Three Americans Poised For Venture Into Space Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Three Americans will be involved in the first manned flight of this nation's first space launch, tracking and recovery operation. The flight will be a 16-minute, 115-mile trip to the stars.

John Herschel Glenn Jr., 39, of Akron, Ohio, will be the first to launch. He will be followed by Alan Bartlett Shepard Jr., 37, of Concord, Ohio, and Virgil Ivan Grissom, 34, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Each of them loves the river and the sea. Each of them is a pilot. Each of them is a man of action. Each of them is a man of courage. Each of them is a man of faith.

Some day soon — perhaps within the next two months — one of them will climb into a cramped, bell-shaped capsule on the nose of a Redstone rocket for a flight into space.

The three men were chosen from among America's seven astronauts Tuesday to begin final training for this nation's first launch, tracking and recovery operation. The flight will be a 16-minute, 115-mile trip to the stars.

Each of them loves the river and the sea. Each of them is a pilot. Each of them is a man of action. Each of them is a man of courage. Each of them is a man of faith.
