Scott called on Siskiyou County Sheriff A. B. Cottar for assistance in preparation.

Public Meeting Set On Sewer Bond Issue

WEED—A good public turnout is expected for the meeting Tuesday night for open discussion of the proposed new Shastina Sanitary District sewage disposal plant.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Sons of Italy Memorial Hall. The facilities would replace worn out and inadequate ones now serving the Shastina area.

An election March 7 will decide the issue. At stake is a $160,000 bond issue. If the issue is passed by registered voters of the district, federal aid of up to 30 percent of construction cost may be available. The federal funds, if they are received will be an outright grant.

Proponents of the new sewerage say growth of the area south of Division Street will be impaired without new facilities.

Additional connections to the old sewerage is discouraged, they say due to inadequacy of the system, installed in 1928.

The old system was designed to collect only domestic sewage and industrial wastes. A small lagoon was added in 1947 to store wash water for cleaning the plant. It was enlarged in 1952.

A chlorinator was installed in 1949 and still is used. Flows recorded at the treatment plant indicate that the system is victim of a high rate of infiltration of moisture.

Proposed plans call for a new outfall system and oxidation ponds on the Salanti site, which a survey indicated is the best place for a new installation. The site is north of Weed Golf Course northwest of the city.

The outfall line would begin at a manhole 600 feet southwest of the present treatment plant and run along the east and north boundaries of the golf course.

The line would include 3,350 feet of 12-inch pipe and 27,000 feet of 10-inch pipe, with strategically placed manholes for maintenance.

Maximum capacity would be about 2.75 cubic feet of sewage per second, or 1.78 million gallons per day. Oxidation area would contain three primary ponds and two finishing ponds.

The former would be so designed that any one of the three could be taken out of service without impairing the plant's efficiency. Outflow would be discharged in Boles Creek.

William E. Krum, district board of directors president, announced that George Gentry of the state Department of Public Health will be present during the meeting to help answer questions from the audience.

Other board members are Irvn Andruzza, Thomas Parkinson, Joe Belcastro and Frank Groppi.

Modoc National Forest Completes Land Survey

ALTURAS—The Modoc National Forest has just completed an inventory of its lands in need of reforestation. While tree planting has been one of the major work items for many years, the reforestation plan now maps and defines the entire planting job as seen at this time.

According to the Forest Service office here, in order to compile the plan, old burns and brushfields formerly supporting timber and understocked areas were examined on the ground. Soil depth, slope, stoniness, aspect, elevation and site were all considered in order to rate areas in order of priority for planting.

Modoc headquarters office here says the Modoc Forest is divided into four timber working circles. Growth, timber harvest, timber stand improvement and reforestation are kept track of by these working circles.

Here are the reforestation jobs for each of the units: Alturas working circle, 21,530 acres to plant; Big Valley, 1,295; East Warners, 2,646 and Lavas, 20,819 acres to plant.

This spring, foresters say the Modoc will plant 250,000 pine seedlings on 350 acres. They figure it would thus take 85 years to do the job, even if there were no more fires or other disastrous losses. Actually, they say, it won't be necessary to live that long in order to see it through. Tree nursery capacity is being doubled, or even tripled in some cases.

Financially, it is recognized that the most efficient land management is to put idle timberland back into production.
