Officers were elected: Donna Ralph, president; Leah McFall, vice president; Twila Hubbe, secretary; Sharon Vinson and Stacia Peterson, yell leaders; Sylvia Rosandich, song leader.

Mrs. Ralph showed the girls the projects for the year. They talked about the sewing boxes they planned to make at the next meeting.

After the meeting, the girls played games and had refreshments.

Patsy Rosandich, News Reporter.

3 Elected To Board At Lakeview

LAKEVIEW — Neal Elliott was reelected to a three-year term and George Jaska and Ed Garrett elected to four-year terms on the board of supervisors for the Lakeview District of the Soil Conservation Service at the annual meeting held Jan. 24 in Lakeview. There were 40 present at the meeting.

Ronald Elmes, SCS Watershed Party leader from Portland, reported on feasibility of several sites in connection with a watershed study which the agency has been conducting for water use or flood control if the necessity arises. A previous report on dam proposals in the area was discussed and from the discussion arose a request to determine feasibility and costs of diverting Thomas Creek above the old mill site and building a canal into Cottonwood Reservoir. The SCS was asked to investigate and report back to the district.

Forrest Cooper, Lakeview attorney, reported on the status of developments with regard to an interstate compact of the Goose Lake Basin waters between California and Oregon. He also discussed ways and means of creating wealth by applying labor and capital to natural resources such as soil and water, reported on ways in which other states had made money and equipment available to soil conservation districts to do conservation work and suggested that Oregon needed legislation which would permit the state to assist local groups on the water conservation projects.

A financial and work report showing accomplishments during the year was submitted and accepted by the group. Included in this was the report of two large irrigation dams substantially completed in 1960. R. T. Renner completed Sibley Dam and Bob Hunt and the Oregon State Game Commission are cooperating on Lofton Lake Dam.

A quarterly activities report to the membership has been arranged for next Wednesday noon at the Pelican Cafe. Tourist and convention, hospital and industrial development activities will be highlighted, but all phases of the chamber's activities will be touched upon by Bob Kent, president, and the various directors involved. Post card notices of the meeting have gone out to all members of the chamber. They have been asked to telephone reservations to the chamber office no later than Tuesday evening, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

NOT ONE TO ARGUE

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—The assessor's office mailed a routine notice to a woman recently telling her that it had raised the assessed valuation of her home to $29,000.

By return mail, assessor Francis H. Kennedy said, he received a check for $20,000. He did not identify the woman.

CHAMBER COMMENTS

Last week was a busy one for the chamber, what with meetings of the Executive, Community Hospital, National Affairs, Industrial Development and Roads and Highways committees. Sandwiched in between was the highly important meeting with J. Herbert Stone, regional forester for the U.S. Forest Service, who discussed the proposed establishment of a new national forest with headquarters in Klamath Falls, utilizing reservation timber lands which have reverted to the federal government, plus small segments of the Rogue River, Deschutes and Fremont National forests.

Just how far the chamber has come with its 1959-61 program of work, as well as an appraisal of possible new projects which should receive consideration, will be the chief topic of discussion at the chamber's monthly board meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the residence of director, Mel Miller.

A quarterly activities report to the membership has been arranged for next Wednesday noon at the Pelican Cafe. Tourist and convention, hospital and industrial development activities will be highlighted, but all phases of the chamber's activities will be touched upon by Bob Kent, president, and the various directors involved. Post card notices of the meeting have gone out to all members of the chamber. They have been asked to telephone reservations to the chamber office no later than Tuesday evening, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

During the conference, the writer will have the opportunity to outline an office work training program which has been conducted for 25 years or more in connection with the Business Course Department at Klamath Union High School.

The program, in which the chamber is one of several participants, provides high school seniors in business with the opportunity to gain practical office experience prior to graduation. Not too many communities in Oregon have taken advantage of such a program which, in our experience, has proven equally beneficial to the school, the young people and the business houses involved in it.

Management Idea Sounds Fine But Little Agreement Is Expected

By JAMES MARLOW
 Associated Press News Analyst
 WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy, as part of his bang-bang action to get his new administration moving fast, has taken two steps which will be fine—if they work.

He has set up a task-force to pull together policies and programs on Latin America. And, as he disclosed in his economic message Thursday, he will create a 21-man labor-management group with a broad field to work in.

The task of this latter group, he said, will be to advise the President on actions that may be taken by:

"Labor, management and the public which will promote free and responsible collective bargaining, industrial peace, sound wage policies, sound price policies and stability, a high standard of living, increased productivity, and America's competitive position in world markets."

The government is to be a full partner in all this with Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg and Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges rotating the chairmanship between them yearly.

It sounds good, but the problem is in getting the labor and management representatives to agree on very much. They've had "trouble agreeing in the past. The public will also be represented.

During the presidential campaign Kennedy set up task forces to consider dilemmas facing him if he became president and recommendations to solve them.

One of these was headed by Adolf A. Berle Jr., a Franklin D. Roosevelt brain-truster who served in the government from 1933 to 1948 and is a specialist on Latin America.

Kennedy made public a number of his task forces' reports in other fields. He has not released the one from the Berle group on Latin America, perhaps because of too dismal a picture of conditions there.

Berle will head the new task force, which has these members: Theodore C. Achilles, counselor of the State Department; Thomas C. Mann, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs; William Bundy, deputy assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs; and Lincoln Gordon, an economic professor at Harvard.

During the campaign Kennedy complained that "dozens of U.S. agencies" are involved in this government's various efforts in the Latin-American field and indicated they needed pulling together, plus new programs.

This is the job for Berle and his group. And, since the State Department is so well represented on it, it would seem it would function under the wing of Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

But this isn't clear. It was learned authoritatively that Berle had been offered and had declined absolute autonomy in handling Latin-American affairs, preferring to have his group under State Department supervision.

But suppose Rusk and the two State Department officials on the panel disagree with Berle's conclusions and proposals. Does he have to them or go over their heads to Kennedy?

In both cases—creation of the labor-management group and the Berle group—the idea sounds all right. It's an effort toward orderly thinking and doing.

But the question is: Will they work or foul themselves up?
