and say: "What do you think? The Browns' puppies have their eyes open! Mrs. Brown says they're going to keep them all."

Because we were happy, we've made going to the store an interesting and enviable experience. Isn't the child going to want one like it? Of course she is.

You see, I wasn't thinking about our obligation to children in that column. I was thinking about obligation to ourselves. I was asking you to so respect your wishes that you could forget all about whether the child respects them or not.

Scoop out the centers of small cooked beets and fill with cream cheese seasoned with minced olives, capers, pimiento or parsley. Serve on lettuce with French dressing.
