Growing Unemployment Sours Relief Measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy's first anti-recession measure moved today toward House passage, with a new government report on joblessness adding a note of urgency.

The House Rules Committee was expected to clear the Kennedy proposal for a floor vote Wednesday. It would provide $1 billion in extra unemployment compensation for 3,125,000 workers whose regular benefits have run out or will be exhausted this year.

The Labor Department reported Monday that the number of persons drawing unemployment benefits reached a record high of 3,390,600 earlier this month.

The figure, for the week ending Feb. 11, was 32,200 above the previous week. Twenty-nine states reported increases, with Wisconsin, Virginia, Maryland, New York, Missouri and Pennsylvania having the sharpest rises.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways & Means Committee, which approved Kennedy's proposal to extend jobless benefits, urged the rules group to speed the measure to the House floor.

If all goes well, the administration's bill could be on its way to the Senate Wednesday night. House passage was considered a certainty because of strong support from both Democratic and Republican leaders.

By a voice vote Monday, the Ways & Means Committee approved the second part of Kennedy's emergency program. This bill would provide up to $305 million in public assistance for needy children of the unemployed.

It would set up a federal-state program under which unemployed parents could get funds to provide necessities such as food and clothing for their children.

The committee tightened qualifications for the aid to make it mandatory for an unemployed parent to accept any job offered by a state employment service. If he refused "without good cause," the aid to his children would be stopped.

Wiretapping Laws Still Confused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Samuel J. Ervin, D-N.C., said today the Senate constitutional rights subcommittee intends to investigate wiretapping soon in an effort to clarify that confused legal area.

Ervin promised congressional action after a Supreme Court ruling on the subject Monday.

The 7-2 decision left wiretapping by state police under a continued cloud of illegality. Despite this situation, however, the court ruled that wiretap evidence obtained by New York police could be used in the trial of Burton N. Pugach, a Bronx lawyer accused of burglary and other crimes.

Pugach had asked a federal court to bar the state from using the evidence, which had been obtained with consent of a state court judge under New York law.

Cites Previous Cases

The court ruled against Pugach in a one-sentence unsigned opinion which merely cited two cases decided in 1951 and 1952. The 1951 case said federal courts should refuse to intervene to suppress evidence in state criminal proceedings. In 1952, a decision held that wiretap evidence may be admitted in state courts, even through inadmissible in a federal trial.

The Senate investigation into wiretapping has been urged by Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N. Y., a member of Ervin's subcommittee. Keating said a study was needed to permit wiretapping in legitimate cases by law enforcement officials under a properly drawn state law, and to tighten up the ban on wiretapping by private eyes for illegal purposes.

"I have a strong feeling that state prosecutions should be permitted to follow state law on the subject," Keating said.

Some Permit It

Under some state statutes, police can tap wires in certain circumstances if they get a judge's permission.

The Federal Communications Act prohibits interception and divulging of telephone conversations, without permission of the parties.

In 1957, the courts made it clear that police who tap wires and turn over evidence to prosecutors are violating the Federal Communications Act. The court majority did not mention this decision Monday, and presumably it still is in effect.

The Justice Department, however, has never prosecuted a state official under that law.

Fishy Dessert For Boy Scout

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Scoutmaster Minor McCrite could hardly believe his eyes.

The boys in his troop on an overnight camping trip cooked their own breakfasts. One of them ate nine fried eggs, seven strips of bacon and a can or sardines.

Why sardines for breakfast? asked McCrite.

"Oh, I just thought I ought to have some dessert," the boy replied.

New Orleans School Head Quits Post

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The embattled Orleans Parish School Board began casting around today for a new school superintendent.

Dr. James F. Redmond, 45, one of the central characters in the bitter New Orleans desegregation battle, announced Monday night that he would not renew his contract July 1.

Redmond—head of the city's $100-million public school operations for eight years—said he had been offered other opportunities which he couldn't ignore.

Louis G. Riecke, board president, said Redmond had asked for $30,000 a year. He is now paid $23,500 annually.

Redmond, a special target of Louisiana legislators' ire since two New Orleans schools were integrated last Nov. 14, has not been paid since then.

Annual Easter Seal Sale Gets Under Way Thursday

The annual Easter Seal sale of the Oregon Society of Crippled Children and Adults will get under way Thursday, March 2, and continue through Easter Sunday.

Carolyn Wood, 16-year-old Oregonian who won a gold medal for the U.S. swimming team in last summer's Olympic games in Rome, is state chairman of the sale, and she is being assisted by hundreds of volunteers throughout the state.

An estimated 500,000 Oregon residents will receive Easter Seals in the mail during the next few days, Miss Wood stated, and she urged persons to respond as "quickly and as generously as possible."

In asking Oregonians to support the Easter Seal sale, Miss Wood pointed out that "the challenge I faced in Rome is nothing compared to the one the crippled children of our state face every day."

Easter Seals are the principal means of support for the Oregon Society which operates the Children's Hospital School, a summer camp for crippled children and young adults on the Oregon coast, a mobile therapy clinic, which travels the state providing physical therapy for areas where it is not available, and an equipment pool, which offers wheelchairs, crutches and other equipment for needy persons.

Miss Wood reminded that "every Easter Seal you buy helps a crippled child."

Booms Duncan For Governor

SALEM (AP) — Senate President Harry D. Boivin said Monday that House Speaker Robert B. Duncan "would make a fine candidate for governor." Both are Democrats.

Sen. Anthony Yturri, Ontario, Senate Republican leader, said that "the Democrats are overlooking an obvious choice in Sen. Alfred H. Corbett of Portland."

Yturri made the comment when asked about reports that Duncan has much Democratic support.

Cool Waters For Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The water in the White House swimming pool has been cooled down toward New England temperature for President Kennedy.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger reported in reply to questions Monday that Kennedy has used the pool only a couple of times since he took office Jan. 20.

The first time, Salinger said with a chuckle, the temperature was "around 100 degrees."

"I understand it's been cooled down," Salinger added.
