

Jail Parents On Contributing Charge

YREKA — Marland Kusick, 40, and his wife, Elsie, Macdoel, each were sentenced to spend a year in jail by Siskiyou County Superior Court Judge J. Everett Barr last week, for charges they contributed to the delinquency of their 10-year-old daughter.

Isaac L. Skidmore, 62, Mount Hebron beekeeper, said by police to be involved in the same case, was convicted of lewd and lascivious conduct in the superior court by Judge Richard B. Eaton of Redding. Sentence will be delivered March 17.

Richard J. Morgan, 22, Mount Hebron, also said by police to be involved, was sent by the court to Atascadero State Hospital upon recommendation of County Probation Officer Jess Brewer. Morgan will be examined to determine whether he is a sexual psychopath.

Morgan and Skidmore, both charged with the same offense, a felony, each could be imprisoned for from one year to life. In Skidmore's case the jury deliberated 15 minutes. The men and the Kusicks were arrested by sheriff's deputies in Macdoel last December.

They received the maximum jail term but no probation. During a preliminary hearing in Dorris Justice Court, the Kusicks were accused by a woman from Klamath Falls who identified herself as Mrs. Kusick's daughter and Kusick's step-daughter, of encouraging Skidmore to molest the Kusick's little daughter while Skidmore was living with the Kusicks last year.

The Kusicks pleaded guilty to the charge. During Morgan's hearing, the little girl said to be involved in the case, testified. She told the court that Morgan, her half brother, had molested her sexually several times during 1959.

OREGON TECHNICAL INSTITUTE and Portland Center of General Extension Division will offer extension courses in electronics technology in Portland starting next fall. And Robert L. Smith, OTI's dean of students, is in Portland to help set up courses. Here he holds up OTI and Portland Center catalogs.

OTI Dean Setting Up School Plan

Robert L. Smith, dean of students at Oregon Technical Institute, currently is in Portland to consult with General Extension Division's Portland Center about setting up pilot OTI extension classes starting next fall.

Dr. Daniel Fullmer, director of the Portland center, confirmed that initial OTI offerings here will be in electronics technology.

Smith said that first-term courses are planned at the start but that extension course work will be expanded in time.

Smith also will continue consultations with local electronics industries in laying groundwork for the courses. Previous talks have been held among industry, GED and OTI representatives.

The extension of Oregon Tech courses to the Portland area is in line with the inclusion of OTI in the jurisdiction of the state Board of Higher Education. The board decided that the growing importance of electronics industries in Portland makes OTI's highly successful electronics courses a logical starting point.

Smith has been with OTI from the time it started 14 years ago. Before becoming dean he was supervisor of student personnel.

While he is in Portland, his headquarters will be in the extension division building, 1633 SW Park. Howard O. Rowe, registrar, will be acting dean at OTI during Smith's absence from the campus at Klamath Falls.
