

KINGSLEY FIELD, located five miles southwest of Klamath Falls, makes a tremendous contribution to the economy of the area. The base has a population of 1,500 and an annual payroll in excess of six million dollars. In addition, another two million dollars per year are spent with Klamath Basin business firms for a series of far reaching projects. The base, one of the newest In Air Defense Command, is headquarters for the 408th Fighter Group, which has earned an enviable reputation in scarcely more than a year in "operational" status.

THE F101-B "VOODOO" is a familiar sight by now in the skies above the Klamath Basin. The powerful aircraft is a twin-engine, supersonic jet interceptor capable of firing the "Genie" air-to-air atomic rocket. The "Voodoo", equipped with a radar-controlled armament system, carries a crew of two—the pilot and radar intercept officer. The 101's at Kingsley are manned by aircrews of the 322nd Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, commanded by Lt. Col. Carl H. Leo.

A CITY WITHIN A CITY is an apt description of Falcon Heights, the Kingsley Field housing area completed in November 1958 at a cost of 4 1/2 million dollars. The development has 145 modern duplex units to house 290 Air Force families. Many more families make their homes in Klamath Falls and the surrounding area due to a long waiting list for Falcon Heights. The development, built under the Capehart Housing Bill, is regarded as one of the most modern in the Air Force.

SCANNING THE SKIES in defense of the Pacific Northwest is the job of this giant radome atop Mt. Hamaker, near Keno. The radome is the outstanding feature of the 827th Radar Squadron Station, which is one of the units supported by Kingsley Field's 408th Fighter Group. The radar station also relays signals from Portland Air Defense Sector headquarters at Adair, near Corvallis. The 827th is commanded by Maj. Patrick A. O'Connell.

OF PROGRESS IN THE KLAMATH BASIN

1961

This Fall will mark 43 years that we of Peoples Warehouse have enjoyed the privilege of living and serving our friends in the Klamath Basin. These have been good years. We are very grateful.

Peoples Warehouse was established in October of 1918 on South Sixth, where the bumps in the pavement were mountainous and the dust deep. The Herald and News used to print a column called, "The Dust of South Sixth Street". There was a swamp across the street from the Warehouse, where many a fine mallard provoked a shot from the warehouse door. Peoples has been under the continuous management of the same family "Since 1911".

In those days ("The Roarin' 20's, as T.V. now calls them) we stored almost everything under the sun. Potatoes, onions, grain, wool, machinery and automobiles. In fact, our motto was, "If storable, we store it". There were no moving vans as such, only horse drawn open wagons or ones with canvas tops and very little equipment to protect furniture.

We were in the FEED business when Logging was still being done with horses. We supplied much of the hay and grain for their "hayburners". We had a year-to-year contract with the circus to furnish timothy hay and top grade oats for their elephants and other animals. These supplies had to be loaded the night before and be on circus grounds at crack of dawn when the first animals were unloaded from the train. This was an exciting event ... we miss the circus.

Years later after the hay and grain business succumbed to the gas pumps we bought and sold new and used burlap bags and started a custom bag repairing plant. After the Second World War harvesting and sale of farm products gradually turned to BULKING and we soon found ourselves "holding the sacks". So our best move then was Moving! Since then we have concentrated on the Storage and Moving of Furniture and household goods in local and Long Distance service. Keeping pace with the ever changing times we use the latest storage method - PALLET VAULTS. To make our service complete nationwide and world wide we became Agents for Bekins Moving and Storage Company. Our men are courteous, experienced movers aiming to make your move a pleasant occasion, not a painful experience. We personally guarantee satisfaction on every move we make or made by Bekins on our order. May the people of Peoples serve you.

Sincerely,

Peoples Warehouse
