Swamp Land Bill Given

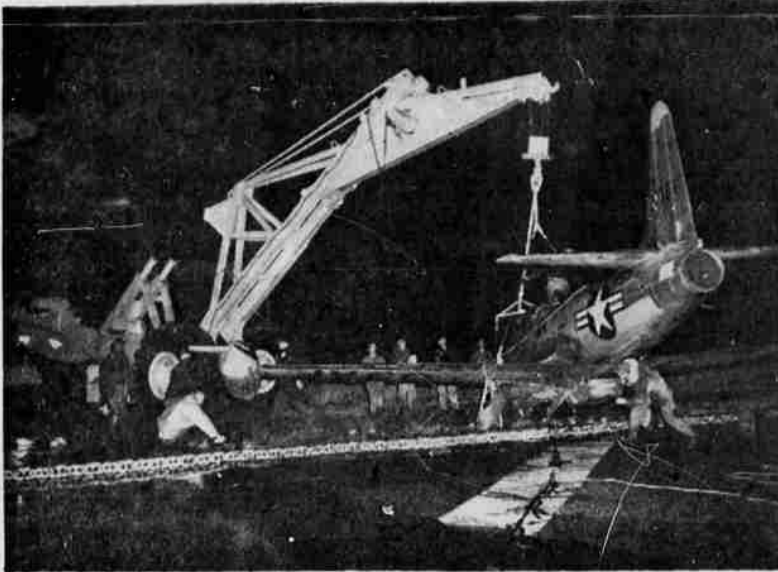

SALEM (AP) — A group of applicants to buy swamp lands from the state land would be permitted to submit a joint bid under a bill introduced in the House Thursday by Rep. Robert Smith, R-Burns. Existing statutes allow an individual bidder for state lands to bid on up to 320 acres. Smith's bill would permit 27 Lake County residents who have formed the Crump Lake Flood Plains Association to buy 13,000 acres of swamp land around Crump Lake in Lake County. Smith said the association plans to reclaim the land for farming. He said unless the combined bid is permitted and the entire area drained it would be impossible for any individual section of land to be reclaimed. The Army Engineers said reservoirs in the Willamette Valley were near minimum flood control levels. A spokesman for the engineers said they were filling up the reservoirs and holding down river flow as much as possible. But the Weather Bureau said heavy rains would continue tonight with some clearing in sight Saturday. River forecasters said they expected the main stem of the Willamette River to reach a

Skiing Outlook Good

Heavy snows have piled up for the second straight pre-weekend at Mt. Shasta Ski Bowl, providing a favorable outlook for skiing. The weatherman predicts, however, that light snows will fall Friday night and Saturday. He further advises that partial clearing is liable to occur Sunday. The bowl will be fully open Monday—a holiday since Lincoln's birthday falls on Sunday. But it will close as usual Tuesday. The new snow that fell earlier during the week there was beat back somewhat by a rain that hit the area, but two inches of fresh powder snow fell Thursday night. The heavy pack measures 115 inches in depth. Skiing is expected to be good. Motorists are advised to carry chains. Rocks on the road have not been a particular problem during the week, since a cooling trend halted a thaw. Temperatures have been in the low 30s during the day. Personnel at Crater Lake Park report that skiing there has been good and that quite a number of people have been taking advantage of conditions. Phone lines were out of order there Friday morning and no report of snow conditions was available. But the pack was 81 inches deep at the rim Thursday, with addition of about five inches of wet snow Thursday morning. Chains there were required from Annie Spring upward. The warming hut at the rim

SALEM (AP) — A bill to raise the legal age for a driver's license was opposed Thursday on the ground that it would threaten the high school driver training programs. Frank Quinlan, Portland, a director of Oregon Highway Life-savers, and Sidney A. King, Portland, representing the Oregon State Motor Association took this stand at a House Highway Committee meeting. King said he believed driver training is an important long-range program. Quinlan said the increased age limit would encourage law breaking. Rep. Ken Maher, R-Portland, said his aim in introducing the bill was to stop pleasure driving by 16 and 17-year-olds. He said this group constitutes a great accident hazard. Dr. Leon P. Minear, state superintendent of public instruction, said increasing the driving age would tend to "keep some of those high school kids out of what I call portable bedrooms."

