

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today a speedup in spending of $209 million on post office facilities has been ordered to stimulate the lagging economy.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger told a news conference the program calls for spending $100 million in federal funds and the balance in private money between now and the end of the year. The original plan, Salinger added, called for spending the total over the next 12 months.

Plans for such a speed-up were first announced without details by President Kennedy at a news conference Feb. 15. The projects are already authorized by Congress.
