Transient Fined, Jailed By Justice Court Judge

Toney Lee Moore, 54-year-old transient, received the maximum legal sentence—a $500 fine and six months in jail—Tuesday in Chiloquin Justice Court after he pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge. Justice of the Peace Walter Zimmerman explained the stiff sentence by saying he had had "a lot of trouble" from Moore. The charge involved an alleged incident with a young boy. "If these fellows don't want to behave themselves," Justice Zimmerman said, "we'll put them away." The usual vagrancy sentence in Klamath County is a $100 fine and 30 days in jail. If Moore serves his fine at the rate of $5 a day, he will serve a total of nine months and 10 days. Moore was booked at the Klamath County Jail Tuesday afternoon.

Youth Given Jail Sentence

A young man who pleaded guilty to drunk driving Wednesday morning in municipal court was fined $250 and given a 30-day jail sentence by Judge Clarence Humble. Theodore Zane Clawson, 23, 1546 Gary Street, was arrested Tuesday night by city police, who said Clawson was driving 45 miles an hour on the wrong side of North Third Street near Roosevelt Street. A partially consumed half gallon of wine was found in the car. Clawson refused to take a blood alcohol test at the police station. A passenger in the car was not charged. A young man and his wife were taken to Klamath Valley Hospital Tuesday afternoon after a two-car collision on Altamont Drive near Boardman Street. James Grover Walton, 27, 4061 Bryant Street, and his wife, Beverly Ann, 26, were treated for minor injuries and released. State police said a car driven by Walton was northbound on Altamont when a pickup truck driven by Albert Leo Hulse, 36, 3236 Boardman Street, pulled out in front of Walton. Walton's car skidded and struck the pickup in the right rear and then slid into the ditch. The car was towed from the scene. Neither Hulse nor a passenger, Mary E. Hulse, 6, was injured. A tail light was destroyed in a minor accident downtown Tuesday afternoon. J. E. Friesen, 1715 Main Street, was pulling out from the curb when his car struck the tail light of the parked car in front of him. The parked car was owned by S. W. Seastrong, Bly. No citation was issued.

Indians Told To Check Up

The Bureau of Indian Affairs has not recommended, approved or endorsed any mutual funds, company stock or other types of financial investments for withdrawal members of the Klamath tribe or for any other Indians, the Portland Area office of the bureau announced today. Officials of the Department of the Interior expressed concern over reports reaching them that Klamath members, who share in the assets of the Klamath termination, that certain funds and stocks in companies had the approval of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and that salesmen were making their calls with official consent. No such approval has or will be given to any company or salesmen, BIA spokesmen said. The officials said that they hoped the Indians sharing in the termination will invest their funds wisely and they urged that members, contemplating investments of this kind, make thorough investigations of all proposals through their local banks or reputable investment firms before making any investments.