OSC Name Change Is OK'd By House; School Bill Sent

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR. SALEM (AP) — Legislation to change the name of Oregon State College to Oregon State University was passed 43-9 today by the Oregon House and sent to the Senate. Nobody spoke against the bill but there was considerable good-natured ribbing during the discussion. After Rep. John B. Dellenback, R-Medford, said the bill was merited because OSC meets the requirement that a university is a collection of colleges, Rep. Carl Fisher, Republican who comes from the rival University of Oregon's home city, started it. He asked unanimous consent to change the name to Oregon Agricultural College, Rep. Joe Rogers, R-Independence, blocked that. Then Rogers failed in a move to shut off discussion. Rep. Richard Eymann, R-Mohawk, Lane County, then asked this question: "If this present trend of changing colleges to universities continues, is there a probability that the college of cardinals might be changed to the university of cardinals?" Dellenback got the discussion back to a serious level, asserting that the change to university status is of great significance among professional educators. He said the state Board of Higher Education supports the bill.

Rep. Victor Atiyeh, R-Portland, said he is a University of Oregon graduate, and is risking "banishment from the campus" by supporting the bill. Voting against it were Reps. Kessler Cannon, Bend; Eymann; Edward N. Fadeley, Eugene; Beulah Hand, Milwaukie; Winton Hunt, Woodburn; George Layman, Newberg; Grace Peck, Portland; Emil Stutz, Nyssa; and Ed Whelan, Portland. The House also sent to the Senate a bill to allow public school classes to be held on Saturdays. Rogers said its purpose is to allow driver training classes on that day, but said classes for gifted and retarded children also might be held then by some districts. The Senate sent to the House measures to ask Congress to give Oregon more military installations, and to make it a crime to defraud the telephone companies in charging long distance calls to other persons without their consent. Legislation to construct a highway bridge across the Columbia River at Astoria was introduced in the House. Rep. William H. Holmstrom, D-Astoria, sponsor of the bill, said it is the result of an agreement between members of the Highway committees of the Washington and Oregon legislatures to split the cost. An identical bill was being introduced in the Washington Legislature today, he said. Oregon has authorized $24 million in bonds to build the bridge. The bill provides that the two states split the cost evenly, after toll charges are deducted from the total cost. Oregon would construct the big bridge through receipts from the bond issue. Washington's share would be applied to retiring the bonds.

Five Facing Charges Of Burglary

Five Klamath area men were returned to Klamath Falls from Albany Thursday to face charges of burglary in connection with the Thursday morning theft of wine, beer and money from Tomlie's Tavern in Bonanza. The five men are charged with breaking into the tavern, owned by Tomlie Nelson, and stealing two cases of wine, a case of beer and $12 in small change. The accused are Alfred Lugo, 25, 2444 Pershing Way; Julian Ronald Hood, 26, Chiloquin; Hawley Harvey Hood, 22, Chiloquin; Charles Riddle Jr., 23, Beatty; and Dewey Warren Thompson, 36, Chiloquin. Sheriff's deputies said Julian Hood and Dewey Thompson gave the phony names of Franklin Hutchinson and Robert Warren when they were arrested by state police in Albany Thursday. The state police said the car contained cases of wine and beer. Julian Hood and Thompson were released from the Klamath County Jail Monday after serving drunk and vagrancy sentences, respectively. Hawley Hood finished a nine-month term last month for assault with a dangerous weapon. A non-support charge is also pending against Lugo. Mrs. Ruby Nunn, 2705 Ward Street, said she lost a sterling silver charm bracelet which had silhouettes of her three grandchildren on it. A vandal entered his unlocked car, slashed the upholstery, bent the gearshift knob and pulled some knobs off the dashboard, Patrick McClurg said. The car was in the Holiday Bowl parking lot.
